FISH RAPS U.S. POLICY ON REDS IN D. A. R. TALK

MOSES UTTERS PLEA FOR ADEQUATE NAVY

Everson Urges Citizen Army; Red Cross Aid Described; Police Guard Hall.

A scathing arraignment of the Department of State was made by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., before the congress of the D. A. R., meeting in Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon, in which, making extemporaneously, he declared that it should not be immune from criticism "when its policies are contrary to American traditions and against the interest and welfare of our citizens in foreign lands."

"I have no sympathy," he continued, "with the belief that the State Department policy, despite its holier-than-thou attitude should be immune from criticism. I do not propose personally to grant it any more immunity than to any other branch of the Government."

In his prepared press release—duly censored by the D. A. R. blue pencil, Representative Fish did not hesitate to pay his further respects to the Department of State. He asserted that during the recent investigation by the House committee, of which he was chairman, into communism and revolutionary activities he received the earnest cooperation of every executive department of the Government "with the exception of the State Department."

Furnished No Information.

"I repeatedly asked the Secretary of State in writing," continued Mr. Fish, "what the policy or practice of the State Department was in carrying out the laws of Congress with reference to the admission of Communists, but he never furnished the committee with any satisfactory information. Consequently, it is a source of gratification to learn that the State Department has at last taken Communism sufficiently seriously to discover its existence, both in the United States and in foreign countries."

Representative Fish pointed out that since the Communists were expelled from Mexico, New York City has become the central headquarters for Communist propaganda and revolutionary activities in Mexico, Cuba, Panama, Central America and parts of South America.

That he bore the D. A. R. no ill will for censoring the speech he was to make before them was emphasized by the representative. "I have no word of criticism for the D. A. R., and any deletions that were made were done with my entire consent and approval. However, there is not one word in the remarks submitted that I am not prepared to substantiate at the proper time and place, or one word that I would personally change or recant."

Openly Supply Sandino Arms.

Representative Fish charged that the Anti-Imperialist League in New York City has been openly raising funds to supply arms to Sandino by which to murder American citizens in Nicaragua. He asserted his belief that Marines were not sent by any administration into Nicaragua to exploit that country, and that they had been asked to remain by the people of that nation to maintain peace and order.

He defended the United States against the constant charge of radicals that the United States is an "im-

Calvin Coolidge Says:

One of the developments stimulated by the World War is the increased attention given by our press to foreign news. Like most things in journalism it is partly a creation of the newspapers and partly a response to a public demand. No doubt now can exist as to the demand or as to the efficiency with which it is supplied.

The result that is so generally commendable is the accuracy and fairness of our principal news reports of the whole field of foreign affairs. To anyone who has a knowledge of what is printed about us abroad and who has independent sources of information concerning the daily occurrences in distant countries, the superiority of our newspapers to those abroad in securing and printing important foreign news is very striking. We are building up a body of correctly informed public opinion concerning other countries that is more in accord with the facts than their estimation of us. From the condition of strangers to be held in suspicion the rest of the world is being transformed into neighbors with whose aspirations we can sympathize and whose success we can applaud. Good will and peace are being strengthened by this better understanding.

Rum Only One Issue, Candidate Unknown, Raskob Says at Pier

JOHN J. RASKOB.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—With the assertion that he did not propose to make prohibition the single issue in 1932, Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, tonight sailed for Europe. He said also that he did not intend to dictate the party's nomine for President in 1932.

Both he nad former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who bade him bon voyage, denied that any sanctioned survey had ben made to determine the relative strength of the party's potenial candidates in 1932.

"I am no prepared to say," said former Gov. Smith, "whom I will support for the nomination."

Mr. Raskob, recalling a conference here Wednesday with Jouett Shouse, chariman of the Democratic executive committee, said the only thing discussed at that time was the proposition of raising funds to wipe out a $650,000 deficit of the national committee and give it a financial start for next year.

"I have no information concerning the relative strength of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt or of any other potential candidate," said Mr. Raskob. "No one

JENKINS RESTORED BY HOOVER'S ORDER

Chief Executive Asks Probe Into Fleet Corporation Official's Ouster.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

J. Caldwell Jenkins, last active vice president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation, who was ousted by the board of trustees at their annual meeting last week, is back on the job by virtue of an order from President Hoover.

Return of Mr. Jenkins is a temporary matter and the outcome of the fight revolving about him will not be determined until some unidentified person or agency has completed an "investigation" for the information of the President.

The President, it is said, wants to know whether the action of the trustees of the Merchant Fleet Corporation was in conformity with good administrative practice, or whether they ousted Mr. Jenkins for other reasons by simply abolishing his office.

According to those close to the President, the Chief Executive has taken no hand in the matter, and a question submitted for comment by him was ignored by Mr. Hoover at his semiweekly reception of newspaper correspondents yesterday.

Nevertheless, Mr. Jenkins was the occupant of a new office on the first floor in the Shipping Board and Fleet Corporation quarters in the Navy Building yesterday. His office had been on the third floor. When the trustees left him without a job by the simple process of electing every one else but him he moved his belongings out, but those who counted on a victory in the bag counted without T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, who has looked on Mr. Jenkins as his special protege, and Mr. O'Connor's access to the President's ear. Mr. Jenkins' new office is across the corridor from the office of Chairman O'Connor.

Just how much of a shock the ousting of Mr. Jenkins must have been to Mr. O'Connor can be gleaned from the fact that Mr. O'Connor sought to have Mr. Jenkins made president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation to succeed John R. Gordon, who died last year.

Mr. Jenkins, an interesting figure, has been in Government employ for years. He was one of the first employes of the Shipping Board when it was organized in the course of war activities. He was a minor figure when he went to the board. His pay was less than $2,000 a year. As vice president of the Fleet Corporation he was paid $15,000 a year, one of the highest paid employes on the Government pay roll, not a bad jump in the course of his fourteen years of service. He was instrumental in bringing about changes which several hundreds

FESS DENIES G. O. P. MADE RELIGION ISSUE

Admits Committee Attacked Raskob, but Says It Did Not Hit Church.

(Associated Press.)

A charge by Chairman Shouse of the Democratic national executive committee that the Republicans injected the religious issue into the last campaign was hurled back at the Democrats yesterday by Chairman Fess of the Republican national committee.

"Clearly and unquestionably Mr. Shouse did inject the religious issue in his recent San Francisco speech," the Ohioan said in a statement from Republican headquarters.

At the same time, he said, the Republican national committee circulated an anti-Raskob article by Frank Kent in the 1930 congressional campaign, but added it did not refer to the religion of Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee, and would have been distributed whether Raskob was a Methodist, a Baptist or a member of any other denomination.

He said Mr. Shouse's speech had been repudiated by several California Democratic leaders.

The latest development in the Shouse-Fess controversy came after Mr. Shouse had attacked Senator Fess' past speeches and dealing with newspapermen and denied having said in San Francisco that the Republicans bought and distributed 10,000,000 copies of a magazine containing an anti-Raskob article by Robert Cruise McManus.

Senator Fess started the controversy by referring to a San Francisco newspaper article quoting Mr. Shouse to this effect. He added it was a "deliberate lie." Mr. Shouse retorted he had been misquoted and had in fact referred to the Kent article.

In his statement yesterday Senator Fess characterized the rejoinder as "half confession and half denial." He said it was immaterial what article Mr. Shouse referred to, and added:

"Here is the vice of Mr. Shouse's action—an attempt to imply that the Republican national committee circulated a pamphlet containing an attack on Mr. Raskob because of his religion.

"The Republican national committee," he continued, "did circulate portions of an article by Mr. Kent when that Democraitc newspaperman exposed in Scribner's Magazine last fall the Raskob-Shouse-Micheison campaign to 'smear' the President of the United States.

"However, the article of Mr. Kent's, a part of which the Republican national committee reprinted in pamphlet form, did not refer to Mr. Raskob's religion in any way and was, in fact, solely a discussion of how Mr. Raskob—as a millionaire business man

LAMONT DENIES COUNTRY PLANS CUTS IN WAGES

Principal Industries Hold to Former Scales in Reconstruction Fight.

PART-TIME IS POLICY USED TO HELP LABOR

Total Weekly Pay Roll of 13,000 Factories in March Increased $13,500,000.

(Associated Press.)

A canvass of the principal industries of the United States has convinced Secretary Lamont there is no movement on foot to reduce wages. Instead, he said in a statement yesterday, he found a desire to support the present situation.

Inquiries reaching the Commerce Department since discussion of possible wage reductions began several months ago, caused the Commerce Secretary to make the survey. His findings were made public yesterday in a brief statement on which he declined to comment further. It said: "I have canvassed the principal industries, and I find no movement to reduce the rates of wages. "On the contrary there is a desire to support the situation in every way."

Hoover Report Confirmed.

The Secretary's statement followed a recent White House announcement that President Hoover was pleased there had been no wage cuts in major industries. Prevention of lower wages was one of the purposes of the White House conference of business, industrial and labor leaders called by President Hoover late in 1929.

One of the agreements reached at the conference was that wages be kept at levels then prevailing. The President was promised by industrialists they would endeavor to maintain rates and labor leaders promised to avoid strikes.

"Reports of instances of wage-cutting have reached the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Labor Department, saying some 39,000 men were affected during February. Officials, however, said these were only isolated cases.

Wage Cuts Fewer.

Commenting recently on reports of wage-cutting and statements credited to business men and bankers this was necessary, Chairman Woods of the President's emergency employment committee said his organization had found fewer wage cuts than in any other depression.

"The big employers," Mr. Woods said, "are not cutting wages, but some of the smaller ones are." He said the committee throughout its work had taken the position that "wage-cutting would be most unfortunate."

Many employers, he said, were keeping wage rates up and providing part-time work for all of their employes instead of laying off some or reducing rates and operating full time.

Labor Department officials said indications were more men were being put on full time work. During March the aggregate weekly pay roll of 13,000 manufacturing establishments increased $13,500,000 over January and 152,000 more persons were on pay rolls.

Unemployed Beat Former City Head

Texan Is Severely Battered After He Refuses to Turn Over Food.

Wichita Falls, Tex., April 24 (U.P.). J. B. Marlow, former Mayor of Wichita Falls, was beaten severely late today by a group of jobless men when he refused to surrender keys to a storeroom holding food for 3,700 of the city's unemployed. Marlow collected the funds for the food.

The "unemployed committee," demanded that Marlow allow them to distribute the foodstuffs. He refused. A fight followed. Marlow's face, neck and forehead were cut and one of his eyes was blackened. Police stopped the battle.

Twenty-five persons were held for questioning, but no charges were filed. Distribution of food will continue, officials said. They claimed the unemployed as a whole were not involved in the attack.

REFUGEES TELL TALE OF DEATH OF SANDINO AID

Bandit Lieutenant, Hid Under House, Slain by Canadian.

U. S. OBSERVATORY REPORTED SMASHED

U. S. S. Rochester Believed Near Town Rumored as Captured.

New Orleans, April 24 (A.P.).—The last of the women and children refugees of Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, arriving here today aboard the steamship Contessa, brought a detailed story of the slaying of Pedro Blandon, lieutenant of the bandit, Sandino, a few hours after the Logtown massacre.

They said he was killed in single-handed combat by A. R. Beardsley, former Canadian farmer, but now wharf superintendent at the port, who chased the bandits with a small band of Americans and native national guard.

Blandon, they said, hid under a house with four of his troops. The pursuers opened up with machine-gun fire and killed the four guards.

Beardsley then rushed the house and, with pistol in hand, dragged out Blandon, who had been hit by a bullet. As the bandit cried, "Ah, hombre!" Beardsley emptied his pistol into the man's body.

Irishman Given Safe Passage.

Some days afterward A. Murphy, an Irishman, was captured in the bandit country by Pedro Pedrone, sucbessor to Blandon. Later they came upon Blandon's body and buried it. Murphy then was given safe passage through the bandit lines.

The bodies of the Americans at Logtown were found hacked with machetes and decapitated and were buried on the spot under a requirement of Nicaraguan law.

Bandits have sent warnings to Beardsley, the refugees said, that they would take his life in exchange for Blandon's, but the Canadian has refused to leave his post.

The last American women, Mrs. Edna Benson, of Washington, D. C., wife of a Marine officer; Mrs. Mabel M. Taylor, of Omaha, Nebr., and Mrs. Martha Baxter, of Baxterville, Miss., wives of fruit company employes, said they never would have left their husbands if they had not been forced to go.

Passengers Brought From Honduras.

Mrs. Francisco Bedner, Panaman nurse, said they made her leave also.

The boat also brought in five passengers from La Ceiba, Honduras, where they said the populace was thrown into a state of terror last Saturday and Sunday on reports that Ferrera's revolutionists were marching on the town. The revolutionists did not strike at La Ceiba, but government troops took up posts outside the city, ready to meet them.

They said the government was recruiting young men from the streets, and when they left the fighting was at some distance from La Ceiba and was confined to small engagements.

Observatory Reported Destroyed.

New Orleans, April 24 (A.P.).—Wireless reports were received here today that the United States Government's weather observatory at Cabo Gracias a Dios, Nicaragua, had been demolished by bandits.

At first the dispatch was interpreted to mean that the bandits had made another assault on the town today and destroyed the observatory. Later information indicated the observatory was destroyed in the raid of April 15 and that the news had just come out.

Communication facilities with Cabo Gracias have been limited since the bandits destroyed the Tropical Radio equipment and searched the town for the operator, who was safely aboard a boat off shore.

No Report of Capture.

Managua, Nicaragua, April 24 (A. P.).—Nicaraguan national guard headquarters tonight had received no news from Puerto Cabezas concerning a report in the United States that Sandino insurgents had captured the town of Cabo Gracias a Dios.

Hughes' Red Enmity Backed by Hackworth

State Department Solicitor's Stand Taken as Administration View.

(United Press.)

Reiteration of the Hughes policy of nonrecognition of Soviet Russia came last night from the Solicitor of the State Department, Green H. Hackworth, addressing the American Society of International Law.

Quoting at length from pronouncements by Charles E. Hughes while Secretary of State, Mr. Hackworth said, in summary, that the United States has considered Russia deficient by:

1. Failure to accord respect and protection to persons and property of foreigners.

2. Failure to respect international obligations of preceding governments.

3. Failure to respect the right of other states to conduct their internal affairs free from outside interference.

"We have consistently refused to recognize the present regime in Russia because, among other things, of its failure to assure responsibility for its international obligations," Mr. Hackworth said.

This statement became significant chiefly because it is the first time an official of the Hoover administration has specifically reiterated the Hughes policy and, secondly, because it comes at a time of ferment over the Russian problem among governments, economists and business men of the President's Estimates of Appropriations Show $315,000,000 Cut.

TREASURY DEFICIT IS NOT MENTIONED

Executive Has Ordered Expenses Curtailed in All Branches.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover yesterday gave the American people a picture of Uncle Sam in the role of spender. By means of a table of figures and a statement, he showed that the estimated appropriations for the next fiscal years, that is, the fiscal year of 1932, beginning July 1 next, will be about $315,000,000 less than the estimated appropriations for the current fiscal year of 1931.

However, there was an "if" in the President's calculations.

Whether or not the Federal Government can keep down its expenditures in the next fiscal year, he pointed out, depends upon Congress. If Congress, at its session beginning next December, should pass legislation swelling the total apropriation for 1932, then the saving might be wiped out.

Deficiency Is Not Mentioned.

In this connection, a recent statement President Hoover made on taxes was recalled. In answer to agitation by Republican Progressives and a few Democrats for tax increases, the President said that a tax increase would not be necessary if Congress and the people generally cooperated with the administration to keep appropriations down to a minimum.

In his statement yesterday, the President said nothing about the deficit which the Treasury is facing as a result of heavy expenditures and reduced tax and customs receipts. This deficit, which is estimated anywhere from $500,000,000 to $800,000,000 probably will be met by the raising of money through short-term loan certificates.

The table made public by the President showed actual or estimated appropriations for three years as follows: 1930 (actual), $3,994,152,487; 1931 (estimated), $4,435,029,732; 1932 (estimated), $4,119,230,640.

The reason the appropriations for the current fiscal year of 1931, which began July 1 last, are "estimated" is that two months or more of that fiscal year remain. At the end of the fiscal year, which is June 30, some savings might have been effected. At any rate, the President has given orders to hold down expenditures all along the line.

All of Bonus Not Included.

If to the estimated appropriation for 1931 there be added the money that has been loaned out, or will be loaned out, to veterans on their bonus certificates, the total would be in excess of $5,000,000,000.

The table made public yesterday by the President, however, did not include all of this bonus loan money. It only included $112,000,000 which Congress, acting a year in advance, placed to the credit of the 1931 budget.

To liquidate the bonus certificates, Congress each year has been crediting $112,000,000 to a special fund in the Treasury. This year, in order to help meet the rush of applications for loans under the new and more liberal loan law, Congress took the 1932 credit of $112,000,000, added it to the 1931 sum, and swelled the fund by $224,000,000.

Loan Will Total $1,050,000,000.

Up until the new loan law permitting the veteran to borrow 50 per cent on his certificate was passed last March, a total of $325,000,000 had been lent to veterans on their certificates.

Gen. Frank Hines, administrator of Veterans Affairs, has now notified the President that these loans, together with loans made since March and loans that will be made on applications now pending, will total something like $1,050,000,000.

In order to raise the money to meet these demands, it not only will be necessary to issue Treasury certificates against the Treasury bonus fund of $672,000,000, but to issue certificates for additional money not secured by the Treasury fund. The money to be thus raised will be charged to the public debt.

If the 1931 appropriation shown in the President's table—the amount is

RHEEM DESCRIBES OFFICERS' POWERS

Head of Bankrupt Company Denies Juniors Were "Rubber Stamps."

Junior officers of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. had "substantial responsibilities in the affairs of the firm, and, without his assistance, completed release of deeds of trust on the Broadmoor Apartments, Edmund D. Rheem, executive vice president of the bankrupt company, yesterday told creditors.

His statement was not in harmony with previous testimony of officers that they were "merely clerks with titles," possessed no authority, and virtually served as "rubber stamps" for their youthful executive.

Rheem said J. Newton Brewer, second vice president of the company, was in charge of the "settlement" in the Broadmoor Apartments transaction, while Rheem himself was out of the city.

Asked if John H. Holmead, treasurer of the defunct firm, had "substantial responsibilities," Rheem said: "He did, if you would call signing checks 'substantial responsibility.'"

Attorney George E. Sullivan pressed the question. He asked if Holmead ever signed checks on his own initiative. It was here that the witness replied:

"I want you to understand I am making no attempt to dodge responsibility. I ran the affairs of the company. But the officers had certain duties to perform, which they performed without my direction."

All of the officers, with the exception of Luther A. Swartzell, president, were present at the hearing. Mr. Swartzell is ill in Homeopathic Hospital, which he entered a few days before the examination started. Officers have testified that he was not active in the firm's affairs.

Yesterday's questioning largely turned on the "settlement" of the Broadmoor matter, which Rheem said, was in charge of Brewer. Attorney Sullivan was not content with Rheem's explanation of the matter in which the difference betwen the $1,250,000 original trust on the Broadmoor, and the $1,100,000 later trust, was overcome by the so-called "purchase" of a $150,000 second trust note on the Broadmoor.

Sullivan insisted he could not understand the "bookkeeping processes" through which Rheem said the note

RAID ON DOCK YIELDS $5,000,000 IN DRUGS

Ile de France Search Fails; Hamburg Liner Blamed for Entry.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Narcotics valued by customs agents at $5,000,000 were found on a Hudson River pier today, climaxing a three-day fruitless search of the French liner Ile de France, on which the agents had been informed the shipment would be made.

One group of 135 inspectors had just concluded their search of the French liner when another group and police seized the seventeen cases of opium, heroin and morphine which they said had been unloaded Wednesday from the Hamburg-American liner Milwaukee.

Customs officers said the narcotics apparently had been diverted to the Hamburg liner after the Government had been "tipped" off to the shipment. They said there was nothing on the cases to indicate their intended receiver, the shipment being made "on order," thus permitting it to be turned over to anyone who could produce a proper manifest.

The fine-tooth combing of the Ile de France netted merely 110 bottles of assorted liquors scattered among 900 members of the big liner's crew.

Four in Family Killed As Blast Fires Home

Portsmouth, Ohio, April 24 (A.P.). Four members of a family of five lost their lives today when an explosion of kerosene set fire to their home 15 miles northwest of here. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crabtree and two sons, Charles, 8, and Harold, 6.

Crabtree, 40, and his wife, 35, died several hours after the blast. The children burned to death in their rooms.

Paterson, N. J., April 24 (U.P.).—The largest gambling raid in Passaic County occured today when eight detectives from the county prosecutor's office arrested 107 men in an establishment at 15 Prince street.

The detectives said the men were playing poker and dice.

Byrd Gives Balchen Credit For America's Ocean Flight

Admiral, Refusing to Make Statement Regarding Fokker's Criticism, Wonders Where "Flying Dutchman" Got "Curious Version" of Hop for Book.

Chicago, Ill., April 24 (A.P.).—To Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Bernt Balchen is and always has been the hero of the transatlantic flight of the airplane America.

The aerial conqueror of the polar regions was reluctant to discuss comment on the flight in "The Flying Dutchman," Anthony Fokker's autobiography in collaboration with Bruce Gould.

Just published, the book criticized the admiral's technique in the oceanic flight of four years ago and praised the skill of Balchen on this and other flights with Byrd.

"I have no statement to make," the admiral said. "I have not read the book."

Byrd "wondered," however, where Fokker got his "curious version" of the flight.

"There is one thing with which I heartily agree with Fokker," Byrd emphasized. "Namely, that as between Bernt Balchen and myself, Balchen did more for the success of the flight than I did by a great deal. There never has been any argument there.

"I resent," he added, "what Fokker said about Noville and Acosta.

"Acosta was piloting when we left, and his take-off was a classic; and

Los Angeles Police Believe Thieves Murdered Dr. Luigi Sabungi to Obtain Possession of Painting Concealed in Room.

Los Angeles, April 24 (A.P.).—The body of Dr. Luigi Bari Sabungi, 98-year-old antique collector, was found today with his skull crushed in his hotel room here. Police said it appeared to be murder by thieves attempting to steal an oil painting concealed in his quarters. The body was discovered by a maid. There was a deep wound in the scalp. He was last seen alive yesterday afternoon.

A search by police failed to reveal the death weapon in the room. They found the concealed painting, which they believe had been the motive for the slaying. Sabungi was said to have been political adviser for eighteen years to Abdul Hamid during his reign as Sultan of Turkey. He was a world traveler and collector of art.

The painting, which police first thought to be of great value, is a large work entitled "The Universal History of Religion," that Sabungi has exhibited as a composite masterpiece said to have been painted by a number of artists in the past 80 years.

Art dealers here said it had no art value, but that Sabungi from time to time had held private showings at which he charged a small fee. A pamphlet found among the aged victim's effects revealed he was born in Mesopotamia in 1833. It described him as a Turkish politician, globe trotter, philosopher and linguist.

$435,029,732—be stripped of all extraordinary expenditures, drought relief money and the like, it might be found to be even less than the estimated 1932 appropriation.

Building Funds Provided.

However, the sum for 1932, like that for 1931, contains funds for extraordinary building projects, designed to help unemployment.

It is true, too, that the various Government departments are always expanding. This is a normal thing. Since 1924, or thereabouts, there has been an almost continuous increase in the number of civil service workers. Even during the period of Coolidge economy, the national budget increased each year.

In his statement yesterday President Hoover said that the Cabinet had given consideration to Government expenditures at its morning meeting. In making public the table of expenditures, the President said:

"You will note that the expenditure for the present fiscal year will be about $4,435,000,000, as compared with $3,994,000,000 in the last fiscal year and as compared with the appropriations of $4,119,000,000 for the next fiscal year. These totals include only postoffice deficits, not the whole working expenditure of the Postoffice Department.

Relief Affects Budget.

"The budgets for all three years are greatly influenced by the increased expenditures for construction work in aid of unemployment, for relief to agriculture, and for increased services to veterans, but it will be seen that these increased expenditures are somewhat offset by reductions in other directions.

"The heading of public buildings and public works, amounting to $434,000,000 for this fiscal year and estimated at more than $457,000,000 for next year, includes highways, but does not include construction expenditures of the Army and Navy for military purposes, or the Veterans' Bureau, or Merchant Marine through loans from the Shipping Board, or for aviation and park improvements and sundry other minor construction items.

"The total of all construction work, including these items, is now progressing at the rate of over $725,000,000 per annum, being about $500,000,000 per annum in excess of the rate of expenditure for construction previous to the depression.

Highway Money Is Not Included.

"The expenditure shown as aids to agriculture of a total for this year of $341,000,000 includes drought relief and Farm Board expenditures, together with other expenditures of the Department of Agriculture, but does not include highway construction.

"The expenditure on veterans' relief shows an increase of about $190,000,000 for the present fiscal year, but includes $112,000,000 of the normal payment into the bonus fund for the next fiscal year, which was advanced by Congress to the present fiscal year.

"This statement of the budget does not include loans upon the bonus except so far as they are represented in the anual payment into the bonus fund, of about $112,000,000. But loans on the bonus sertificates necessarily affect the Treasury finance. Gen. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, informs me that the new loans made under the recent law, together with those already outstanding under previous law, amount to about $912,000,000. In addition to these amounts applications are at hand amounting to about $140,000,000 more, making a total of expenditure already in sight of about $1,050,000,000."

Tax Rate Reduced In Augusta County

Saving of $44,275 Planned in New Budget Adopted by Supervisors.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., April 24.—As presented at yesterday's meeting of the board of supervisors, Augusta County's budget for the ensuing year carries a 10 per cent decrease in the rate of taxation and will mean a saving of $44,275 to taxpayers.

Under the law the budget can not be adopted until a public hearing has been held, and the board has designated May 28 as the date for such a hearing.

While some other counties in the State are contemplating curtailment of school sessions because of financial embarrassment, Augusta supervisors have placed at the school board's disposal sufficient funds to permit the schools of the county to operate on a full nine months' basis in the coming session.

In addition to the tax decrease of $44,275 in the coming year and provision for school needs as outlined above, the supervisors in the budget have provided for the normal operation of all departments of the county, regular interest requirements and normal reduction of the county's indebtedness.

Peaslee Explains Scope Of International Court

Amos J. Peaslee, former president of the American branch of the International Law Association and member of the New York bar, discussed the obligatory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court of International Justice in an address yesterday morning before the American Society of International Law.

"The society of nations," Mr. Peaslee said, "in aking its invntory for 1931 of its tribunals, commissions, pacts, conventions, ratifications — optional, reciprocal and otherwise—its covenants—unilateral and bipartite—is strcitly abreast of the times. It is experiencing what some describe as overproduction; it needs a simplification and standardization of product. It needs further courage, patience, optimism and hard work."

Adherence to the "optional clause" is not, Mr. Peaslee said, the only method by which the United States can confer compulsory jurisdiction on the court. Such jurisdiction can be granted, and actually has been granted, by treaties to which the United States is already a signatory party, according to Mr. Peaslee.

Other addresses yesterday included one by Manley O. Hudson, Bemis professor of international law at Harvard University, discussing the independence of the court in its constitution and jurisdiction, and in the law to be applied, and another by Charles E. Martin, professor of political science at the University of Washington, on the legal position of war and neutrality duringthe last 25 years.

The meeting will conclude today. This morning there will be the reports of several standing committees and the election of officers for the coming year. During the afternoon there will be a meeting of the executive council, and tonight there will be a banquet at the Willard when Secretary of State Stimson, Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Representative Henry W. Temple, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs will be the principal speakers and guests of honor.

Way Tax Money Is Spent Shown in Hoover Table

A table made public yesterday by President Hoover to show how the taxpayers' money is spent. The table covers three fiscal years—1930, 1931 and 1932. The Government functions under a fiscal year scheme. The fiscal year of 1931 began July 1 last and will end June 30 next.

Jobless Actor Confesses Death of Baltimore Singer

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—The telephone pealed in the office of the St. George Hotel today, and an anxious voice came over the wire.

"This is the People's Burlesque Theater on the Bowery," it said. "Here it is curtain time and our star, Blanche Sommers, 'Baltimore Blues' singer, hasn't showed up. Whatsamatter?"

"She won't be down," a hotel attendant said. "She's dead. Strangled to death."

Over at the Mercer Street Station, unknown to the theater management, the homicide squad was finding out about it from Leander G. Stepp, unemployed actor, 32.

This is what they said he told them:

After the war, in which he was gassed, he worked hard in the theatrical business and saved $22,000. Three years ago in Baltimore he met Miss Sommers, who was 21 and blonde. Three months ago they began to plan to be married.

Bit by bit, he said, he gave her all the $22,000. He was broke and forced to take a job as barker outside a theater on the Bowery, in which a seat costs 10 cents. This morning, he said, she told him she was going to leave him for another man.

Stepp walked to the police station to give himself up.

"I just killed a lady," he was quoted as saying upon his arrival.

After they had locked him up, detectives scoffed at some parts of his story. There was no evidence, they said, that he ever had $20,000, which he declared he had carried around in his pockets and in the soles of his shoes.

He admitted, the police declared, that he had been convicted once of a narcotic offense.

On the police records the home of the dead girl was listed as 1209 Wall street, Baltimore, and that of Stepp as 609 Lanville street, same city. Stepp told detectives he once lived in Paris, Tenn.

STAND TO REJECT RUSSIA IS REITERATED BY HACKWORTH

United States and practically all Europe.

Prolongation the world-wide depression, coupled with the rising specter of an industrial Russia, producing and manufacturing on a heavy volume low-price scale, have given businessmen considerable concern. There is a feeling that the capitalist nations have allowed matters to drift, and that there is danger ahead unless organized command can be established over the situation.

In recognition of this feeling, the Hoover administration has undertaken a thorough study of the Russian problem from every aspect under the direction of a group in the State Department. It is understood this step does not necessarily mean recognition is coming, or that any change is contemplated, but rather that Mr. Hoover has directed that all available information be gathered about Russia, that the problem be analyzed in dispassionate open-mindedness, and that then it may become clearer whether any change of policy is advisable.

His first effort is to take the emotionalism out of the Russian problem, and without regard for the rosy opportunities suggested by some liberals or the dark fears suggested by some conservatives, find out what needs to be done.

The situation involves some difference of viewpoint between those who adhere to the legal reasoning of international lawyers, laid down by Hughes and others, who believe a practical business situation requires a different approach more closely based upon actual world conditions.

Quite aside from the concern of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who yesterday placed extra guards around their convention hall while Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, discussed Russian Communism, the United States—along with other governments—is finding increasing complications resulting from the Soviet experiment.

These are coming up in day to day form, as in the case of the Finnish ship which reached Providence, R. I., with a test cargo of lumber from Russia. Papers in the case reached the Treasury Department yesterday. The lumber is subject to embargo unless it can be shown there was neither forced nor indentured labor in its production. The decision in this case, due shortly, may have considerable bearing on future trade with Russia. The tariff act forbids importation of commodities produced by forced labor.

The convention of the International Chamber of Commerce here ten days hence apparently is not to be a jolly party of golfing and sightseeing, but a conference of men who helped work out the Dawes and Young plans and the International Bank of Settlements, men who do much of the international business of the world, and who are much worried over the world economic drift. They are Government officials. They are of the class sometimes regarded as masters of government in this industrial age.

They will include George Theunis, former premier of Belgium, head of vast banking, power and metallurgical enterprises; Alberto Pirelli, who was a member of the Italian delegations at the conferences on the Dawes and Young plans, the debt funding mission to the United States and the Cannes and Genoa conferences, and Owen D. Young.

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the American committee of the international chamber, said yesterday that Russia presented a difficult problem because of the conflict between the current desire for markets there and the possibility that in the end the United States and other countries would merely be assisting Russia to set up a machine which could, with low-paid and highly regimented labor, turn on capitalistic nations.

SEAT PLEASANT MAN DEAD FROM BURNS

Clothing Is Ignited by Blast When Kerosene Can Is Exploded.

Isaac Newton Hull, 35, of Seat Pleasant, died last night from burns he received yesterday morning when a can of kerosene he was pouring on a fire at his home exploded. The bottom of the can was torn off oy the blast and the flaming liquid showered Hull's body.

Mrs. Hull was burned about the hands when she attempted to beat out her husband's burning clothing. Mrs. Hull is an employe of the Veterans Bureau. Her husband was an auto mechanic.

Hull was brought to Casualty Hospital by Mack Farr a neighbor.

Yesterday's shake-up of the Maryland State police force has resulted in a number of changes among the policemen stationed or acting in Prince Georges County, the most important being the placing of Private C. W. Cubbage, formerly of Hyattsville, in charge of the substation at Laurel.

Others who will be stationed at Laurel are R. A. Rassa and M. E. Katz, former sergeants. Former Corpl. C. D. Krimm has been demoted to private and transferred to Randallstown. Former Sergt R. A. Atkinson also has been demoted and sent to Waldorf. Except for Cubbage, none of the privates has been transferred or given new assignments.

It is understood that Lieut. Robert E. Raleigh, who was indefinitely suspended for insubordination, will appeal his case to Oliver C Short, State employment commissioner, and that Harry E. Elder, junior stenographer, also suspended, may appeal. They are said to have been suspended for working in favor of a bill separating the State force from the office of commissioner of motor vehicles. They were dropped by E. Austin Baughman, present commissioner.

Lieut. Raleigh was acting in charge of the force, Capt. Harry C. Butler being ill in Walter Reed Hospital. D. Marshall Schroeder, deputy commissioner, has taken over command of the force. The changes made yesterday were effective at once.

Lieut. Raleigh and several other members of the force visited Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to point out the advantages of the separation bill but the governor said yesterday that he did not think this caused the upheavel. The bill itself was never reported out of the committee.

Several unimportant cases were tried yesterday in circuit court in Marlboro, one of them involving chicken stealing and others nonsupport.

Howard M. Dove was found guilty of nonsupport of his child, although on a similar charge alleging nonsupport of his wife he was freed. John Fred Nichols, of Cottage City, also was found guilty of nonsupport.

The jury trying Arthur White, charged with stealing ten chickens, was unable to agree. The case will be heard again next wek. The case against Ernest Catonia, charged with stealing chickens worth only $1.25, was nolle prossed when it was pointed out that he had already served six months in jail awaiting trial.

A fine of $50 was placed against William J. Rogers, of Fifth street, near G stret northwest, yesterday in police court on a charge that he allowed his car to be driven recklesly. He also was fined $5 for permitting his car to be driven without lights, and 10 for permitting an unlicensed driver to operate the machine.

Rogers' companion, Albert P. Ladoucer, of North Carolina avenue, near Ninth street southeast, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while drunk, and wasfi ned $100. They were arrested by State Policeman W. A. Rogers.

Payment for the town officers of Mount Rainier, which is authorized by a bill passed by the recent Legislature and now before the voters of the town, is not contrary to civil service rules, according to an opinion of John T. Doyle, secretary to the civil service commission.

Mr. Doyle's opinion, contained in a letter sent to Floyd B. Mathias, one of the town councilmen, states that the payment of a salary does not alter the privilege granted in 1912 allowing Government employes to act as town officers in nearby communities.

"It is not the opinion of this office," the letter says, "that the passage of a bill in the Maryland Legislature to authorize payment of salaries of $200 to the mayor and $125 each to the members of the council of the town of Mount Rainier would alter in any degree the privilege granted Federal employes residing in Mount Rainier to hold municipal office in that town."

Funeral services will be held Monday for William L. Kearney, retired employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, who died at his home in Hyattsville yesterday at the age of 75. After services at the home at 2 o'clock, burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery. The Rev. Clyde Brown, rector of Pinkney Memorial Church in Hyattsville, will officiate.

Mr. Kearney had been a resident of the town for 21 years, living with his brother, Stephen A. Kearney. He had been in poor health for a year, and had been confined to his bed for several weeks. He entered the bureau in 1887, and was superintendent of the laundry at the time of his retirement. He was a native of Washington. In addition to his brother, he is survived by a sister, Miss Laura May Kearney.

Mothers of students in the home economics section of the University of Maryland have been invited to visit the school today for a trip over the campus and an inspection of the work of the students.

Theprog ram plans a series of alks by the students on their scholastic and extra-curricular activities, to be followed by a luncheon. In the afternoon the guests will watch a baseball game between the university and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Tobacco Grading Study Object of Short Course

Richmond, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—The tobacco section of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics in cooperation with State Agricultural colleges, division of markets, and extension services, of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, today announced a short course in sorting and grading flue-cured tobacco.

The course will be held at Patterson Hall (N. C.) State College, Raleigh, May 11 to 15.

ROLLICKING RENO

By J. F. McDONALD

Reno Gaming Industry Dominated by 2 Men

James McKay and William Graham Rule While "Tex" Hall Also Is Prominent; Jack Dempsey May Enter as Partner.

Reno, Nev., April 24.—James McKay was born, he tells you, in a mining camp, one of those now vanished settlements, perhaps, that fringe the California border, near the Ralston desert.

And, when the old Consolidated Mill at Goldfield was turning out its millions yearly, loading the pockets of George Wingfield and his partners, McKay was one of that young army of technicians, miners, prospectors and camp followers that made the mushroom camp a roaring desert Mecca.

He was a "solution man" with five large, clanking silver dollars as his daily wage, and, like the rest, he dropped them on gaming tables.

History does not tell when or at which of the old halls of chance McKay struck pay dirt. It may have been at Goldfield. It may have been at Rawhide or at Ely, where "Tex" Rickard owned "The Northern," with the silver dollars set into the floor. More likely it was later in the day, for Andrew Volstead's glum ensetment had clamped down on the new West when James McKay came drifting into Reno with a pocket full of gold—not a fortune nothing to retire on, but a good piece of working capital.

His luck held good. It threw him in with William Graham and "Tex" Hall, former gamblers, with an eye to possibilities, with, like McKay, a little money and an inside knowledge of the dice and faro trade.

Out of that partnership has grown what, as this series on "Rollicking Reno" goes to press, amounts to nearly a monopoly of gambling in this moneyed little city. Three well buttressed fortunes have been built out of it by the Messrs. Hall, McKay and Graham. McKay, at least, is reckoned as a millionaire.

And, if the three can hold their place ahead of the parade now that the Nevada Legislature has licensed open gambling, that head start—if the gambling industry pans out—ought to be worth coined dollars by the truckload.

It was when the State repealed its prohibition law the Hall, McKay and Graham syndicate began its operations.

Those were days of mushroom growths. All over Reno, and notably in the two famous alleys, Douglas and Lincoln, speakeasies sprouted, with gambling games in their back rooms.

The syndicate, like others, had its properties in those two alleys, and as the courts added restrictions to the burden of the prohibition agents and as enforcement crumbled, Hall, McKay and Graham watched the competition grow. From time to time they made a purchase, and, with the purchase, a consolidation.

Out of their wary buying grew what today is Reno's best-known gambling place, the Bank Club, on a main street of the town.

Just before the passage of the gambling bill, the Bank Club was the only well-established place that operated in the town. Careful absorption of their rivals, distressed by competition, left the syndicate the sole survivor in the field.

Liquor never has been sold inside the club rooms—now moved from their basement quarters, stone-walled, windowless and crossed by steam pipes, into a ground-floor suite.

The club drew patrons otherwise. Not the least of its attractions, to the moneyed visitors spending three months in Reno for "the cure," was atmosphere.

Under the low ceilings of the club, before the green-topped tables and the dealers with their eye shades and their sleeve guards, men in evening dress rubbed elbows with the desert roughnecks come to Reno for a fling.

You would find Indians there, and cowboys, lumberjacks in heavy boots, Mexicans, Chinese from San Francisco, all the votaries of luck, a panorama of the gambling world.

Women Admitted to Tables.

When, in the post-prohibition era, women invaded barrooms, the Bank Club broke the ancient Western precedent. For some years, now, women have been admitted to the tables.

A rival gambling house, across the street, operated by less active entrepreneurs, was taken over and consolidated recently. Another hall, right at the back door of the Bank Club, yielded some two years ago, and closed its doors. Reports were current at the time the Bank Club bought out the owners.

Even since the open gambling law was passed, there has been little competition—though that may come later. So far, two much smaller places have begun operation. But the Bank Club still remains supreme.

So far, so good. So much for craps and chuck-a-luck, faro and Klondike, the traditional amusements of the West in the only slightly modified surroundings of the golden age.

Open the Willows.

But Reno has its money visitors, visitors with Paris gowns and diamonds—and the night club habit. Messrs. Hall, McKay and Graham studied on the problem, saw a source of revenue and bought an ancient board hotel called Rick's place, where a golden-smiling gentleman from Galveston once trained, in loud, checked cap and baggy sweater, for a world's championship affair with big Jim Jeffries.

They named the place the Willows from the trees they planted round it. They refurnished it with neo-Chinese decorations, called in a chef from San Francisco—and installed roulette and vingt-et-un.

Hall, the part owner, was made manager, and the games became no-limit games. Reports of big-time winnings and of larger losses trickle out occasionally. And Reno hears, from time to time, there is no need to carry hip-flasks to the Willows.

The rambling old hotel, with its wide porches and its grass plot, has become the leading night club of the city. Evening dress, not eye shades, is the dealer's costume there.

But that is not the end of Messrs. Hall, McKay and Graham's ventures. A few years ago a group of California promoters built, on the shores of Lake Tahoe, a log hotel, done in the manner of a hunting lodge.

Half of it stands in California and half Nevada, but neither of the States furnished a plethora of patrons—until Graham and McKay bought in.

They put in gambling rooms, on the Nevada side, and duplicated the high play established at the Willows. Appealing especially to the divorce-trade resident in Reno, they painted a black line down through the center of the dance floor and the dining room.

The divorce laws call for consecutive Nevada residence. When you dine or when you dance, you are warned, carefully, that beyond that line Nevada ceases. Seekers of divorce decress stay on the Nevada side.

To Enlarge Quarters.

The Cal-Neva is the name of the resort, and, like the other doings of the syndicate, it has proved profitable. This summer, with the wide open gambling laws to bring in trade, the gambling rooms will be enlarged. When they are finished, the promoters boast, the Cal-Neva will be the nearest thing on this side of the ocean to the gambling halls of Monte Carlo.

Jack Dempsey, by that time, may be an associate. Since he has been in Reno reports have had it that he is dealing with the syndicate for a share in the Cal-Neva.

The partnership has had little trouble in its operations. Hall, McKay and Graham stand well with the officials of the city, State and county. They have not been unwilling, in times of stress and strain, to contribute time—and money—to political campaigns. Their beneficences, gifts to campaigns to advertise the town, to charity and to good causes of the kind, are large and frequent.

Division of Interests.

As things stand now, McKay, onetime $5-a-day miner, has charge of the active management of the properties, and he and Graham dominate the gambling industry of Reno. "Tex" Hall, his interests less widely scattered, sticks to the Willows.

Their activities can not be called a racket. The monopoly is strictly legal and pacific. There have been no gambling wars in Reno. Consolidation and bigger profits have given the gambling industry here a certain standing, financial, social and political.

Doubtless, under the regime of open gambling, there will be rivals for the syndicate's returns. Doubtless, the syndicate means to keep its present-day preeminence.

Whether peaceful methods will prevail is still a question. So far there has been no threat of really earnest competition.

The fifth article of this series, published tomorrow, will tell the story of Mayor E. E. Roberts, the arch-priest of legalized gambling, now up for reelection.

One Dies, Two Hurt In Shooting Affray

Officers Say Jealous Man Shot Rival, Woman and Self.

Covington, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—Charles Hawes, jr., 28, a truck driver, was dead today; George Bowles, of Barber, Va., was in a hospital at Clifton Forge with dangerous gunshot wounds, and a woman was recovering from a minor wound as the result of a shooting affair here last night.

A coronre's jury today found that Hawes came to his death from pistol shot wounds inflicted by Bowles. Police said they learned that Bowles shot and killed Hawes, wounded Mrs. Cecil Brown in the arm and then turned the weapon upon himself.

Officers said Bowles, a married man, had become jealous of the attentions shown Mrs. Brown by Hawes.

Maryland's Oyster Season Ends Today

Plentiful Supply of Crabs Reported to State Game Commission.

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (A.P.).—Baltimore's oyster season ends tomorrow and officials of the conservation commission estimated approximately 1,700,000 bushels had been caught since the opening of the season September 1.

The time limit for dredging and scraping operations expired March 15 and tongers stopped last Wednesday. The oystermen, however, were given an additional ten days to dispose of catches on hand.

The crab season opens Thursday and the commission members said reports indicate a plentiful supply in Maryland waters.

It would cost $2.250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

MRS. HOOVER GIVEN SCHOLASTIC HONOR

Goucher College Confers Degree as New Head Is Inaugurated.

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover was honored as a scholar here today as Dr. David Allan Robertson was inaugurated as president of Goucher College.

The First Lady, attired in black cap and gown, was presented with a scroll entitling her to admittance of laws to her string of honors, Doctor, and a yellow hood was draped about her shoulders.

Honorary degrees also were given to three other women distinguished in different lines of endeavor:

Miss Lizette Woodworth Reese, of Baltimore, lyric poet; Dr. Winifred Clara Cullis, of the University of London, educator, and Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, research physician.

Aided Difficult Translation.

Mrs. Hoover's degree was in recognition of her part in translating Agricola's De Re Metallic, the first great treatise of mining and metallurgy, written by Georg Bauer, German scientist, in 1530, and also for her work in social welfare, notably the Girl Scouts. The translation was made in 1912.

"The translation of this classic from the Latin was long thought impossible, because of the technical terms used," said Dr. Thaddeus H. Thomas, of the Goucher faculty, in making the presentation. "Mr. Hoover's training as an engineer solved this difficulty, and the translation has been accepted as a great feat of scholarship."

Mrs. Hoover arrived by train from Washington early in the afternoon, held a short reception in an anteroom of the theater before the exercises started, and then took a place in the academic procession of Goucher students, faculty and representatives of other institutions in this country and abroad which moved up to the platform.

Returns to Capital by Auto.

After the exercises she returned to the White House by motor car.

Dr. Robert A. Milliken, Nobel prize winner in physics; Dr. Cullis, and the new college president, Dr. Robertson, made short addresses. Tonight a dinner was given by the trustees of Goucher, a girls' college, for Dr. and Mrs. Robertson.

The new president, a graduate of the University of California, has been acting head at Goucher since fall. He was assistant director of the American Council of Education at Washington when he was elected president last June.

FISH RAPS STIMSON'S OFFICE FOR ITS POLICY TOWARD REDS

perialistic bully," and said that if certain European nations had been in our position they would have seized all of South and Central America and Mexico by this time.

Representative Fish expressed his belief that the revolutionary aspect of Communism is not as serious in the United States as in the nations bordering on Soviet Russia. He reminded his audience that Soviet Russia is the greatest military power in the world today and deplored the fact that in its attack on religion 12,000,000 children in Soviet Russia are being taught to hate God and religion. It is the first time in the history of the world that any nation has ever tried to wipe out all forms of religion.

Praised Labor Federation.

Mr. Fish praised the American Federation of Labor in his concluding remarks for its battle against Communism in the front lines of the struggle against it for fourteen years.

The United States is without naval bases or stations at points strategic for its naval purposes, United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, declared last night in a speech made by him before the Congress of the D. A. R.

Senator Moses further pointed out that an adequate navy is needed by this country for the protection of its ocean-borne commerce, "which is in its entirety greater than that carried under any other flag which sails the seven seas."

"In percentages of geographic distribution of external sea-borne trade," continued Senator Moses, "we stand 2 per cent above our nearest rival in trade with Europe; we show an equal preponderance of percentage in our trade with Asia and Oceania. We top them by 3 per cent in our trade with South America and we lag but 7 per cent in total trade with Africa and with the entire area of North America."

Have Never Attained Parity.

"The basis of naval parity which was promised to us, which we agreed to accept we have never yet been able to attain," the senator reminded his audience. "Even with such parity we would still suffer from a disadvantage," he continued, "because most of our trade is transoceanic in its character, while that of our competitors is coastal in its essential nature."

"It is amazing," exclaimed the senator, "to note the arguments which have been flung at us whenever we have entered a conference for naval disarmament. We have been constantly told that trade necessities of others are such as to require them to possess cruisers of a certain speed, tonnage and armament, while we are blandly invited to accept an inferior type of ship."

Senator Moses was humorously sarcastic when he remarked "I have sometimes thought that foreign delegates to naval disarmament conferences must have taken their view of these publications within our own borders which seek constantly to inculcate the opinion that a large majority of Americans are morons. The crying pity of it is that these opinions have been taken up by no inconsiderable portion of our own citizens and that the forces of organized propaganda and publicity which exist in such manifold fashion nowadays have been applied to the task of convincing the Congress of the validity of these views."

Organizations Center Here.

Senator Moses discussed in conclusion the fact that in Washington are to be found headquarters of more than one organization whose purpose is to render the United States wholly defenseless except from the panoply which virtue provides. "The officers of these organizations are as alert as they are fanatical, as plausible as they are impudent and far more effective than either their cause or their number warrants.

"I believe that no inconsiderable number of those thousands can be shown to have been beguiled into membership by an appeal in the sacred name of peace, a peace which all the thinking world holds as an ideal, but a peace which probably can not be even measurably attained until human nature has undergone a most complete transformation."

Maj. Gen. William G. Everson, chief of the Militia Bureau, United States Army, another speaker of last night, took as his topic "Our Citizen Army," in which he said that in American war the burden had always been borne by citizen soldiers and that there is a citizen responsibility to put on the uniform and a citizen responsibility that includes every man and woman, every boy and girl.

Costs $6.63 Per Capita.

Gen. Everson said that the present cost of national defense is $6.63 per year per capita, less than a postage stamp a day.

A resolution of sympathy for Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and her daughter, Paulina, was unanimously adopted in the morning session, condoling with them over the recent death of the Speaker of the House, Nicholas Longworth.

Other resolutions which were adopted included the one calling for the registration of aliens and restriction of immigration, a resolution requesting Congress, immediately on meeting next December, to authorize and appropriate money to build up the Navy to London Treaty limits by 1936; resolutions urging Americans to patronize American ships, wherever possible, to support chemical warfare and the citizens military training camps; a resolution opposing the recognition of Soviet Russia by this Government, and also a resolution urging Congress to consider and act upon the findings of the House committee on communistic activities headed by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, and still another one to furnish chapters of the society with study courses on international trade relations, in order that women may use their influence to prevent recurrence of such economic disturbances as exist today.

Approve Oath for Teachers.

In the group of resolutions adopted by the congres, one was heartily approved which called for the oath of allegiance as a requisite from teachers in the schools and colleges of the land.

Because of the services of Richard Henry Lee, the signer of the Declaration of Independence, his cousin, Light Horse Harry Lee, and 50 other members of the Lee family who have given notable national service, the congress commended and encouraged the Lee Memorial Foundation in its work to restore Stratford Hall, in Virginia, the birthplace and ancestral home of the Lees.

Rumors of a Communist demonstration outside Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon during the national defense session, at which Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., was to speak, brought out a special police guard, and all doors were guarded by police details. The D. A. R. officials denied that these precautions had been taken because of the receipt of threatening letters.

An ovation was given to Mrs. William Sherman Walker, chairman of national defense, when she made her annual report. She said that there was increased interest in national defense throughout the rank and file of the D. A. R., and in many States the chapters had been able to do much in interesting young people in this work. "The country is awakening to the realization that we are still far below in strength the provisions of the London Naval Treaty," exclaimed Mrs. Walker, "and day by day we are losing time needed in preparation for building up to the terms of the London Treaty before we have to meet with other nations assembled in the coming disarmament conferences."

Red Literature in Libraries.

Speaking of the activities of the national defense chairmen in the States working under her committee Mrs. Walker declared that some of them had detected the appearance of Communist literature in a few public libraries. In other instances Communists were detected as starting the runs by whispering campaigns, breaking down the confidence of the people. Some chapters have taken the initiative of pledging themselves not to buy anything made in Soviet Russia.

Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, in his remarks on "The Changed Position of the United States," declared that interest in foreign affairs is growing in this country. He said that the total exclusion of orientals "even today is an irritating factor of no small importance in our relations with Japan."

Twenty thousand aliens unlawfully in this country, he pointed out, would be deported this year and it is possible that thus, for the first time in American history, emigration will be larger than immigration.

Nine million aliens are in the United States at the present time, Dr. Healy asserted, in spite of our nationality laws which give citizenship to all persons born in our territory. On the other hand, 400,000 Americans are living permanently abroad, scattered in all corners of the globe.

Predicts Great Merchant Marine.

He expressed the belief that a merchant marine, second to none, will be a reality in the near future.

The reports of national chairmen were completed at yesterday's sessions.

Incensed by the information that secret propaganda had been used against her, Mrs. James Trottman, of Milwaukee, Wis., one of the defeated candidates for vice president general in the elections of Thursday, issued a statement last night in which she declared:

"The source of the public attack that was made upon me as a candidate for the office of vice president general, N. S. D. A. R., is known.

"The statement that I am a pacifist and a Socialist was both false and malevolent.

"My outstanding policies, as State regent, were uncompromisingly for national defense, in opposition to communism in our schools and universities, strengthening our State organization as part of our national society, and effective work in support of the policies of our national D. A. R. administration.

"So far as party politics is concerned, I have never taken an active part, and I think it would be dangerous to have our D. A. R. influenced by permitting outside politics to become influential in D. A. R. affairs.

"The statements made against me, as all our Wisconsin daughters know, were unfair and unconscionable, and even wicked."

Miss Boardman Tells of Relief.

The 582,000 families in the drought section of the United States were given relief and food by the American Red Cross during December, 1930, and January, February and March, 1931, according to a statement made by Miss Mabel Boardman in her speech last night.

The $10,000,000 asked for drought relief by the Red Cross was contributed by March 17 and it is believed that that this will be adequate to meet the needs, Miss Boardman continued.

Miss Boardman discussed the refusal of the Red Cross to administer a proposed appropriation by Congress of $25,000,000. She said one reason it could not do it was because the Red Cross is primarily a volunteer organization, and was never intended to be a subsidized governmental agency.

"To become such," she said, "would destroy the great purpose of its being. Moreover, by administering Government funds it would lose much of its independent action. Politics would creep in, unjust demands might be made upon these funds by States, communities and individuals, and complaints to senators and representatives would lead to endless interference in Red Cross administration. The remarkable and inspiring sense of obligation that the people of this country feel toward the Red Cross in supporting its activities would be seriously impaired."

Miss Boardman pleaded with the society to use its influence to obtain a larger membership for the Red Cross. She urged that its war membership of 20,000,000 persons be equaled.

DR. G. M. KOBER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Heart Disease Proves Fatal to Dean Emeritus of G. U. Medical School.

America lost one of her foremost men of practical science and best known educators by the death yesterday morning of Dr. George Martin Kober, 81, dean emeritus of Georgetown University Medical School and creator of the Kober Foundation, whose annual awards in recent years have done much to promote medical research.

Heart disease was the cause of his death. He had been ill for more than a year at his home, 1819 Q street northwest, and had been unable to take part in public affairs or those connected with the university during this time.

Dr. Kober had been a resident of the District since 1890. He came to America from Alsfeld, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, where he was born, at the instance of his father, who was a revolutionist and who desired that his son become a national of another country than the fatherland. He obtained a place with the Hospital Corps of the Army at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and it was there, under the tutelage of Surgeon Joseph J. B. Wright, that the young man began his premedical course.

Ordered to Capital in 1871.

He was ordered to Washington in 1871 to the office of the surgeon general of the Army. He entered medical school at Georgetown at this time. This same institution later conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws and doctor of literature.

Dr. Kober remained in the Army until 1890. He was cited for services rendered during pursuit of Indians on the Western plains.

He became interested and connected with Georgetown University Hospital shortly after his resignation from the Army. He designed the Tuberculosis Hospital here and for that work was awarded a medal at the Sixth International Congress on Tuberculosis held here in 1908. At the Paris International Exposition in 1900 he received a gold medal for his activity in the erection of sanitary houses at reasonable rentals for wage earners.

In 1906 he was made president of the Association of American Medical Colleges. He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Medical Association, the American Public Health Association and a member of several other medical organizations, including the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States. At one time he served as president of the Medical Association of the District. He was a past master of the Masonic Lodge of California, and was also identified with the Monday Evening Club, the Social Hygiene Society and the Cosmos Club.

Dean of Medical School.

Dr. Kober was active dean of the Georgetown Medical School from 1901 to 1928, when he retired. He was the author of a number of books on medicine, surgery and sanitary and anthropological subjects.

In 1889 and 1890 Dr. Kober called the attention of District officials to sewage pollution of the Potomac River, indicating this as an important factor in the prevalence of typhoid fever in Washington.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Medical Science Building. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of the university, announced that special services would be held in Gaston Hall in the form of a memorial. The date has not been set.

RHEEM DENIES JUNIOR OFFICERS SERVED ONLY AS RUBBER STAMPS

was first bought from the Broadmoor Corporation to allow for the release, and later sold back to E. C. Ernst and Harry M. Bralove, owners of the Broadmoor.

Jokes With Questioner.

Time and again Rheem repeated his explanation; gave illustration after illustration of the bookkeeping involved, then, together with his interrogator, became good naturedly facetious in his responses.

Rheem said the note in effect was taken as security for $150,000 advanced to make up the difference in the two trusts, and that this sum was charged to the company's "loans account."

"Who is this Mr. Loan, and where does he live?" asked Sullivan.

"He lives right here in this building," was Rheem's response. Afterward he asked if Sullivan wanted him to refer to the item as "Mr. Loan's account."

Later, when Sullivan pressed Rheem on how many of the Broadmoor notes were outstanding and how many had been held by the company before the release, the witness protested his questions were "an insult to a person's intelligence."

"Do you know that there were about $17,000,000 in notes handled for clients through this office?" he asked. "Do you expect me to remember how many were held by each client?"

Refuses to Answer Question.

Sullivan brought out that the New York Life Insurance Co.'s check for $1,011,000 was deposited in Riggs National Bank February 18, 1930, to provide for release of the original trust on the Broadmoor; that $97,237 was on deposit there at the time; and that on the same day $121,519 was withdrawn from the bank. He made the point that the $986,873 balance was not sufficient to pay off noteholders.

Rheem declined to reply to the question that followed:

"Why was the fund in Riggs bank steadily depleted for payment of other persons than those holding notes on the Broadmoor?"

The referee ruled Rheem need not reply if he thought his answer might incriminate him.

Loss to Company Denied.

Sullivan asked why the company matured the Broadmoor notes at that time. Rheem said the company anticipated fresh commissions, and felt it was not injuring its clients by paying them a bonus of two months interest.

"Don't you know they haven't even received the principal?" asked Sullivan.

"No, I don't," said the witness.

Questioned by a Post reporter following the hearing, Rheem said that far from constituting a "loss" to the firm, the $150,000 invested in a second trust Broadmoor note to make up the amount of the original trust was likely to result in a profit.

In selling the note back to the Broadmoor Corporation, he said, Swartzell Rheem & Hensey received $75,000 and two valuable lots at Connecticut avenue and Brandywine street. The smaller of the two lots has already been sold for $42,000, he said.

Query Draws Objection.

Rheem said Sullivan's point that the company only had $986,873 in Riggs Bank on the day the $1,250,000 original Broadmoor trust was released "didn't mean a thing," insisting his firm often had accounts in as many as a dozen banks at the same time.

In the course of his questioning Sullivan attempted "to show there was no justifiable reason" why the company should not have notified all of the Broadmoor noteholders when the trust was released. The referee objected to his detailed questioning on work that could be accomplished by a stenographer, and this line of inquiry was abandoned.

The Ponce de Leon Apartments will be taken up when hearings are continued next Tuesday afternoon.

Cut in Real Estate Taxes Is Discussed

Virginia Association Group Opens Two-Day Meeting in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—Ways and means of obtaining reductions in real estate taxes were under discussion at a conference of real estate owners and dealers, which opened here this afternoon, under the auspices of the tax relief committee of the Virginia Real Estate Association, with W. Ludwell Baldwin, of Norfolk, acting as chairman.

The symposium was called by officials of the association who have expressed the belief that real estate taxes are too high and that real estate owners are bearing too large a share in governmental costs.

William R. Morton and Hartwell K. Hawthorne, of this city, are representing the Charlottesville Real Estate Board at the conference, which will continue through tomorrow.

Some of the suggestions designed to bring about reductions in real estate taxation include recommendations that the State take over a greater share of the cost of education, a large part of this cost now being borne by the cities. Another suggestion is that the State return to the cities a portion of the gasoline tax for the upkeep, repairs and construction of city streets.

Virginia Compiles Farm Associations

Business Organizations in State Are Listed for Free Disrtibution.

Richmond, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—The Virginia Division of Markets announced today that the list of agricultural business organizations in the State, revised for 1931, has just been completed and is ready for distribution upon application.

It contains dairy cattle, including Ayshire, Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey and dairy herd improvement associations, and poultry; cooperative livestock marketing and shipping associations; live stock improvement associations, beef cattle, general short horns, Hereford, dairy, creamery and cheese associations; fruit and vegetable organizations, organized for selling and educational; farmers' clubs; managers of farm bureaus, managers of farmers' union exchanges, and seed, tobacco, peanuts, horses, bees and rabbits organizations.

2 WOMEN RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS BY GAS

Wife of Chevy Chase Doctor and Maid Are Revived by Firemen.

Two women who had been overcome by carbon monoxide gas from a water heater lastn ight were revived by members of the Chevy Chase Volunteer Fire Department and the Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department.

Mrs. Thomas J. Howerton, 50 years old, wife of Dr. Howerotn, osteopath, remained at her home after tretment, and her colored maid, Etta Gullash, 23, was taken to Emergency Hospital in the Washington Fire Rescue Squad ambulance.

The women were discovered in the cellar of the Howerton home, 101 Virgilia street, Chevy Chase, Md., by Miss A. Denable, a friend of Mrs Howerton, who called at the house to visit the doctor's wife. Receiving no response when she rang the front doorbell, Miss Denable went to the back door and discovered the two women on the floor of the cellar. She called the firemen and Dr. R. L. Thompson, who gave first aid after dragging them from the house to the lawn.

Mrs. Howerton revived quickly under the inhalator, but the colored girl was more affectde nad was ordered to the hospital. The women were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes generated by a gas water heater, the vent pipe of which had become disconnected, police say.

Conn Wins Acquittal In Court at Richmond

Milton Conn, Washington attorney, was cleared in a Richmond court yesterday of a charge of reckless driving in connection with the death of his sister, Mrs. Florence Greenberg, in an auto crash near Richmond, April 12. Police charged that the lawyer was operating the car in which Mrs. Greenberg was riding and which left the road and overturned after Conn tried to pass another machine.

Conn and three other passengers were not seriously injured. Mrs. Greenberg was the wife of Louis Greenberg, also an attorney here. Conn lives on University place, near Euclid street northwest.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 24.—Trial of John G. Faircloth, charged with aiding and abetting misapplication of funds of the First National Bank of Mount Rainier, Md., was continued until Monday after second day's hearing today in United States District Court.

Faircloth was indicted with Clarence P. Schatz, former cashier of the bank, who is charged with actual misapplication of $39,000. Testimony has been that money was removed from the bank by kiting of checks.

Schatz, who is testifying on behalf of the Government, told the jury he had sent a check to New York knowing it to be worthless, and that he had done it with the knowledge of Faircloth, and to protect the Mayflower Publishing Co., of Washington, of which Faircloth was president and Schatz an officer.

Other checks, signed by Faircloth, which were likewise worthless, Schatz said he carried as cash items on the bank balance to have his accounts in shape for an examination by the bank comptroller.

First Annual City-Wide
BRIDGE TOURNAMENT
Conducted by The Washington Post

Who Are the Champion Bridge Players of Washington?

The question has never been answered to the satisfaction of Washington's 25,000 bridge enthusiasts.

An opportunity to settle all arguments is now offered by The Washington Post.

Contract and Auction fans will be given a chance to test their skill.

The champion players of Washington, including a 25-mile radius, will be known, and rewarded with trophies donated by The Washington Post.

Separate tournaments will be provided for both experts and average players so that full opportunity will be given the newcomers to the game as well as the seasoned players to demonstrate their ability.

Details of the Tournament Will Be Developed Daily in The Washington Post

1. The tournament will be held May 14, 15 and 16 at the New Shoreham Hotel.

2. Entries will be accepted from persons living in Washington or within a twenty-five (25) mile radius.

3. Play will be conducted for teams of four, teams of two or individuals; or such parts of the foregoing plan as entries warrant.

4. The conduct of the tournament will be in the charge of a committee on arrangements. The committee's action in accepting entries, making rules and governing play shall be final.

5. Prizes to the winning teams and individuals will be awarded by The Washington Post.

6. The tournament will be divided into two classes: Class A for advanced players; Class B for intermediate players.

7. Play in both classes will be provided in both contract and auction bridge. Entrants should designate which form of the game—contract or auction—and which class they desire to enter.

8. Clubs and other organized groups of bridge players may enter one or more teams in any classification of the tournament.

AD PRIZE WINNER TRIED REPEATEDLY

Sergt. Maj. Kuster Kept On Striving for Success in Post Contest.

Charles Finney, advertising director of Goldenberg's, Howard Berry, advertising director of Lansburgh's and Jesse Ramsdell, advertising director of Parker-Bridget Co. selected that prize winning ad of the Associated Bakery Unions, written by Sergt. Maj. George B. C. Kuster, Fort Humphreys, Va., who received his inspiration from the statements and letter, published in last Sunday's Post, of Dr. W. C. Fowler, District health officer.

The other prize winning ads selected by three judges appeared on page 10 of Friday's Post. If your name is not among those listed, keep on trying. Make it be there at the close of the combined third and fourth week May 6. Over 500 prizes will be given; you stand a chance to win one. Prizes are already in the mail for the winning contestants of the second week of this ad-writing contest.

To be a winner stick-to-it-iveness counts. Sergt. Maj. Kuster has sent in 20 ads each week since the contest started. The more ads you write the more chance you have of winning. Now that the third and fourth week have been combined into one ad writing period, your opportunities of winning are doubled. Instead of each concern giving five prizes weekly, they are now giving fifteen for this combined period. That means over 500 people will win prizes. Now is the time to write your ads and send them in. Don't overlook all those special weekly prizes that these 35 participating concerns are giving to the author of the best ads about their products or services.

Announce $100 Winner May 7.

Be sure and tune in on all stations announcing the $100 prize winner May 7. Over Station WOL, at 9:15 o'clock last Thursday night, the announcer of that delightfully entertaining program of the Fairfax Farms Dairy Maids, after telling the Zain fan listeners that Sergt. Maj. George B. C. Kuster had won the $100 cash prize, announced that one bottle of the cool, refreshing chocolate milk, for which the Fairfax Farms Dairies, Inc., are known, would be given to the authors of every ad written about their product. Get that pencil sharpened and write your ad right now. Keep a picture of that nourishing drink in your mind and the rest should be easy. Here is a tip: Pay them a visit and jot down all the material you think would make a good ad. There is that buttermilk they advertise for milady instead of face creams. Feature their "Hi-test" Jersey milk from T. B. tested cows. The milk that ranks with the best and cheapest in the country, obtainable only at the dairy. It can not be purchased at stores.

Your ad may be a poem, a witty phrase or anything which will explain the services or product of the concern effectively to the public. When milk is mentioned we just naturally think of health.

Speaking of health, the Associated Bakery Unions, makers of health-giving bread and winners of this week's contest, go on the air every Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock over Station WMAL. They announce the winner of that $100 cash prize for the best amateur ad, so don't miss them. It may be your name that you will hear at the close of the combined third and fourth week. Remember, only those who do not write ads have no chance of winning. Read the rules carefully. Get your pencil and paper ready and start today.

Suggestions Given for Ads.

Here are some suggestions:

When you think of Ford cars you think of Steuart Motor Co. at Sixth and K. The company as dependable as the car they sell. The car with the smart appearance, designed for comfort, which makes driving a real pleasure. Call on the Steuart Motor Co., largest of Washington's many dealers in Fords, and let them tell you the interesting story of their rapid growth, built on reliability, fair dealing and services.

Goldsmith & Co., that old reliable jewelry firm which has passed its golden anniversary in business. When you visit them you better not have plans for any definite appointments because once inside it is difficult to take your eyes from their dazzling gems, sparkling neckwear and exquisite silver, not to mention the other complete lines they carry. They have the finest in jewelry with prices that are right.

The Potomac Electric Power Co., the firm that speaks for itself. Every time you push one of those buttons and get that "matchless service" which this concern makes possible, try to think what it would be like without this service and ads will come easily to your mind.

Every one who writes an ad can win a prize. We want more of you to join the Zain ad fans. Now is the time to write your ad. Don't wait and then wish you had. Mail them early. Give the judges plenty of time to give your ads careful consideration.

Post Gives Added Prize.

Wade right in. Don't stand back and watch your friends and neighbors having lots of fun and winning prizes. Win one yourself. Remember that $100 cash prize is now $110, providing you are a subscriber to the daily and Sunday Washington Post. The Post is giving an extra $10 to the winner of the $100 cash prize, and $50 to the winer of the $1,000 grand prize at the close of the contest if the winner is a regular subscriber to The Post.

A final suggestion: Start your day right, with a cup of that "just wonderful" Wilkins coffe and a Zain ad. Your toast may be too brown and your eggs too well done, but Wilkins coffee is always the same, always delicious. It clears your mind and makes a wonderful stimulant to produce Zain ads. Try a cup; it will unlock your door of original ads and may win that first prize of $100 for you.

Inadvertently the five prize winners of the L. P. Steuart & Bro. were omitted in the list of prize winners of the 35 participating concerns in The Post Zain Ad-Writing Contest which was published in Friday's Post. Following is the list of these five prize winners for the second week of the ad contest for that concern, which offers complete heating service.

L. P. STEUART & BRO.

Mrs. Harry H. Wolfe, Silver Spring, Md.; Mrs. Laura Rogers, Box 243, Gaithersburg, Md.; Elizabeth W. Phillips, 1211 Fern street northwest, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Ida K. Spriggs, 223 Rhode Island avenue northeast, Washington, D. C.; Bertha A. Rucker, 1733 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Washington, D. C.

CHOOSING PRIZE ADVERTISEMENT

RULES FOR CONTEST

1—$10,000 in prizes to be distributed over seven weeks of amateur ad writing.

2—$1,000 in cash will be given for the best ad written by an amateur during the entire Post-Zain ad-writing campaign. To compete for this prize it will be necessary for contestants to write at least one ad about each of the 35 firms participating in the ad contest.

3—Grand weekly award of $100 will be given each week for the best ads during six periods of the ad-writing contest.

4—Five merchandise prizes for each of the 35 concerns will be given weekly during six weeks of the campaign.

5—Ads for the third and fourth weeks of the Post-Zain ad-writing campaign must be received prior to noon, Wednesday, May 6.

6—Ads submitted in competition for the grand award of $1,000 must be received prior to midnight, May 27.

7—Any one anywhere may compete for the prizes with the exception of newspaper employes and members of the advertising profession.

8—There are no obligations. No coupons to clip, no entrance fees to pay, no subscriptions to buy. One person may submit as many ads as he chooses. The Post-Zain ad-writing contest may be entered at any time. Ads may be written about one or all concerns.

9—Write your ideas on one side only of a sheet of paper at least twice the size of a postcard. Place the name of the concern about which you are writing in the upper left-hand corner of the page. Place your own name and address, also telephone number, on the reverse of the advertisement and the envelope. Your contribution may be a slogan, a poem, a regular advertisement, a letter of testimonial, or an essay.

10—Winning advertisements will be selected by a committee of advertising experts. In the event of a tie, awards will be made to both.

11—All advertisements received become the property of the concerns about which they are written.

Ad-Writing Suggestions.

Prizes are given for ideas, not for grammar, spelling, punctuation, art work or layout.

Your ideas are likely to be new and original; your idea may win one of the prizes.

If you are not familiar with the advertisers about whom you are asked to write ads, study their service and merchandise; visit their shops, ask questions, and then jot down your ideas simply. Be brief and to the point.

If you can write a letter, you can write an ad. Get members of your family and your friends interested. Encourage them to write winning ads.

BYRD CREDITS OCEAN FLIGHT TO BALCHEN

Noville made a bit of history when, far up in the clouds, he got radio bearings from ships that located the plane exactly. He pulled in the antenna over France on account of low altitude, and that was why the radio was out of commission."

Byrd's last remark referred to "The Flying Dutchman's" statement that "Bert Acosta was a physical wreck" and that George Norville, retired naval officer, and fuel and radio engineer of the America, "by damaging his radio had destroyed his usefulness."

Here to address the Izaak Walton League, Admiral Byrd said he would finish his Nation-wide lecture tour by June and until that time would not consider plans for any other expedition.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Bert Acosta, pilot of Rear Admiral Byrd's transatlantic flight, made the following comment today on Anthony Fokker's autobiography, "The Flying Dutchman," in which Admiral Byrd's methods are criticized.

"The controversy aroused by the book doesn't worry me—if I had anything to say to Tony, I'd say it to his face.

"The entire matter was conducted in a sure and effective manner. I am positive that if it was to be done again, there would be no change.

"I have the highest regard for Admiral Byrd, Bernt Balchen and Lieut. Noville (his companions on the flight). I did have a high regard for Mr. Fokker, but I think he must be getting old."

People who are running Post Classified Ads this morning will get "Today's Results Today."

Extra Prizes Offered In Post-Zain Contest

The following firms, cooperating in The Post-Zain Amateur Ad Writing Contest, have announced special awards in addition to the $100 cash and 175 merchandise awards made each week by The Post:

Washington Gas Light Co.—A $200 Janitrol gas conversion burner to the author of the best ad on automatic gas heat.

Arthur Jordan Piano Co.—A $158 Brunswick Radio for the best ad on this company and its stock.

Earle Theater—Twenty passes each week for the best ads on this Warner Brothers house.

Bailey Tire Stores—A standard passenger size U. S. Royal tire each week to the author owning an automobile, for the best ad on Bailey Stores and U. S. Royal Tires.

D. J. Kauffman, Inc. (Radio Joe)—$45 "Beau Geste" hand-tailored, silk-lined, 2-trouser suit at termination of contest.

Fairfax Farm Dairies—One bottle chocolate milk to every author of an ad on their concern.

Guggenheim Co.—One case ginger ale to weekly winner of $100. One case to author best ad about their concern, each week. One carton of six to the next four best ads each week.

Wilkins Coffee—2 pounds just wonderful Wilkins coffee to authors of ten best ads each week on their product.

United Food Stores, Inc.—$10 basket of groceries for best ad submitted about their concern, at termination of contest.

Avignone Freres—For the best five ads written about their ice cream, one quart of ice cream will be given to the winning authors weekly.

Military Schools Will Be Inspected

Five Have Been Selected in Third Corps Area for Honor Rating.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, April 24.—Five military schools of the Third Corps Area maintaining junior units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps have been selected for the annual War Department inspection for honor ratings. The schools are: Augusta Military College, Fort Defiance, Va.; Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va.; Fork Union Military Academy, Fork Union, Va.; Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va.; Valley Forge Military Academy, Staunton, Va.; Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa.

A board of officers headed by Maj. Charles H. White, Infantry, will make the inspections in the latter part of April, May and early June.

Additional inspections by Lieut. Col. Ralph H. Leavitt, Infantry, in charge of R. O. T. C. affairs at Third Corps Area headquarters, have been scheduled for other institutions as follow: Washington High Schools (colored), April 28; Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va., April 30; Massanutten Military Academy, Woodstock, Va., and St. John's College, Washington, May 7; Hargrave Military Academy, Chatham, Va., Danville Military Institute, Danville, Va., and Benedictine High School, Richmond, Va., May 12.

PROMINENT TEACHER JOINS BRIDGE STAFF

Mrs. Marion H. Barre to Aid Mechanics of Play in Contest.

Additional impetus and further guarantee of success of the already highly popular bridge tournament sponsored by The Washington Post was given yesterday when Mrs. Marion H. Barre, an outstanding player and a prominent local teacher, announced she would forego pleasure of entering the competition and devote all of her activities toward assisting in perfecting details and arranging the program of the event.

"The affair has developed so amazingly, and so many people are interested in it, and it means so much in the stimulation of the game in Washington, that it needs only competent management to win the success that it deserves," said Mrs. Barre.

"Personally, I would not think of undertaking such a task, but in selection of Mr. Needham as tournament manager the promoters have acted very wisely. With him at the head of it there can be no doubt but that everything will be worked out smoothly. I feel that I can do more toward promoting this very commendable enterprise by aiding him and by helping the committee on arrangements than I can by entering as a player.

Will Aid Mechanics of Play.

"There will be plenty of players, and in order to make them all happy, even those who may be losers, for not every one can be a winner, it is necessary to have the mechanics of the tournament properly conducted. I shall contribute my mite toward success in this way."

Mrs. Barre formerly lived in Pittsburgh, where she made a reputation as a teacher before coming to Washington. Among her pupils here are many in Army and Navy and other social circles. She is also bridge instructor for the Chevy Chase Community Center under authorization of the Board of Education.

Division of the tournament into three major events with two sessions for pair contests, two sessions for auction playing and two for contract playing has seemingly met general approval among entrants. By this method, which will enable all players that wish to do so to enter pair contests Thursday and Friday afternoons without impairing their qualification for team contests of auction and contract which are scheduled for the evening sessions and Saturday afternoon, it is probable that elimination games will not be necessary.

Pair and Team Matches Separate.

That will mean that regardless of the outcome of the pair contests, all entrants will play in the team matches, none being eliminated no matter what their showing may be. In other words it is a separate event. It will also mean that all auction players will be able to play at both sessions when auction is played, and all contract players will be able to take part in both the contract sessions.

Players who are so unfortunate as to make poor scores at the first session of either game will not be eliminated from the second session. They will continue to play and thereby may be able to make up in the second session what they lost in the first. This will be accomplished by totaling the scores made in the two sessions, the trophies going to teams having the highest aggregate score.

The dates are May 14, 15 and 16, and the place the New Shoreham Hotel.

Link Baltimorean As Aid in Murder

Herman Duker, Member of Old Family, Sought After Youth Is Jailed.

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (A.P.).—Herman W. Duker, 21 years old, member of a family long prominent here, was named by police today as one of the two men who Monday shot and killed John Anderson, 42, a milk collector, in a holdup.

Dale Lambert, 18, held in jail here, has confessed, police said. Duker told a relative that he was going to South America, and a general order went out to watch ships in a number of seaports. State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Conor said he would ask first degree murder indictments against both.

Both have criminal records, and Duker has served terms here and in the Elmira Reformatory, New York. Duker's grandfather was a pioneer lumber dealer here. His father is in the insurance business. His parents said he left home Tuesday.

Thief Grabs $9,000 in Diamonds.

Boston, April 24 (A.P.).—Unset diamonds valued at about $9,000 were stolen from the store of Frank Gendreau, Winter street jeweler, today by a man who posed as a prospective purchaser. The thief ran from the sixth floor store to the street with the tray of stones and disappeared into the crowd.

WAGES STAY UP.

Every day brings the United States nearer to good times. No one now doubts that the worst of the depression is over. The turn probably would have come last year if the drought had not occurred. The chief damage caused by the drought was not in crop shrinkage, but in discouraging the people who had just suffered an economic shock.

A study of depressions for the last 60 years shows that recovery has come in the summer, without regard to the time of year when the depression began. May, June and July have invariably registered the upturn. Why?

It is believed that the answer is found in the assurance of a harvest. The country does not know until summer whether the year is to be lean or fat. As soon as certainty of crops is evident the chain of prosperity is formed. A nation that reaps $12,000,000,000 or $14,000,000,000 from the soil each year is an enormous consumer. The abundance of the harvest adds immensely to the national wealth and stimulates consumption of all products. Agriculture underlies all other industries. If it flourishes all other industries become prosperous.

From all present prospects 1931 will be a good crop year in the United States. The rainfall is almost normal. A few weeks more will determine whether or not the harvest will be a certainty. With all crop uncertainty removed nothing can stop a return to activity in building, manufacturing and transportation, if in the meantime Americans keep a firm grasp upon the factors that are carrying the country along in spite of depression. But if they let down now, within sight of the goal, they can prevent the return of prosperity in spite of a good harvest.

The backbone of American stability during this world crisis is the maintenance of wages. The world has never before witnessed the spectacle of a nation arresting the ravages of economic adversity by prompt and unanimous protective cooperation in maintaining the wages of its workers. The United States has performed a feat that is not only unprecedented, but which would have been impossible a few years ago. Industry has boldly blazed a new path that will never be abandoned. It has discovered the secret that enables the Nation to weather an economic storm which in former times would have reduced the people to beggary. This secret is the fact that the workers, as consumers, will keep the wheels of production moving, at slackened speed, but nevertheless moving, so long as they are employed as producers. The American market is not only supplied, but absorbed, by the workers of America.

Consequently the campaign started by New York bankers to drive down wages is a deadly attack upon the welfare of the Nation. It is dastardly in its selfishness, and stupid in its short sightedness. Because dividends have been reduced, these bankers would kill the productive system. Because the goose is not laying as many golden eggs as usual they would kill the goose. At one stroke they would diminish the consumption of products that now sustains all industries, by depriving the consumers of their wages. A fine method of restoring dividends!

The common sense of industry rejects this suggestion of the bankers. Having gone through the worst of the crisis, industry now refuses to run up the white flag of surrender. The great industrial leaders have found that the country can weather this storm by maintaining wages, and they propose to hold to this policy. It has been a hard struggle, but success is in sight. If Providence had ordained that Americans should sink to the semistarvation level of living the disaster would have occurred more than a year ago. It is now impossible, thanks to the fortitude and teamwork of American industry and the absence of any natural catastrophe or war. The country is intact in its resources, its manhood and its courage.

LA FOLLETTE'S DREAM.

Senator La Follette has outlined what may be termed in the common parlance of the day a five-year plan for Congress. His aim is a "maximum reduction of unemployment, maintenance of purchasing power, and a constantly rising standard of living to the end that all the people may enjoy the fullness and richness of life which should be the goal of organized society and government." That is indeed a noble ideal. In the midst of discouragement and depression the senator lifts his eyes to the glorious light of socialism. All that is necessary is for Uncle Sam to stretch forth his magic wand and make the poor rich and the disheartened happy.

Most of Mr. La Follette's visions are so desirable that no one could disagree with them. He stands for shorter working hours, by the day and by the week; for high wages; for stabilization of industry, and rehabilitation of agriculture. The senator's thoughts soar with the eagle when he is speaking of what ought to be. But how are these blessings of leisure, security and prosperity to be obtained? At this point the eagle takes a sudden nose dive and plows deep into the mud. All that Mr. La Follette has to offer is legislation by Congress, and every one knows that he is not in a position to offer even that.

First on the senator's program is Federal aid to the unemployed. He finds that city and county governmental units have raised a good deal of the money which has been spent on charity during the depression. That has always been true. Local governments are the logical agencies to care for their citizens in distress. That is one of their functions. Does the senator wish to convert Congress into a city council or a county commission? Mr. La Follette's argument that the Federal Government ought to take over this responsibility is one of the shallow absurdities of which he is so fond.

A second remedy which he proposes is unemployment insurance. The senator blandly ignores the fact that unemployment insurance has brought Great Britain and Germany to the verge of economic ruin and that it has stultified the initiative and energy of labor wherever tried. Industry is in a period of severe distress. The Wisconsin senator proposes to hang a stone around its neck so that it may more rapidly recover.

Finally, he proposed an increase in taxation. The real meaning of this suggestion is camouflaged behind the phrase: "Exercise of the power of taxation through the graduated income and inheritance laws to meet the increasing burdens and responsibilities of Government." Previous experience has shown that attempts of the Government to overtax capital for the general welfare have made severe inroads into business and left the working class with less opportunity for making a living than before. A Nation can't be taxed into prosperity any more than it can live on a dole.

It is hardly necessary to point out that every one of Senator La Follette's suggested remedies is diametrically opposed to his ideal of prosperity and fullness of life. He proposes to legislate the country out of its economic troubles. He would have Congress take the economic system by the throat and choke it until it produced the desired golden eggs. And if the contrary bird refused to lay, Congress might wring its head off to appease the unemployed.

DR. GEORGE M. KOBER.

Washington mourns the loss of Dr. George M. Kober, who for 58 years has served this community and the Nation with unselfish public spirit. Beginning active life as an Army surgeon, he became Assistant Surgeon General, president of the Association of American Physicians, and professor of Georgetown University School of Medicine. He was active in the Red Cross for many years and was one of the national leaders in the campaign against tuberculosis. He was indefatigable in research as well as in training young men in medicine. His associations in scientific circles were world-wide. He served the District of Columbia faithfully in matters of public health and charity, leaving his name indelibly recorded in the city's annals.

A long and abstemious life devoted to the welfare of his fellow men is the history of Dr. George M. Kober. How could a man win greater or more enduring honor than in loving and serving his fellow men? The roll of his services and achievements is almost without parallel in this country. His sympathies were as broad as mankind. He sought usefulness and not fame. Dr. Kober goes to his long rest with the affection and gratitude of the City of Washington—the only reward that he ever craved.

RADIO VS. PRESS.

Competition between the radio and newspapers has become a live topic of discussion in New York where the American Newspaper Publishers Association is in session. For years the newspapers of the country have nursed the infant radio industry without giving much attention to its possibilities as a strong competitor. But the radio is now out of its swaddling clothes and is carrying news, advertising and many features into thousands of homes which formerly were dependent upon newspapers for this service.

The publishers have decided that it is time to quit coddling radio and treat it as a grown-up rival. One resolution adopted by the association calls upon Congress to amend the radio act so that the advertisement of lotteries may be restricted on the air as well as in the press. There is no reason why broadcasters should have special privileges in this or any other class of advertising.

A committee has been appointed to investigate the legality of direct advertising by radio under exclusive Government franchises in competition with other advertising media. Because of the limited wave lengths radio is a natural monopoly. Where a monopoly is operated under Federal license and comes into direct competition with private enterprise the public interest demands that it be strictly regulated.

Newspapers have made a practice of publishing radio programs without charge. The association resolved that inasmuch as these programs relate to advertising for which broadcasters are paid that the newspapers should refrain from printing them, or else consider them as advertisements.

The newspapers do not fear, of course, that they will be forced out of their field by radio. The public finds advertising by radio very distasteful. The trend is toward less advertising on the air. Advertisers will have to use the newspapers to get their products properly before the public.

Except for flashes of important news and athletic contests the radio is not successful as a dispenser of news. The varied tastes of the public can be supplied only in the daily newspaper. Radio's chief field is music, and in that there is no element of competition with the press. It seems probable that radio broadcasters will specialize more than ever in this field, and that with equitable regulation, radio will not seriously encroach upon the newspaper.

Now that a grand jury has found Chicago police captains have big bank accounts, Uncle Sam will come along and collect his income tax on racketeering. The old gentleman doesn't care how they got it, but he wants his share.

The Girl Scouts have shown President and Mrs. Hoover how to live on 24 cents per meal, but that won't make much impression on the national deficit.

NATIONAL OVERWEIGHT

By Dr. ALONZO E. TAYLOR,
In the Scientific Monthly.

As every one knows, hard work entails heavy eating; sedentary occupations are supported on a light diet. The amount of daily muscular work being done by the average American man and woman is declining sensibly every year. This is the consequence of the mechanization of society. Machines take the place of work animals and of manual workers. More and more, men become guiders of machines, fewer men function as manual workers. Hard work gives way to moderate work, moderate work gives way to light work, the average gainful occupation approaches more and more the status of a sedentary vocation.

The automobile has enormously reduced the average annual exertion of walking. Both city and country life can now be replanned, because people ride to their work instead of walking to it.

Against these numerous items of saving of exertion only one factor operates in the opposite direction—increase in sports. But the countereffect is small; the golf courses, tennis courts, baseball and football fields (even without considering the decline of hiking) are not a significant counterweight to the mechanization of gainful occupations.

The cumulative result upon the food requirements of the various elements in the mechanization of society is highly significant. It can not be measured; but when one recalls that a man doing extreme work requires 6,000 to 8,000 calories, hard work 4,000 to 5,000 calories, light work 3,000 to 4,000 calories and sedentary occupations less than 3,000 calories per day, the extent of the lowering of food requirements consequent on mechanization becomes apparent.

Overeating, relative to need, is the major cause of overweight. There are persons who overeat and remain thin; there are also persons who diet and grow fat. But such persons are few in number, the rare exceptions, abnormal, or at least anomalous. After all, human beings are animals and animal husbandry is founded on the demonstrated doctrine that feed makes fat, and fat can not be gotten without feed.

The easiest way of avoiding ingestion in excess of requirements is to use bulky foodstuffs with low caloric content instead of concentrated foodstuffs with high caloric content. It is possible to lose weight on a full stomach three times a day; it is possible to gain weight on a diet which does not fill the stomach once a day. It is in this respect that fruits and vegetables are attractive; they are invaluable for vitamins and mineral elements, but they are also valuable in satisfying hunger and appetite without promoting overweight.

There are instinctive impulses and physiological tendencies in the direction of overweight, which will prevail unless restrained or counteracted. We live in economic circumstances which permit an easy functioning of the influences making for overweight. The national income is rising. The proportion of the national income required to cover the retail cost of the food supply is relatively small. Foodstuffs are available in extraordinary variety and profusion. The per capita food requirement is declining. Economic restraint on eating is lacking except in the poorest classes. Under these circumstances, the probability of average overweight is increasing. Unless restrained, a decade hence the average overweight of people over 40 will be significantly higher than it is today; the effect of overweight upon incidence of disease and upon the death rate will become more conspicuous. The solution does not lie in sports or physical exercise. Four factors are to be looked forward to as restraining influences: education in nutrition, medical precept, life insurance admonition and style. And the greatest of these, probably, is style.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A LOSING ARGUMENT.

Argue with it, if you will,
Love will keep its notions still.
Tell it everything you know,
All you've learned of hurt and woe,
Poverty and sorrow's tears
And the struggle of the years;
Think up all that's bad to say
You can't frighten love away!

Tell two youngsters, marriage bound,
Care's a most persistent hound;
Sickness, disappointment, debt
Will, as time goes on, be met;
Give to wedlock ogres grim,
They can't frighten her or him,
They'll just smile at you and say:
"Love like ours will find the way!"

Argue that it's wise to wait,
Count the woes outside the gate;
Build up visions of despair;
Weigh the burdens they must bear;
Talk disaster; tell of wrecks,
Cite the problems which perplex;
Pile it thick and make it strong,
Love still cries: "We'll get along!"

Love is deaf to wisdom's plea,
Blind to much that age can see.
Show your scars; your cares display,
Love will laugh at you and say:
"We want troubles we can share,
We want burdens we must bear.
All the wories you recall

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

I suppose that you, like the majority of your sex, feel an amused contempt for the neuter-gender youth commonly described as "prissey."

And I suspect that you prefer a youth with some devil-may-care wildness in his make-up rather than one who is quiet, dependable and uniformly good.

The preference is one of the unsolved mysteries of your sex.

I have no doubt it is in some measure atavistic. The modern maid prefers a fire-eater and a reckless rebel because there was a time, ages ago, when that type of man was needed to afford protection and provide rations.

But some part of her preference is due, I am sure, to the peculiar perversity that causes all of us to desire most the thing we can't have.

If a thing worth while is easy to attain, we value it little; if a thing of little value is beyond our reach, we must have it at any cost.

Because the goody-goody youth with no capacity for wrong-doing is easily awed and as easily caught, the girls feel no interest in him. Because the wild and reckless youth regards girls as an amusement not to be taken seriously, all of them yearn to find his weak spot and capture him.

I think you will not be easy to fool, but I want to tell you a few things about these two types.

They aren't always what they seem. The goody-good often turns out to be a Sergeant York and licks an army, and the bad hombre frequently reveals a broad yellow streak in time of stress.

Also the prunes-and-prisms fellow occasionally disgraces his Sunday school class by "borrowing" the company funds, and the untamed one tires of wild oats and settles down to become the ideal of a generation.

You are sure to go wrong if you judge either one by his type. The only safe way is to judge them as individuals.

And in judging them as individuals, the safest method is to discount anything approved by your own vanity.

The youth who has a glib "line" of praise has practiced on many simpletons and the truth isn't in him. If he is too much at ease in the presence of girls, it is because he respects them too little. You will save yourself much humiliation if you will remember that compliments given too soon or too easily are bait.

Love,
DAD.

A Prayer for Democrats.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Twenty years ago the late George M. Bailey wrote in these columns in characteristic semifacetious vein: "Lest you forget, remember the Democratic party when you say your prayers. Pray that it may not be led into populistic temptation, but delivered from socialistic evil, and saved from downright idiocy."

The Democratic party is standing in the need of prayer to that effect as much today as it was two decades ago. The situation in the national political field today is similar to that in 1911. At that time the reaction against Taft had set in, much as the reaction against Hoover is now manifesting itself. In the middle of the Taft term, the Democrats made sweeping gains in Congress. Several of the Northern States had gone Democratic, including Maine, and Chicago had elected a Democratic mayor.

Then, as now, the insurgent Republican element was threatening to leave the party reservation, and two years later did leave, under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. Signs in 1911, as signs in 1931, pointed strongly to Democratic victory in 1912. And victory came, with Woodrow Wilson as the standard-bearer.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, believes that the President is a dry and that that attitude will become more marked in the future. He believes that the Democratic party will either go wet or do such a job of straddling that dry Democrats will desert the party as they did in 1928. He closed his remarks with respect to the liquor issue by saying:

"The country as a whole still is preponderately dry. My personal opinion is that the wets are making a noise out of all proportion to their numbers and influence.

"I am opposed to any change. I am opposed to making Uncle Sam or any of the States bartenders. The wets have no plan beyond repeal or nullification. The liquor interests are seeking the return of the saloon because there is a profit in selling liquor. This talk of repeal but no return to the days of the saloon is merely to cover up the real purpose."

Hoover's Caribbean Policy.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr Hoover announced that our marines would be withdrawn from Nicaragua by January 1, 1933. Unfortunately, the revolt against our occupation flared up before we could make this promise good.

There is, of course, violent dissent from the action which the President has taken through the State Department. Nevertheless, he is, in our opinion, right. To strengthen the sovereignty of the Caribbean states and thus make them capable of protecting our nationals is a sounder policy. It is the policy which Mr. Morrow instituted in Mexico. If we stick to it we can make all the Caribbean states responsible, and we can in time make the lives and property of our nationals safe throughout the Caribbean region. We can never do so by attempting to be our own police.

Real Estate Experts in Psychology Swindle Unsuspecting Widows.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A local graft is growing again with the advent of warm weather—that of a "free," lovely auto ride, followed by a delicious luncheon and a lecture on psychology, followed by a real estate transaction. Many a credulous female victim will fall into the trap.

The "special guest" is taken to a more or less attractive tract of land, where, in a neat-looking shack, sauer kraut and weenies are served, after which the authority on psychology makes his bow. A sleek, bespatted young male tells his unsuspecting audience how they are going to make quick money by selling the lot they came to buy, if they don't wish to keep it; the "reliable" firm will undertake the sale without cost to the client. They are mainly interested in having you make money. No escape; they hold you, trying with all their might to make you sign on the dotted line, so that you may be the proud possessor of a very desirable lot which happened to be still available—your luck!

If you don't have the full amount, a simple deposit will do—a very small deposit—$50, $25, $15, $10, $5, shrinking down to $1, which, of course, you lose if you are not able to raise the required amount within two weeks. But then, a dollar is not so much to lose, is it? ingratiatingly asks the sleek specimen.

It is high time that such lecturers on psychology should be attended to and the public fully warned. Many widows have put money into that kind of business, unwillingly, simply because they have not been able to evade or resist the sleek gentleman. Beware of such invitations. The "free" luncheon may be the most expensive yet. "SPECIAL GUEST."

Objects to Setting Up the Government in the Liquor Business.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why presumably able thinkers continue to assert that only by "revision" of the eighteenth amendment can the prohibition muddle be clarified is puzzling. My guess is that they tackle revision merely as a moot issue on which to sharpen their wits. That is about all it will ever amount to in practical politics.

One of the latest to formulate the revisionist thesis is William M. Forgrave, former superintendent of the Massachusettts Antisaloon League, who says: "A system which would provide for the sale of alcoholic beverages in restricted quantities, at cost, through government agencies to licensed citizens, would no doubt be next best to prohibition enforced and better than prohibition not enforced."

Broadly speaking, my objection to this system is that it would commit our government to an unreserved experiment in socialism. On account of numerous red-tape administrative details it would doubtless fail to function.

The voters have been so thoroughly fed up on partisan generalities and makeshift plans that they should now be in a mood to take the common sense view of the wet-dry question. And to my way of thinking, the common sense view is that if prohibition can not be enforced the alternative will be to junk the eighteenth amendment. But don't set the government up in the liquor business.

Reduction of National Debt Should Be Postponed During Depression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The purpose of the United States has been to decrease the national debt by a billion dollars a year, every year since the World War, and now in a period of depression, the deficit has been increased.

It is the proper thing to decrease the national debt in times of prosperity, and also the proper thing to alleviate the suffering and hardships caused by national depression and postpone for a year the reduction in the debt of another billion dollars, thereby easing the severity of the depression. The soldier bonus will not have to be paid again, and interest is saved by its payment at the present time. The wheat purchasing fiasco will not cause the expenditure of a large sum of money, as that lesson should be well learned by now.

Congress should consider that it only partially did its duty, as it could have appropriated more money for the building of new national highways and giving employment to thousands of men.

ARRAIGNED, SKINNER FAINTS BEFORE BAR

Man Swoons When Asked to Enter Plea to Charge of Slaying Wife.

Quick action by deputy United States marshals yesterday kept Sydney Allen Skinner, who was being arraigned in Criminal Court, No. 1, on an indictment charging him with the murder of his wife, from falling to the floor in a faint.

Skinner stood unsteadily while Lee Ashford, clerk, intoned to him the indictment. When Ashford finished the reading he asked Skinner how he would plead. There was no answer. The question was repeated and Skinner mumbled unintelligibly.

It was apparent that he was about to faint and the courtroom marshals closed in on him. As he wavered on his feet and slumped backwards, Skinner was caught and placed in a chair. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Skinner, later removed to the jail, is charged with having stabbed his wife at their home on Twenty-first street northeast, two months ago. She died four days later. It was indicated in court that an alienist would be asked to examine Skinner.

Philosophical Society Chooses 27 Members

Waldo G. Leland, secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies, was among the 27 notables elected yesterday to membership in the American Philosophical Society, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Philadelphia. Mr. Leland lives at 1862 Mintwood place northwest.

Included in the list of honored are John D. Rockefellere, jr., Senator Dwight W. Morrow, Walter Sherman Gifford, J. Henry Scattergood, Frank B. Kellogg, Adolph S. Ochs, Willis R. Whitney, Ermine Cowles Case, Leicester Bodine Holland and Alexander G. Ruthven.

Police Are Led to Still When Chasing Fighters

Detective R. L. Jones and Policeman R. F. McCarty chased two men whom they saw fighting on the porch of a house on Irving street near Georgia avenue northwest yesterday. By fleeing through the house, the men led their pursuers into a 75-gallon still, 2 gallons of liquor and 3 barrels of mash.

The still and rum were confiscated and the mash destroyed. The veranda pugilists escaped and no one was arrested.

backing a political machine—set up an organization in Washington managed by Mr. Shouse and Mr. Michelson to 'paint a picture of Hoover as an inept, bewildered, weak and unworthy man.'

"This is the reason why the Republican national committee distributed the Kent article and the reason why Republican speakers everywhere brought Mr. Raskob's name into the campagin as the chairman and virtual owner of the Democratic party, who contributed practically a million dollars to the 'smear Hoover bureau' conducted by Michelson and Shouse."

Charles Michelson, inspiration for many an attack upon the Republican party in his capacity as publicity director of the Democratic national committee, last night made a direct attack on his political foes in a radio address.

Much of the speech over the Columbia Broadcasting System was given to criticism of the administration for the 1930 tariff law, but in part it was a reply to Republican attacks on the Democratic committee.

"If you have listened with proper intentness to the recent speeches of the Republican spokesmen," he said, "you know that the three issues of the coming campaign are Chairman Raskob, of the Democratic national committee; Chairman Shouse, of the executive committee, and, in a lesser degree, my humble self, the publicity man."

Mr. Michelson said it was unlikely that either Mr. Raskob, Mr. Shouse or himself, would have any official connection with the 1932 campaign. He said the Democratic presidential candidate would choose the national committee chairman; that the candidate would choose the executive committee, and the committee in turn would select the publicity director.

Says Hoover Needs South.

The Democratic publicity director said the Republican administration was addressing itself to the South to an unusual extent, and his explanation was that President Hoover needed the votes of Southern delegates for renomination.

The "sole issue," Mr. Michelson said, was whether "Mr. Hoover has done well enough in his job to get another four years in it."

"We arraign Mr. Hoover for his share in inflicting on the country," he continued, "a tariff law that has resulted in killing our foreign trade. • • • That is a fairly definite charge of maladministration. • • • But what is their answer? It is that we wicked Democrats are smearing the President."

Storm Rains Thief Trap; Store Owner Loses $60

Hagerstown, Md., April 24.—Leslie F. Kephart, merchant here, set an electric trap for a thief, who, expected, might pay his store a visit. The other day an electric storm put the trap out of commission, but Mr. Kephart did not know it until he opened the store this morning to find his cash register rifled of $60 cash.

He looked around for a dead thief, but found none. Then he investigated his trap to discover that the storm had blown a fuse.

has made, with the sanction of the committee, any study with regard to the strength throughou the country of the various men, and none will be made.

"I, as chairman of the committee, will take no action regarding the selection of a candidate. The nomination of a candidate rightfiuly belongs to the convention, and if I, as chairmna, should attempt to dictate it, it certainly would be a breach of Democratic principles. Our efforts will be and should be given to building an organization to win."

In a prepared statement Mr. Raskob said he was "continually asked whether I believe prohibition will be the chief issue in the next campaign."

"My opinion is that the principal and most important issues will be prohibition, the tariff, farm relief and economic problems touching principally on such social changes as are necessary to lessen the severity of future depressions and particularly the unemployment conditions incident thereto. It is difficult and not at all necessary to attempt to classify these issues in the order of their importance."

He again outlined the prohibition plan he discussed at the recent Washington meeting of the national committee.

"A great many of our Democratic friends seem to believe that the chairman of the national committee is trying to make prohibition an issue. Nothing is further from the truth. The facts are that our surveys show that prohibition is bound to be an important issue and the reason for discussion and consideration at this time is that it becomes extremely important to have ample time for full, fair, frank and open discussion if our party hopes to arrive at a conclusion that can be reduced to a platform plank that can be adopted at our next national convention.

"On the business situation I am conservatively bullish. I believe we are practically through all the liquidation necessary to establish business on a real rock foundation. • • • I am sure the hope of all engaged in big industry is that wage reductions will prove unnecessary. • • • In the stock market it is my feeling that the bears are overdoing their side of the market very much as the bulls overstayed the bull side in 1929.

Astors to Observe Anniversary May 3

Plymouth, England, April 24 (A.P.).—Viscount and Lady Astor will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary on May 3 in this seaport, represented since 1919 by Lady Astor as the first woman to sit in Parliament.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage will be something of a civic affair, with citizens presenting them a silver model of Sir Francis Drake's ship, Golden Hind, under full sail. The Astors are coming here specially for the presentation.

Married in 1906, Lord and Lady Astor have four sons and one daughter. He is the son of the first Viscount Astor and she is the former Nancy Witcher Langhorne, of Greenwood, Va. Her first marriage to Robert Gould Shaw ended in divorce in 1903.

Deputies Indicted In Slaying of Lee

State Game Officials Face Trials for Death of Alleged Violator.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 24.—An indictment charging murder was drawn today by State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, of Anne Arundel County, against Vernon Dreische and Walter Powers, deputy State game wardens, both of Baltimore City, in connection with the killing of George Lee, of West Annapolis, who was fatally shot while gigging for fish in the upper Severn River, February 18.

Presentments against the two men were returned by the county grand jury following examination of a number of witnesses. While the indictment charges murder, it will contain the secondary counts of second-degree murder and manslaughter, which would give the State the alternative of prosecuting on one or the other charges based upon the strength of testimony adduced at the trial, date for which has not been fixed.

Circumstances of the case are that the deputy game wardens discovered Lee violating the law by gigging near Indian Landing in early morning. Ordered to come ashore, it is claimed, he attempted to escape, whereupon one of the deputies opened fire. The bullet pierced Lee's abdomen. He died within 24 hours.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

PRESIDENT ORDERS JENKINS RESTORED

of employes from the Government pay roll, one change he sponsored cutting the total of employes by 750, of whom something like 500 were in Washington. He also was instrumental in bringing about a new financial arrangement between the Government and the operators of ships, the effect of which was a material saving to the Government and a revision of the operators' outlook on expenditures for operations.

But of much more importance than whether Mr. Jenkins retains his job or doesn't, as a result of the decision of President Hoover, is the likelihood that the Jenkins fight may result in a complete reorganization of the Fleet Corporation.

Formerly the Fleet Corporation's actions had to be approved by the Shipping Board, of which Mr. O'Connor is the chairman. Under the present arrangement, the trustees of the Fleet Corporation include six commissioners of the Shipping Board and the president of the Fleet Corporation, an office to which Capt. Elmer E. Crowley recently was named.

Chairman O'Connor wants a new deal. There have been rumors of friction and there have been evidences that Mr. O'Connor has lost control of the conduct of the Fleet Corporation. To get back that control it is proposed to reorganize the administrative machinery and put subordinate officials in as trustees of the Fleet Corporation, eliminating from the list of trustees the commissioners of the Shipping Board.

This would restore the old arrangement whereby actions of the Fleet Corporation would come before the Shipping Board commissioners without having their previous endorsement and give Mr. O'Connor the power to enforce his policies and decisions.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Wedding Day Set at May 28 By Miss Hume

Selects Her Sisters to Be Bridal Attendants in Christ Church.

Of great interest to members of the younger set in Washington is the news that Miss Jeannette Hume, daughter of Mrs. Rawlins Hume, and the late Mr. Hume, has selected for the date of her marriage to Mr. Nathaniel Stone Clifford, of Boston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Clifford, Thursday, May 28. The wedding will take place in Christ Church in Georgetown, the Rev. John Temple officiating, and will be followed by a small reception at the Washington Club.

Miss Hume has selected as her bridesmaids, her sisters, Miss Elizabeth Hume and Miss Mary Murray Hume. The former is now in Bermuda, and though Jeannette's engagement to Mr. Clifford was announced more than a year ago, the date of the marriage will come as a surprise to her, as nothing had been decided when she left for the south several weeks ago.

So large is the Hume clan in Washington, and so attractive are the girls, that the name "Hume" has become almost synonymous with charm. Jeannette, one of the most charming of the lot, is the granddaughter of Mrs. William B. Orme, and much of her childhood was spent at Evermay, one of the loveliest old places in Georgetown, which was the home of Mrs. Orme and the late Mr. Orme for nearly 30 years. The place is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. F. Lammot Belin, and until a year ago, Representative Ruth Baker Pratt was the occupant.

Miss Hume was educated at Gunston Hall and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Clifford is a graduate of Harvard and is at present in business in Boston where the young couple will make their home after a short wedding trip.

Senora de Tellez, wife of the Ambassador of Mexico, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given Tuesday at the Mayflower by Mrs. Everett Sanders.

On the following evening Mr. and Mrs. Sanders will entertain at dinner in compliment to the Minister of Panama and Senora de Arias.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, left today to attend the Green Spring Valley hunt and will return some time tomorrow. Secretary Hurley is still in Oklahoma, where he went several days ago on business.

The Minister of Portugal and Viscountess d'Alte sailed from New York yesterday aboard the Olympic to pass the summer in Europe.

The First Secretary of the Legation, Mr. Augusto Mendes Leal, will be Charge d'Affaires during the absence of the Minister.

The Minister of Hungary and Countess Szechenyi entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon for the members of the Society of International Law and their wives, who are holding their annual meeting in Washington this week. There were about 250 guests. A buffet tea was served in the ballroom. The lovely garden of the legation was open for the guests to wander through after the reception.

Returns to Capital

Dates Chosen For Inspection Of Gardens

Beautiful Old Places in Georgetown on View May 15 and 16.

The gardens of old Georgetown will be opened again this year under the auspices of the Georgetown children's committee. This group of men and women was organized last spring when it was found that the proceeds of the tour were sufficient to pay the salary of a full-time social worker. The committee consists of Mrs. R. F. Whitehead, chairman; Mrs. Alexander Stuart, Mrs. Lloyd Wight, Mrs. Frederick McReynolds, Mrs. Llewellyn Nicholson, Mrs. Robert Wooley, Mrs. Worth Daniels, Miss Katherine Dougal, Miss Oberly, the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, the Rev. Frank S. Niles, Mr. John Ihlder, Mr. Isaac Nordlinger and Mr. B. H. Meyer.

The dates selected are Friday and Saturday, May 15 and 16, from 2 to 6 o'clock. Tickets with a list of gardens to be visited will be on sale at each of the gardens on the day of the tour and at the Hotel Mayflower.

Several gardens not opened last year have been added to the list, among them the Robert Woods Bliss garden.

The committee managing the garden pilgrimage includes: Mrs. H. F. Whitehead, chairman; Mrs. R. H. Meyer, Mrs. E. I. Lewis, Mrs. Gordon Dunthorne, Mrs. E. Lester Jones, Mrs. Robert Wooley, Mrs. Bernard Wyckoff, Mrs. Edward Hulbert, Mrs. Donald Wight, Miss Katherine Dougal and Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan.

Princess Alexandra Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein and Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin will be at home informally tomorrow afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock at 2633 Sixteenth street, where an exhibit of paintings by the princess will continue until June 1.

The princess and her husband, Capt. Ruemann, will leave Washington for New York on Monday.

Mr. Harrison H. Dodge has recently arrived in Paris after a short stay in London.

Mrs. Hoover Attends Three Big Functions

Made Doctor of Laws by Goucher College in Baltimore.

The program of Mrs. Hoover was more than usually strenuous yesterday, starting as it did with the musicale at the Congressional Library in the morning, from where the First Lady went to Baltimore. At Goucher College, the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon her. Last evening Mrs. Hoover attended the twenty-third annual banquet of the Columbian Women of the George Washington University, at the Chevy Chase Club. It has been the custom for some years for the First Lady to attend these dinners, and Mrs. Hoover, though her day had been long and hard, followed the precedent set for her.

Presiding at the dinner was Miss Elizabeth Cullen, the president, with Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., as hostess of the evening.

A reception preceded the banquet when those in the company were presented to Mrs. Hoover and the distinguished guests of honor, among them Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Senora de Davila, Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Luther Reichelderfer, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong.

In the receiving line with the guests of honor were Miss Cullen, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. John B. Larner, wife of the chairman of the board of trustees of the university, and Mrs. Evans who is the only woman member of the board of trustees.

Assisting Mrs. Evans at the reception were a group of members of Columbian women serving as assistant hostesses.

Guests at the banquet were conducted to their tables by young women who are students of the university, acting as ushers. The ushers carried wands bearing flags of the United States and the South American countries, in keeping with the decorative scheme for the banquet hall.

The program was opened with the invocation hymn, followed by greetings from Mrs. Evans and from several of the honor guests. Songs by Miss Henriette LeMenager followed. Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes gave the principal speech of the evening, her subject being, "The South American Republics in Prose and Verse." She exhibited native costumes of the South American countries on living models. The singing of Auld Lang Syne closed the program.

Married 60 Years, Parkers to Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Convis Parker will entertain at an informal reception this evening from 8 until 10 o'clock at Hillcrest, the home of Miss Emma Head at 2800 Thirteenth street, in celebration of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. No cards have been issued.

Mrs. Frank Ballou, Mrs. Selden M. Ely and Mrs. Lawrence Radford will be the hostesses at the luncheon and bridge to be given today by the American Association of University Women at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Beale R. Howard is passing some time at the Manor, in Asheville, N. C.

China Visitor, Back, to Make Home Here

Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb Is Now Guest of Sister, Mrs. A. H. Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Lynn Clarke have with them the latter's sister, Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb, who has recently returned from China, where she has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. White, who have been stationed there since their marriage several years ago.

Mrs. White was formerly Miss Rebecca Lipscomb, and made her debut here several years ago. Mrs. White is now in Easton, Md., where she is visiting her father, Mr. C. E. Lipscomb, and will join Lieut. White in New York next week when he comes East.

He is now stationed at Riverside, Calif., at March Field, and with Mrs. White and their baby will return to the West Coast shortly.

Mrs. Lipscomb will remain in Washington, taking an apartment at the Shoreham when she completes her visit with her sister.

De Martinos Sail For Stay in Italy.

The Italian Ambassador and Donna Antonietta de Martino sailed yesterday for Italy aboard the Italian liner Augustus. They will go direct to Rome, where the latter will pass the remainder of the spring and summer. The Ambassador will remain in Rome about ten days and will then return to Washington.

Donna Antonietta, who has not been in good health for some time, has been ordered by her physicians to return to Italy for a summer of rest after the strenuous season in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. James Willett have returned from their wedding trip in White Sulphur Springs and are at home at the Westchester Apartment. Mrs. Willett was before her marriage on April 11 Senorita Lucia Tessada Guzman, daughter of Senora de Prieto, wife of the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy.

Mrs. E. Paul Abernethy wife of Lieut. Abernethy, U. S. N., has returned from the West Coast and is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Harbough, for a month. Mrs. Abernethy recently spent two months in Panama during the fleet concentration as the guest of Lieut. and Mrs. William Claus.

Lieut. and Mrs. Leland Dotson Webb entertained at dinner at the Shoreham Hotel last evening in compliment to Mrs. Elizabeth Ransley daughter of Representative and Mrs. Harry C. Ransley, of Pennsylvania. Miss Ransley is in Washington for the D. A. R. convention.

The guests were Mrs. Hoggatt Clopton, mother of Mrs. Webb; Commander and Mrs. Walter W. Webster, Commander and Mrs. Charles C. Davis, Senora Maria Arias, Commander Federico Monreal, the Naval Attache of the Spanish Embassy, and Mr. Eugene Scallan, the Secretary of the South African Legation.

Senora de Arias, wife of the Minister of Panama, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Edward H. Conger entertained at luncheon yesterday at her home on Alaska avenue.

Maj. Robert K. Gillmore is passing some time in Paris, where he arrived early in the week. Maj. Gillmore will spend the summer abroad traveling on the continent.

Mrs. Silas Hardy Strawn will entertain at a tea today at the Mayflower from 4:30 until 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Strawn, who, with Mr. Strawn, makes her home in Chicago, is spending some time in town.

Col. Alfred T. Smith, assistant chief of staff of the Army, and Mrs. Smith entertained at a large dinner last evening at the officers' club of the Army War College in honor of the Chief of Staff, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The anual banquet of the American Society of International Law will be held in the large ballroom of the Willard tonight. The toastmaster will be Mr. James Brown Scott, president of the society. Mr. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State; Senor Don Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican Ambassador; Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Mr. Henry W. Temple, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs of the House of Representatives, will attend.

Will Visit Here

Harris & Ewing.

MRS. THOMAS DRESSER WHITE, wife of Lieut. White, U. S. A., who will come to Washington next week from Easton, Md., en route to New York, where she will join Lieut. White before returning to the West Coast.

Mrs. Coolidge Is Entertained By Mrs. Meyer

Patron of Music Honor Guest at Tea Which Many Attend.

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, jr., will entertain at tea today from 4 until 8 o'clock at her house, 1624 Crescent place, in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge and the out-of-town guests here for the festival of music at the Library of Congress. Mrs. Coolidge will receive with Mrs. Meyer. Many Washingtonians in official and residential circles have been invited to meet Mrs. Coolidge, thus giving opportunity to express appreciation for her achievement in elevating the Capital to the ranks of important musical centers of the country, particularly in the realm of chamber music, in which she is especially interested.

Receiving year after year the undivided support of music lovers and of society, the Coolidge festival of chamber music is attracting this week an unusual number of patrons to the gemlike auditorium in the Library of Congress, which was built primarily for the spring music fetes introduced by Mrs. Coolidge some years ago.

With the initial program presented on Thursday night a flattering audience attended. Yesterday morning's fete drew to the auditorium Mrs. Hoover and other music connoisseurs, including Mrs. Tracy Dows, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, composer; Phyllis Fergus and Hans Kindler, renowned artists; Nina Koshetz, Russian singer, and Mr. Carl Engel, critic, under whose regime as librarian of music the festivals were launched years ago.

Mrs. Howe entertained a group of friends at lunch at her home following the program yesterday.

FASHIONS

DIAL FLASHES

CHAIN programs will be heard one hour earlier over Stations WRC and WMAL, beginning tomorrow morning. This schedule will continue for the duration of daylight saving time in New York City. The Washington Post will print all programs in Eastern standard time.

A twelve-hour broadcast, from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. tomorrow morning, will officially inaugurate WJSV's new transmitter. The programs will feature practically all of that station's regular entertainers.

Tests of the new $100,000 transmitter conducted during the past month show listener reports from nearly every State, Canada and Newfoundland, according to Charles Shackelford, WJSV's manager. Because of the low wavelength the station has been reported as being received clearly in England, Ireland and New Zealand.

WASHINGTON'S whispering pianist, Charles M. Luke, will be heard with the Wilkins Coffee Orchestra tonight (WRC, 8:30 p. m.).

Although loaded a little too heavily with advertising the "talkies" at 5:30 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays over WRC are well done. Those who enjoy "Mr. and Mrs." would be pretty apt to enjoy the "talkies" also, since they are very much on the same order.

Arthur Bagley, who has directed the exercises over WRC every morning for six years, was operated on for appendicitis last Thursday afternoon. During his absence from the air Harry W. "Hack" Wilson, engineer and radio mimic, will substitute.

THE rival networks will present the rival regimes of Spain tomorrow afternoon—that is, if the CBS is successful in arranging to rebroadcast a message from the former King of Spain from London. The NBC has completed its plans for presenting the provisional president of the new republic, Alcara Zamora, who will speak from Madrid (WRC, 12 p. m.).

Fifty-five nationally famous men and women have spoken over Columbia from the Washington studios thus far this year.

And now the "Bole-Rumba!"

With dance orchestras presenting a variety of Spanish melodies, Hugo Mariani, the conductor, decided to combine two popular present-day themes—the Bolero, by Ravel, and the Rumba. So he wrote the "Bole-Rumba," which will be heard for the first time on the air during the Symphonic Rhythm Makers program next Monday night.

A new orchestral suite, "The Song of Hiawatha," by Braine, will be introduced by Walter Damrosch's Symphony Orchestra tonight (WRC, 9 p. m.). It is divided into four parts—Hiawatha's wooing, the wedding feast, song of the evening star, and lamentation and departure.

As director of the children's hour over the NBC each Sunday morning Madge Tucker has her troubles. She was confronted with an unexpected display of temperament by one of her young actors recently. The child, only 3 years old, recited her little piece to the satisfaction of every one during the rehearsal.

"I broadcas', Mama, I broadcas'," she exclaimed happily when it was over. But when the program actually went on the air, the child refused to go into her act, protesting loudly that she had "broadcas'" once and wouldn't do it again. These thespians learn young.

A NATION-WIDE broadcast each week, beginning the latter part of May, will introduce each of the Warner Bros. stars, probably over the NBC network. A series of radio sketches or short plays will be used, rather than the regular interview.

Dare Interprets the Mode

A four-piece spring suit AND pyjama! (A Dah-ray idea.)

NEW YORK, April 24.—There's no use talking, you simply have to come to the parting of the ways sooner or later. The parting of what ways? Well, the ways of a maid with a man, perhaps, or maybe I'm talking about the old ways and the new ways—but if you must know it, and I think it's about time you did, I am talking about the parting of the ways of a skirt so that it becomes pyjamas.

There's something about being pyjama-ed other than for sleeping that will get you in the long run, no matter how valiantly you resist. You may not go in for evening pyjamas, perhaps, and you may have no time for teas in your own home, pyjama-ed or any other way. But pyjamas you will take up with, sooner or later and some place or other, and find some place to wear them, that I promise you! And after the first pyjama, well, it will be pyjamas from then on for every leisure moment indoors, that I can absolutely promise you!

So if you haven't already come to the parting of the ways of a skirt into a pyjama, as soon as you put down this paper, decide right there and then that you're going to have an indoor pyjama suit, and start figuring out how you are going to go about acquiring it! It's the times, my dear, and you simply must keep up with them.

* * * *

Of course, for years 'n' years 'n' years, I've worn pyjamas in the house simply because they adapted themselves so perfectly to my type of work. But it has just dawned on me within the last couple of years what an economy house pyjamas really are. 'course you can take the jackets and blouses and gilets of your business suits and of your street wear, adopt a couple of black satin or black crepe pyjama trousers, and there you are—you don't have to buy anything extra anywhere, you see. And the first thing you know you get into the habit of having an extra pair of trousers made each time that you buy a new suit, or each time there is a jacket to an ensemble—and after just a few years of doing this you'll be in the position where I now find myself—that of having a different "ensemble du interior" for every hour in the day, none of which cost you more than a couple of dollars, if that much.

To start off with you might send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for next week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make my favorite spring suit, a lovely jacket, graceful skirt, and adorable organdie gilet, and pyjama trousers which match for that occasion, however rare, when you simply must have a pyjama suit to entertain a favorite visitor in. Wouldn't you spend an extra three dollars for material to have a pyjama suit in your wardrobe?

* * * *

And you better hurry up with that stamped, self-addressed to the Dare department of The Washington Post for one of the few copies left of this week's Gadget leaflet! You know—those practical Dade gadgets that will save so many of your minutes for loveliness, and so many of your clothes from untidiness.

* * * *

And tomorrow we have Dare's weekly fashion letter again. Of course you'll want to read it—in the big Sunday Post.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me why I have trouble growing dracaenas, the pandanus and a kentia palm in the house. They do well on the porch, but in the house they always become dejected.

NANCY D. T.

The plants you mention are always handicapped as house plants because they require special temperatures. The dracaena fragrans and dracaena massangeana, a variegated form, are both useful indoors provided you can give them an even temperature of 55 degrees Fahrenheit at night and a temperature of about 70 degrees Fahrenheit during the day. Pandanus veitchi, commonly called screw pine, demands the same temperature as the dracaenas. Palms require a night temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit and a day temperature of 70 degrees. All these plants usually demand more fresh air than they are given. They should all be watered whenever the surface soil in the pots seems dry, which is about every other day in the case of the pandanus. The other varieties should be watered daily. Their foliage should be sprayed once each week.

Please tell me if shell-pink, single petunias are suitable for growing in window boxes with southern exposures? They are so effective.

MARGARET E.

Yes, I know of no plant more beautiful or better suited for window-box planting.

Is bonemeal a good fertilizer for lawn use? CHARLES G. T.

Yes, bonemeal is one of the best all-round fertilizers we have. It continues to feed the grass for a year, being rich in nitrogen and phosphoric acid. Apply 800 to 1,000 pounds to the acre. Your seedsman will be able to suggest the proper amount for an irregular plot of grass.

Please tell me if the rex begonias and the begonia albo-picta are suitable for house use. JEAN D. O.

Yes. They are both decorative and easily cared for.

Kindly tell me how to care for an orange tree which now has five oranges on it. I have it in a southern window, but it is losing its leaves.

I. S. C.

You have the plant in the proper place. It must have water every day and its foliage should be sprayed once a week with cold water. It does best in a temperature of 68 degrees, but it must have fresh air at all times.

Please tell me what to do with a cineraria which is now through blooming. MRS. JOHN D. T.

Better discard the plant. Being an annual, it has fulfilled its usefulness when it has finished flowering. After that it becomes a prey to insects, which, if it is not thrown away, will soon spread to other plants.

Will you please tell me of some shrubs or plants which will thrive along a foundation wall facing due north and which gets no sun except in the afternoon in summer? I would like, if possible, some blooming shrub, an evergreen or two and perhaps some low-growing ground-cover plant.

MRS. BERTHA W.

Native azaleas, rhododendrons and leather leaf mahonia with Japanese spurge as a ground cover will make an attractive combination for such a location.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

She Loves a Cad.

DEAR Frances McDonald: After reading "Disappointed," who hounds each girl 'till she falls from grace, I just couldn't resist telling my troubles. I really believe there are quite a few such men as he running around loose. I know of one in particular whom I cannot understand for the life of me. I try to make myself believe I don't love him, but can't seem to be very convincing. If I could only fall in love with some one else, I believe I could forget him.

I married when I was nearly 19, over a year ago. I didn't love him, but liked him a whole lot. You see, I didn't want to love the man I married as much as he loved me, because I would be jealous of him and he would hurt me in the little things he did. Also, if he found out I loved him more than he loved me, he would lose his interest in me. This fellow seemed crazy (and that word describes it perfectly) over me. Well, I hate to say "no" to any one, although I can say it and do, but it doesn't seem to have any effect, for they seem to think I don't mean it, and like "Disappointed," keep after me.

From the very first day of our marriage, we didn't get along.

He has a frightful temper, getting angry at absolutely nothing, is terribly jealous and, worst of all, lies about everything, important or unimportant. Before we were married he lied about his salary and about everything else. I became entirely disgusted with him.

Then I met John and fell madly in love with him. My husband and I had agreed that we could have other dates, like luncheon engagements. I only went to lunch with John and did not go out at night, but one day my husband met us, with my girl friend, and raised such a horrible scene in public that I could never live with him again. I demanded that he leave, but had to give him $20 before he would. He went around telling all his friends terrible lies about me.

Well, I now love John and he is like "Disappointed." He has tried so hard to make me do wrong and I will not. He tells me about all his other girl friends, and all his dates. When we first met he wanted to see me all the time, when I didn't know whether I loved him or not, but now that I am sure I do, we very rarely see each other. Sometimes I wonder how in the world I let him make such a fool of me and try to make myself stop seeing him, but he is so convincing, telling me he loves me and that if I would only be his, he would always be true. Which I know, thank heavens, is not true.

I am going to get a divorce, if possible, although my husband says he will do everything in his power to stop me from getting one. If he can't have me, he doesn't want any one else to.

Now please tell me the honest truth: Are you frightfully disgusted with me, do I deserve all this, or what. Don't tell me I should go back with my husband as that is absolutely impossible. You once had an article in the paper, nearly two years ago, I believe, about a man who was always crying and making a scene. This man is like that—only worse. What can I do?

Sincerely yours,
"HELPLESS."

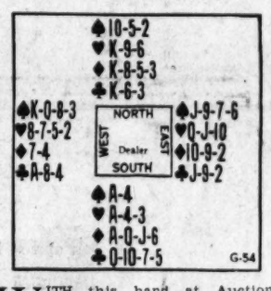
My dear girl, the whole world stands aside for the woman who knows which way she wants to go. But the one who just wobbles around like a hen in the path of a Ford, gets some awful bumps in the traffic that is life. You are not yet free of one worthless whimpering caricature of a man, but are already involved with one who seems, if anything, a little worse.

There are women who attract inferior men. It is because of their weakness—which is instantly recognized by any man. Such women lack decision. About all they think about is love. And they have not the faintest conception of what love is or what it means. To them it is a pleasurable sort of excitement served up to them in dark corners with or without music. Do you want to be one of these? If not, send this impudent jackanapes about his business and begin to think a little about character and less about what you call love. Have a little pride. If not for your own sake, for the sake of the sex. Men will always consider all women fools so long as the few they meet collapse at their feet. When a man insults you let that end the man. And when a man questions your virtue and your character he has done about all he can to insult you. It it pretty hard to understand the woman who accepts such insults and even believes them to be some part of the ritual of love! No man can ever comprehend such a woman or ever respect her. He classes her as equally weak, but a little less brave than the one who wears her scarlet robe quite openly.

Respect your sex. Respect your own womanhood. Respect your own person. And you will no longer mistake insult for compliment. And men will regard you in a new light. So long as you continue to see and receive a man who has offered you insult, what else can he think except that you are open to conviction and receptive to further persuasion? In other words a possible victim—and a weakling? Do a favor to your sex. Learn to resent an insult, instead of "loving" to the cad who offers it.

WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner).



WITH this hand at Auction Bridge, South's bid of one No Trump would be followed by three passes.

At Contract Bridge South had the exact requirements for bidding two No Trumps. West passed, and North called three No Trumps.

In play West led the Trey of Spades—the fourth best of the strongest suit. (Unless the suit is of great length, King is led from a King-Queen suit in No Trump only when the Jack or Ten also is held.) North played the Deuce, East the Nine, and South the Ace. West's lead of the Trey, with the Deuce in dummy, informed South that the opposing Spades were evenly divided, and that nothing was to be gained by holding up the Ace.

South could count four tricks in Diamonds, two in Hearts, one in Clubs and one in Spades. The additional trick necessary for game obviously would have to be won in Clubs. Hoping to force some Club discards, South played four rounds of Diamonds, ending up with the King in dummy. West discarded two small Hearts, and East parted with a Spade. Declarer now led a small Club from North's hand. Remembering an admonition against finessing on the first round, he played his Queen. West won with the Ace, took three Spade tricks and eventually another Club. The contract was set one trick. Do you see where South made his mistake?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

South played well in winning the first Spade trick and in taking four rounds of Diamonds before touching the Clubs; but the last Diamond should have been won in the closed hand. When the combined hands of Declarer and dummy contain a suit of six, seven or eight cards including King-Queen-Ten (but not the Nine), with the King and Queen in opposite hands, the first lead should be toward the single honor. South should play a small Club toward dummy's King; when the King wins the Ace is marked with West. Then a small Club led from dummy and the Ten finessed by South. If West has both the Jack and Ace, game is impossible; if East holds Ace and Jack, and plays Ace on North's King, Declarer is still in position to reenter dummy and finesse the Ten on the second round.

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF April 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2:45 p. m., from 4:15 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and from 9 p. m., to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

April 25 has strongly marked influences, both good and evil. The signs denote a happy time in both personal and domestic life, while in business there will be difficulties and contentions. A financial loss can be anticipated through the carelessness of those in whom trust has been reposed.

Children born on this April 25 will have strong, clear minds, sweet tempers, kind natures and intuitive judgment. They will be extremely practical, and think and act quickly. They will in all private relations be loyal and constant, and will be rather extravagant in their display of affection.

Born on April 25 you have a forceful personality, combined with indomitable courage. These two qualities will carry you anywhere. Trifles never worry you; responsibilities never weigh you down, and work never tires you. When misfortune overtakes you, as it will on more than one occasion, you square your shoulders, never whimper, and philosophically say "that's that." Your courage then compels you to start afresh, until you have hewn a success out of a failure.

Life has in store for you great rewards. These will only materialize, however, if your judgment is sound. Herein lies your one weakness. You often discard the substance and pursue a shadow, and your perseverance, your industry and your concentration are spent on something not really worth while. Your very strength of character is, at times, a menace to your welfare. You can only visualize success, and are not prepared for pitfalls. Your judgments and conclusions are formed very quickly, and in your case "the wish is often father to the thought."

You are very devoted in your attachments, and no one could be more loyal and true. You give much and have the right to expect much in return. You will never be satisfied with a lukewarm affection.

THE NEW Jelleff's

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

"Andrew Lord" means "Manly Loaf-Keeper." "Priscilla Butler" means "Ancient Bottle-Keeper."

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Sims" is found with great frequency in the earliest English records. Some of its commonest variations are "Simms," "Simes," "Sim," "Simson" and "Simpson." All of these names mean "the son of Simon." The personal name 'Simon" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "obedient." An English document of the year 1379 mentions a certain Robert Symmes and a a Johannes Symson. Some families which bear this name have retained the old spellings "Symmes" and "Symson." As in the case with the names "Smith" and "Smyth," the spellings with "y" do not at all indicate a more aristocratic ancestry, in spite of the popular belief.

The family name "Keller" is of German origin. Although it means "the cellar," and sometimes indicates an original place of residence, it was generally first applied to persons who had charge of the wine cellars of large households. Therefore its common meaning is "the butler" (which really means "the bottle-keeper"), so it may be considered the equivalent of the English family name "Butler." However, there is evidence that some of the persons who were given the name "Keller" were occupied more as stewards and even as treasurers than they were as butlers. Finally, "Keller" has also taken on the extended meaning of "the store" or "the shop," and indicates an original place of business. The commonest variations of "Keller" are "Kellers," "Kelner," "Kellner," "Kellerer" and "Kellermann." These names occur very frequently in early German records. A few instances are Heinrich zem viten Chelre (1267), Heinrich Kelner (1283), Hermann up den Kellere (1370), and Everd Kellerman (1457).

GROUP WILL STUDY SANATORIUM IDEAS

Special Committee to Help Plan New Hospital for Children.

A special committee was appointed yesterday by District Commissioners to hear proposals and opinions of social agencies and medical groups regarding design of the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium, to be built on Defense highway, 15 miles out of the city.

This move was taken to make unnecessary further changes in plans such as were forced by criticism and dissatisfaction with preliminary plans drawn by the municipal architect's office.

One of the points of dispute is whether an institution of the sort should be a one-story affair spread out over large territory or whether it should have three stories and be more compact. Other questions have arisen regarding design.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, is head of the committee, and Assistant Engineer Commissioner H. L. Robb is vice chairman. Other members are: George S. Wilson, director of public welfare; Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer; Albert L. Harris, municipal architect; Dr. Joseph W. Peabody, superintendent of the Municipal Tuberculosis Hospital; Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, chief medical inspector of the public schools, and Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools.

As result of the controversy Commissioners recently employed a consulting architect, T. B. Kidner, at $50 a day, to assist in drafting plans for the sanatorium. An independent firm has also been hired to make a separate study of the project.

Amelia Earhart Made National Air Officer

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, transatlantic aviatrix, yesterday was named vice president of the National Aeronautical Association. Her election was announced by Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, president of the association, who said it "indicates the increasing part women are taking in the development of American aeronautics."

Mrs. Putnam, in addition to being the first woman to fly the Atlantic, recently set an altitude record of 18,415 feet in an autogiro. She was the first woman to fly a "windmill plane," the announcement said.

Postal Officials War On Marriage Concerns

(United Press.)

Fraud orders, forbidding their use of the mails and payment of money orders to them, have been issued against more than a dozen marriage and birth endowment and finance companies, the Postoffice Department announced yesterday.

The concerns were located at Oklahoma City, San Antonio and Houston and included the Marriage Finance Co., the Mutual Birth Finance Association, the Texas Tiny Tot Association, the United Marriage Endowment Association and the Successful Marriage and Birth Endowment Association.

Taxi and Car Collide; Woman, 54, Injured

Mrs. Anna Eckhardt, 54 years old, of 1212 Holly street northwest, received fractures of the left knee and ankle yesterday when an automobile driven by her husband overturned at Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest after a collision with a taxicab.

Her husband, Nicholas Eckhardt, and William Driscoll, of 4213 Eighth street northwest, the driver of the cab, were uninjured. Mrs. Eckhardt was removed to Emergency Hospital in another automobile.

Hawaii May Lure Porto Rican Labor

Sugar Men Seek Settlers; Would Aid Problem Facing Island.

San Juan, Porto Rico, April 23 (A.P.).—President Hoover's recent visit here, during which attention was directed to overpopulation in the island, has revived the prospect of a wholesome immigratino of Porto Rican laborers to Hawaii. This is the third time htis subject has come up in the last 30 years.

Hawaiian sugar planters want settlers rather than itinerant labor, it is said, and representatives of their interests are here to study the possibilities of getting such immigrants from Porto Rico. Transportatoin is considered the major difficulty.

Walter Dillingham, honolulu capitalist, is expected next wek as the guest of Gov. Roosevelt, but it is said here that he has no official connection with the sugar growers. Announcement of his projected visit followed a conference Mr. Dillingham had with President Hoover.

Girl, 14, Is Missing; Police Search Asked

Police yesterday were asked to search for Minna Pohlig, 14-year-old junior high school student, who left her home at 907 First street northwest to "take a walk" Thursday afternoon and has not been seen since. The girl's family was unable to assign any motive for her disappearance.

Minna is five feet five, weighs 112 pounds, has blue eyes and dark hair, and was wearing a tan dress, tan shoes and black coat. She was carrying no luggage.

Capital Starting Point Of Air Race to Mexico

(Associated Press.)

Washington, D. C., and Sacramento, Calif., yesterday were announced as the twin starting points of air races to the International Aeronautical-Industrial Exposition to be held at Mexico City May 15-24.

The announcement said 20,000 pesos would be paid the winner of the race from here and 15,000 to the winner of the Sacramento flight.

Clergyman Takes Own Life.

Poquonock, Conn., April 24 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. Alexis D. Kendrick, pastor of the Plainville Baptist Church, killed himself by shooting today. The medical examiner gave a verdict of suicide. Members of the family said the clergyman had suffered a mental breakdown. He had been in the ministry 32 years.

Woman Tourist and Son Plan 15,000 Mile Trip on $500

Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Mrs. Douglas Archer and her son, Douglas, jr., of Beverly, Calif., who are here on a "shoestring expense" tour of more than 15,000 miles in comfort for less than $500.

Mother and Boy Arrive by Bus From Coast on Glasgow Journey.

She's native Scotch—this stury little Glasgow-born tourist but she says it doesn't take a penny-pincher to duplicate her present feat in journeying more than 15,000 miles with a companion on a six-months' jaunt—all for less than $500.

Mrs. Douglas Archer, now a resident of Beverly, Calif., with her 12-year-old son, Douglas, jr., sojourned here yesterday at the Lafayette Hotel, fresh from a journey exclusively by bus from their home en route to Paris.

She is well along toward establishing a novel economy record, although she explained that she is determined to have comfort by stopping at good hotels and not skimping in paying a reasonable price along th way to live as a cultured woman demands.

It is a business-pleasure trip. She said that a call to Glasgow to settle personal legal matters induced her to try the experiment of getting the ultimate returns in happiness from a $500 expenditure for herself and her son.

Two small handbags constitute their luggage. In one grip she carries an evening gown, a dinner dress, two coats and other belongings, electing to wear an afternoon costume the greater part of the time. Her son carries in his grip four complete changes of clothing.

"In a measure, I think traveling is the best way to buck depression," she confessed. "Everybody seems to have their pockets buttoned up, but there's nothing to worry about. Let them all begin buying the things they want, and more especially, going the places they want to visit. My boy and I are traveling light, taking advantage of reduced rates where possible, traveling tourist third class both ways on the ocean. Our six months away will take us to Glasgow, London and to Paris for a short stay before returning."

She described herself as a poetess and writer, a first lieutenant in the British canteen service during the World War, and wife of a British officer wounded severely at Ypres. He is employed by an industrial concern near Berkely.

A. Burch, of China; A. E. Cory, Judge Guy Elliott, of North Carolina; A. D. Harmon, S. S. Lappin, H. O. Pritchard, Lee Sadler, F. E. Smith and Bert Wilson.

Fight Over Word Realtor Started

Real Estate Board Seeks to Enjoin Operator From Use of Term.

A fight to keep exclusive rights to the word "realtor" for members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, or its allied organizations, was started yesterday in the District Supreme Court when the Washington Real Estate Board filed an injunction plea requesting that David E. Barry, real estate operator, of K street near Eighteenth street northwest, be prohibited from using the word on his signs.

The court is told that the Real Estate Association and its members alone have the right to use of the word, and the claim is made that Barry is not a member and is therefore not entitled to use it. Attorneys for the Real Estate Board inform the court Barry has refused to heed their request that he desist from using the word "realtor" and has continued to use it.

Unless enjoined, the suit says, Barry will continue using the signs with the word "realtor" on them and others will be encouraged to use the word in disregard of the rights of the plaintiffs.

MISSIONARY LAUDS NEW RULE IN CHINA

National Government Doing Pretty Good Job of Work, Dr. Taylor Says.

The present national government of China has, and is doing a pretty good job of work, according to Joseph Taylor, head of the West China Union University, and recognized as one of the outstanding Protestant missionary figures in the Orient. Mr. Taylor, who was one of the principal speakers at the midyear meeting of Columbia Association in Calvary Baptist Church yesterday, bases his conclusions upon more than a quarter century of close observation of Chinese affairs, during which he has watched the Dragon slowly throwing off the lethargy of ignorance and superstition which has enwrapped him time out of mind, and his gradual awakening to a need of freedom and enlightment.

Dr. Taylor, who is a representative of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, has been engaged in Christian educational work in China for 27 years. He is given credit for the initiative which brought Union University into being in Chengtu, an ancient walled city 1,500 miles in the interior, the political cultural center of a province having a population of 60,000,000 people.

Peace Very Much Needed.

"Even the most unsympathetic critic of the present national government must agree that this government has done well under the conditions prevailing," says Dr. Taylor. "While it is not very democratic, it has set its face toward a time when a more democratic form of government will be possible. It has been and is enamored of certain forms and theories of Sovietism and, like other such bodies, has had to act in a dictatorial fashion. But if it could carry out its present program in an environment of peace and order, it would surely come out into a larger place of vision. It certainly is the best possible government at this time. While it could be improved by pruning and grafting, it has done well and should be allowed to continue for some time.

"If there is one blessing which the Chinese need and which they crave more than any other, it is that of peace. They have been torn asunder so long and so often by the military quarrels of opposing leaders that the country simply must have a decade of peace in order to allow the common people to recover from the devastating poverty in which they have lived so long.

China Potentially Rich.

"Even a country as large and potentially rich as China, with a citizenry of such remarkable recuperative powers, can not go on in a state of war forever. They will destroy themselves if they do, and the world will be forced, in the name of decency, to step in and administer the realm that they seem bent upon destroying.

"One should never forget," he says "that we work in a country that at the present time suffers from innumerable and varied distractions. Ever since Kunag Hsi put forth his epoch-making edicts in 1898 this country and people have been in the throes of a rebirth. It is well to remember this when one is endeavoring to evaluate the present situation.

"If critics of China would venture to take a sufficiently long review of her history, perhaps they would secure a proper perspective through which to view her present condition. Ideas are the basis of all forward-moving revolutions. China has ideas and has always had them. At times she has needed to discard some ideas that have ceased to function effeetively; and there has been a section of the people that were not ready to discard the old for a problematical new order of things.

Impatient of Slow Progress.

On the other hand, for many decades there has existed another group in this country who were, and are, impatient of the slow progress that is being made and are ready to adopt and use theories and policies that seem to have succeeded in other countries. In other words, China has come to a place where two seas meet and the water is exceedingly choppy.

"Those of us who come from other lands can help in keeping the ship of state on a more or less even keel by trying to instill certain Christian principles into the hearts and consciences of this people. The working out of their political and moral destiny is to a large degree in their own hands. We may chafe under mistakes that are made, and wish that they might be avoided; but growth must have its own way or become warped and distorted."

"Joe" Taylor is a Yorkshireman by birth, but came to this country as a lad and was educated here, graduating from Brown University. In addition to his teaching and directing in the university and his multitudious duties as a mission secretary, he has been in charge of home life of the Baptist College, the Bible School and school men.

Bible Readers' League Convenes

Participation in Washington Bicentennial Voted at Meeting.

The April meeting of the National and International Bible Readers' League, Inc., was held last Monday evening at 1103 Vermont avenue, with the president, Mrs. Louise Harding Earll, in the chair. Reports were received from members and committees, and plans were made for the annual meeting in May. Arrangements will also be made for the public awarding of prizes to winners of Bible reading contests at a meeting in the latter part of May. Six new members were reported through signed membership cards.

It was voted to donate 400 copies of St. Luke's gospel to the Boy Scouts for use in their work at Camp Roosevelt. It was voted to formally participate as an organization in the bicentennial celebration next year, and a committee on ways and means will be appointed.

The following committees were appointed for the annual meeting: Nominations, F. C. Lucas, E. L. Mattice and Mrs. W. R Atwill; resolutions, E. L. Mattice, Mrs. J. H. Sheppe and Mrs. Margaretta Storrs.

Dr. Phillips Evensong Preacher.

At the people's evensong service at Washington Cathedral tomorrow at 4 o'clock, the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Ze B. Phillips, of Epiphany Church. The service will be broadcast by radio over Station WMAL.

COOPER'S RELIGIOUS FAITH TO BE "TRIED"

Mock Indictment Arranged Before Calvary Vaughan Class Tomorrow.

Dr. William Knowles Cooper will be put on trial tomorrow morning before the Vaughan Bible Class of Calvary Baptist Church. The prosecutor will be Wilbur LaRoe, jr., a young lawyer of this city. The indictment will be the religious faith of Dr. Cooper.

This is something new under the sun in religious instruction. Dr. Cooper is not a member of the deep water communion. By birth and inheritance he is a Quaker. He never mentions that fact, so the secret is now out. When he came to manhood and began to think for himself, he united with the Congregational Church. His membership is in the Cleveland Park Church, of which the Rev. George L. Farnham is the pastor. Mr. Farnham is thought to be a liberal in his philosophy, and so is Dr. Cooper, for that matter.

Formerly Y. M. C. A. Secretary.

Many, many years Dr. Cooper was secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association in this city, and thousands of young men came under his influence and training and were moulded to better living and thinking by his example and instruction. Late in life—somewhere around the halfway mark between one and a century—he entered business as a banker. That was a novel change. Some men change after a life of business to a life of religious work.

On Saturday nights Dr. Cooper discusses the current Sunday school lesson over the radio. His audience is very large—he rises to the responsibility. On occasion he preaches for some tired minister who wants to go fishing; or addresses some group of young men and women on their problems. No free speaker of the city is more in demand for such occasions, or for religious addresses or sermons than he.

Never before has Dr. Cooper's faith been challenged. That used to be a Methodist custom, long since abandoned. In the early days the conference, then composed only of preachers, locked the doors and every man's life and official administration was challenged before the bishop, and every one of those old rugged pioneers had to stand up to the bar and defend himself. What a strong race of men it made! They were earnest, those old pioneers, and they defended their faith with all the courage of a Luther, a Calvin and a Wesley.

Will Be Examined in Faith.

Mr. LaRoe has not divulged the line of attack he will make on Dr. Cooper. Of course, it is what the lawyers term a friendly suit, for if there is any kink in Dr. Cooper's faith he would not submit himself to a Baptist jury or a Methodist sanhedrim or a Presbyterian council for trial. It is understood, however, that the centuries-old questions of liberalism and fundamentalism will be prominent in the examination through which Dr. Cooper will be taken.

There are some very learned people who think that the issues now breaking up the churches, under the name of Modernism, are really up-to-the-minute. They existed in Christ's time. There was rebellion in the first century of the Christian Church, and in one form and another, under one name and another, issues have periodically risen up to provoke controversy. They all, of course, swing around the great question, "What think ye of Christ? Whose son is He?"

This should be an interesting trial. It is open to the public. D. R. B.

"Suffocation of Life" Depp Sermon Topic

The Rev. Mark Depp has chosen for his discussion tomorrow evening at the Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road, the subject, "The Suffocation of Life." As a special musical feature for the evening there will be a violin, piano and organ ensemble, with Mrs. Ruth Bronson Logan, violinist; Miss Frances Bronson, pianist, and Mr. Louis Potter, organist.

In order that the congregational service, in which familiar hymns and gospel songs are used, may be made more vitally a service of the congregation, it is proposed to have the songs which are used selected by a member of the congregation. Those to be used tomorrow evening were selected by Mrs. S. J. Hess.

Those who will assist Mr. Depp in the pulpit are Dr. H. M. Dudley, who will lead the song service; William B. Wells, who will offer the prayer, and L. A. Bageant, who will read the scripture lesson.

Memorial to Key To Be Dedicated

Tablet at Cathedral Will Commemorate Author of National Anthem.

A memorial tablet to Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," will be dedicated in the Cathedral crypt Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Bishop James E. Freeman. This tablet is given by the Daughters of 1812, District of Columbia Chapter, who will be present, with others, in large numbers.

On Friday, May 1, Manila Day, there will be a special service of commemoration for George Dewey, admiral of the Navy, in the Bethlehem Chapel at 4 p. m. This annual commemoration will be attended by naval officers, members of patriotic societies and friends of Admiral Dewey. The address at the service will be made by Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, who was formerly an aid to Admiral Dewey.

Hymn Service Planned At Epiphany Chapel

Lovers of the old, familiar hymns will enjoy the special song service at Epiphany Chapel, Sixteenth and U streets northwest, tomorrow night. Special numbers by the Victory Quartet will alternate with congregational singing of many of the best loved gospel songs, led by John Stowell.

The quartet numbers are as follows: "My Task" (Ashford), "God Is Love" (Shelley), "The Old Rugged Cross" and "The Golden Bells Ring Out," first and second tenor duet, "Beloved, Let Us Love One Another" (Stainer). The members of the quartet are Eugene Dahl, Lynn Gilchrest, Ralph Balliette and Ray Gustin.

Sentence Sermons

By DR. CARL C. RASMUSSEN
(Pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church).

"I Know Him!"

ST. AUGUSTINE declared that the soul is restless until it finds rest in God. Our hearts confirm his words!

But multitudes cry with Job, "Oh that I knew where I might find Him!" Men "seek God, if haply they might feel after Him and find Him." "Show us the Father," is the age-old cry of the heart.

But "no man has seen God at any time." How can He be known?

There have been four great avenues of approach to the knowledge of God. We should recognize them, the better to find our own way.

Some have found faith resting on the conviction that the Lord had appeared to them in direct vision. Their conviction was unshakable. They had seen God—like Abraham before the doom of Sodom; and Moses on Sinai; and Paul before Damascus. Man returns from his vision crying, "I know Him."

A greater multitude have shared the vision of the Psalmist as he saw God through His handiwork. "The heavens declare the glory of God." Men who come back from contemplation of the marvels of existence likewise join in the exulting cry, "I know Him."

Another hand that draws us to God is the witness of those who testified regarding their own discovery. All of us are debtors to such witness in religion, even as in every other sphere. Listening to the testimony of the spiritual giants of the ages—to Abraham, David, Isaiah, Jesus and an increasing company—multitudes raise their voices, too, in the song, "I know Him."

But, finally, we realize that there is a further test by which the validity of vision, reason and testimony must be vindicated. How does the discovery prove out in life? The answer comes back triumphantly. When we dare to "bet our lives on God," to act on the conviction that the self-revelation of the God of Jesus Christ is true, we find ourselves, by that very fact, on the road to life's matchless richness. Finding in that way the abundant life, the soul joins in the cry of discovery, "I know Him."

BENSON TO BE AID AT CRUSADE MASS

Archbishop Curley to Preside at Colorful Event at Catholic U.

Rear Admiral W. S. Benson has been selected as the personal aid of Archbishop Curley for the great celebration of the Students' Mission Crusade on Ascension Day at the Catholic University of America. The other aid to the archbishop is Thomas Pangborn, of Hagerstown.

Admiral Benson will attend to the reception of the diplomats and national leaders and the officials of the State of Maryland and of the City of Baltimore, who will be present at the demonstration.

At the rally there will be a display of flags of all nations at the Stadium. The Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, Archdiocesan Director of the Propagation of the Faith, has been notified such flags will be placed at his disposal. The boxes in which the diplomats and other distinguished men will sit will be decorated.

There will be color everywhere. The members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps of Georgetown University, the Cadets of St. John's College and members of other military organizations will be there, as will thousands of students wearing the colors of their schools.

Some of the students will wear picturesque uniforms. There will be a massing of American flags and other standards near the altar at which the Field Mass will be celebrated by Archbishop Curley.

Thousands Will Attend.

Many monsignori and representatives of the various religious houses at the Catholic University and other institutions in the Archdiocese will attend the celebration. There will be thousands at the stadium when the mass begins. It will be a decidedly cosmopolitan throng, representative of many nations and of practically every State in the Union.

On Tuesday various officials, including Mgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University, met at the stadium to discuss the plans. Maj. Thomas J. McNicholas, who had complete charge of the physical arrangements at the Ascension Day celebration by the Crusaders in Baltimore last year, was there with blueprints. His vision of what is to be and his grasp of the hundred and one details evoked the admiration of Admiral Benson and others.

Invitations Sent Out.

The invitations have been sent out by Father Vaeth and a heartening response has followed their reception. Among the members of the hierarchy who have been invited, besides Archbishop Curley and Bishop McNamara, are Archbishop John T. McNicholas, of Cincinnati, and Archbishop Francis J. L. Beckman, of Dubuque.

The priests of the archdiocese are asked to bring their cassocks and surplices with them. The priests will vest in McMahon Hall.

Memorial Mass.

The annual memorial and communion mass under the auspices of Washington Chapter, Knights of Columbus, will be said at St. Matthew's Church tomorrow at 8 a. m.

Archbishop Curley will be the celebrant of the mass. Breakfast will be served after the mass at the Mayflower Hotel. Father Ignatius Smith will be the principal speaker. W. G. Feely, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus, will be toastmaster.

Mt. Pleasant Church Completes Survey

Data on Sunday School's Activities Compiled for Yale Institute.

Responding to the request of the Institute of Human Relations of Yale University, the committee on education of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church has just completed an exhaustive survey of all activities directly and indirectly conducted by its church school. The results of the survey will be submitted early next week to Earle V. Ehrhart, field worker of the institute, who will be the guest of the local school for several days.

The survey has been conducted in fifteen churches in different parts of the country, selected by the Yale Institute, the Mount Pleasant Congregational School being the only one surveyed in the District. The selections were made according to the location of the churches, the character of their membership and the outline of activities of the schools, rather than the number of members.

The data secured in the fifteen churches as a result of the survey will be carefully studied and compiled, to be finally published for the use of the faculties and students of all Protestant theological seminaries and schools of religious education, in connection with their courses on church school training and instruction. The survey in the Mount Pleasant church was conducted under the direct supervision of Dr. Charles S. Howard, chairman of the committee on Education, and Miss Lois M. Kugler, director of religious education.

Problems of Married Studied by Church

More than one hundred of the young people of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, who are making a six weeks' study of the problems involved in "Marriage and the Home," will continue their work in seminar groups tomorrow evening. These groups, consisting of 25 or more members each, who have been assigned definite subjects, will continue their study and research for four weeks.

They will then submit the result of their work to the entire group, and the remaining two weeks will be spent in compiling these results and preparing a final report on the general subject. It is expected that this report will be ready for publication in pamphlet form early in June.

Home for Incurables To Have Services

The Men's Bible Class of the Calvary Methodist Church will conduct a service at the Home for Incurables, on Wisconsin avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 6 o'clock. This service, which is in charge of a committee of which A. Rea Williams is chairman, is sponsored by the class on the last Sunday afternoon of each month.

The Rev. Mark Depp will give a brief talk, Miss Stuart Gibson will sing a soprano solo, and Mr. Norman Cunningham will preside. At the request of the members of the home the singing of familiar hymns is featured.

TURNS 'EM AWAY

MRS. EDITH MAE PENNINGTON, beauty prize winner, conducting evangelistic campaign.

BEAUTY REVIVALIST TAKES LARGER HALL

Crowds Compel Mrs. Pennington to Conduct Services in Temple.

Something new has broken out in Washington: a religious revival. It started at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets, which has been noted for its simplicity and primitiveness and for its persistence in holding divine healing services. The pastor, the Rev. Harry L. Collier, has a passion for soul winning, the sort of passion that stirred Francis Xavier and John Wesley and Francis Asbury and Dwight L. Moody.

In recent times this minister has had evangelists of one kind and another to come in and help him stir the embers of faith; but now he has one whom, after achieving fame on one field, has turned to another and is making quite a name for herself—Mrs. Edith Mae Pennington.

Some years ago Mrs. Pennington won first prize in a national beauty contest. Then she appeared on the stage and went to Hollywood to make pictures. Her conversion to Christianity led her to take up the cross of the meek and lowly Jesus. After due preparation she became an evangelist.

Her immediate success at the Full Gospel Tabernacle has drawn people to that little chapel who never darkened its doors before. Nightly the crowds have grown until many are being turned away. The result has been that the Masonic Temple, Thirteenth street and New York avenue, has been engaged for an indefinite period for her evangelistic campaign. Here she will preach every evening.

In line with this movement, an enlarged chorus and orchestra has been organized and will lead the music, assisted by a men's gospel chorus and prominent musicians of the city.

Every Thursday evening there will be a Christian healing service for the sick of every creed and faith.

Healing Service on Tuesday.

The next service of the St. Stephen's Healing Mission will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest, under the direction of the rector, Dr. George F. Dudley.

CLAIM OF 'PROBABLE' RECORD IS DISPUTED

Even Dr. Ball Adds Voice in Disclaiming Credit Bestowed on Him.

By THE CHURCH EDITOR.

Somewhere in the Gospels or the Epistles one of the Apostles says: "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth." In another place St. James says: "The tongue is a small member, but unruly." If typewriters and good intentions had prevailed in the first century, they too would have figured in some of the everlasting sayings that make up Holy Writ, and then the inspired writer might have said something like this: "The typewriter writes fast and with the best intentions, but it sometimes writes unwisely and stirreth the brethren to reproach."

Two weeks ago a little item reached the writer's desk about a peculiarly interesting service that would take place at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, of which Dr. John Compton Ball is the honored pastor. It stated that he would receive into membership on the ensuing Sunday his 2300th member.

Seizing upon this the typewriter wrote two small paragraphs about the event, the concluding one being as follows:

"This probably is a record for Washington churches. As a matter of fact, very few ministers in the history of the Christian Church have ever received so large a number of members in one lifetime."

Statement Draws Challenge.

There seemed to be some saving grace in the word "probably," but the statement was immediately challenged by one of those rantankerous, controversial Tennesseans, who has known the church editor since his childhood and well enough to speak familiarly of him and his sainted father. Last Saturday we printed his piece, a goodly piece, an honest piece, and a purposeful piece. This fell under Dr. Ball's eye and now we are honored with his summation of the whole matter. Let him speak for himself:

"I was quite surprised to have my attention called to your article in The Post of last Saturday referring to my having set up a record in taking in 2,300 members. If you have the original of what was sent in, you will readily see that the controversial side of the question, or any thought of setting up a record, was introduced by yourself. My statement was to the fact that on Sunday I would receive my 2300d member, and there I stopped. The matter of it being a record was your own addition, and you should assume the responsibility.

"I honor the layman who raised the question, and I would raise it myself, for I am fully aware that my record is not the largest, and I did not so state. All honor to Dr. Green and Dr. Kelly and Dr. Meador and Dr. Briggs, and all the rest of them. My impression is that the record of every one of them exceeds mine, and I had no thought of starting a controversy on any such question, but simply made a statement of a delightful fact, to wit: that the 2300d person was to be received that Sunday.

Lauds Work of Dr. Briggs.

"However, if it is possible that the Lord should spare me to be the pastor of the Metropolitan Church 41 years, even the record of Dr. Green might be equaled. My opinion is that if you should average the number of members received with the length of the pastorate, Dr. Briggs, of the Fifth Baptist Church, would have the record, and I rejoice with him in the wonderful way God has blessed him in winning souls.

"My personal request is that you give this letter just as marked publicity next Saturday as you gave to the criticism made by our Honored Layman, whoever he may be."

Goldsmith in his great poem, "The Deserted Village," speaks kindly of the parson who was a great "arguyer," who, even though convinced against his will, stuck to his opinion. Might we not emulate his example and continue to say that Dr. Ball has hung up a record, a good record, even though he is outnumbered by some others.

Central Presbyterian Generous in Giving

At the recent meeting of Potomac Presbytery in Baltimore the Central Presbyterian Church of this city presented one of the most encouraging financial reports in the history of this church.

This church exceeds the quota assigned for benevolences, responding in a most liberal way to the unusual calls sent out by the various executive committees of the Southern Presbyterian Church for increased gifts to various missionary enterprises made necessary by the disastrous effects of the drought in certain sections of the South requiring other churches to give in excess of the amounts originally requested.

Potomac Auxiliary To Meet Next Week

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Potomac Presbytery, Synod of Virginia, will meet in the Presbyterian Church at Culpeper, Va., next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The Rev. Thomas Hooper is pastor of the church. Mrs. Rufus Clarke, president of the Presbyterial, will preside, and the Rev. Darby Fulton will deliver the missionary address.

Inspirational meetings will be held each day, and reports from all the auxiliary bodies will be given. Mrs. E. L. Russell, of Mobile, Ala., will conduct the Bible study. A number of delegates from Washington will attend.

Appearing Each Saturday in The Washington Post

Meat Stew With Vegetables, Shepard Pies, Chowders, Soups Among Them.

The one-dish meal has become one of the favorite means of economy in low-cost food diets and the Bureau of Economics of the Department of Agriculture, in connection with the woman's division of the President's emergency committee for employment, recently made public a statement giving valuable suggestions along this line. In addition to being economical such meals also save time and energy. In meals of this sort starchy and protein foods can be served along with the vegetables in a single dish.

All the ingredients of a well-balanced meal can be included in single-dish meals, but such a meal is made more interesting and nutritious by addition of a raw vegetable salad, stewed or fresh fruit in season. Raw foods provide vitamin C, which are likely to be destroyed in long cooking.

Are Served Quickly.

Women in business and industry with families to cook for find this type of meal valuable because it can be served quickly and it simplifies their work. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau, says it would be desirable if mothers could purchase these dishes already prepared. Day nurseries and industrial plants with cafeterias would perform a real service, she said, if they would prepare one-dish meals to sell at cost to working mothers. Both the day nurseries and the industrial cafeterias have the equipment for cooking and this plan would not entail additional expense except for labor and materials, she said. Such a plan would increase the use of the kitchen equipment when it is usually idle, she pointed out.

Many combinations of food can be used for one-dish meals. Some which the bureau advocates are meat stews with vegetables, shepard pies, chowders and thick vegetable soups made with meat stock.

The one-dish meal is not a twentieth century invention, for it harks back to the earliest forms of cooking on which, even today, some of the nomadic tribes of the Old World still subsist. After the value of cooking food was discovered the meats were first broiled over a fire on a stick. The next step was to bury it in leaves in embers and then it was found that daubing food with clay before burying it was better still.

Hot Stones Dropped.

With the advent of a cooking pot, hot stones were dropped into it to cook the ingredients, and finally the pot itself was placed over the coals. So into this container were placed the meat and cereals that made up the meals. When vegetables became known, they were added to the other foods in the pot and this form of cooking served man for a long time. The ancients had no thought for saving time, money or labor. Their primitive needs were easily satisfied by simple meals, to which, in times of necessity, we find ourselves returning.

Elaborate meals are costly and no more nutritious than simple ones planned to contain foods that supply energy, build and repair the body cells and those which may be termed regulatory. In the first group are the cereals and starches, while such proteins as meat, fish, eggs, cheese, milk, and the legumes give energy. The vegetables and fruit comprise the latter class with their minerals and vitamins so necessary for maintaining normal nutrition.

A family of seven, including father, mother, and five children, should buy every week: Bread, 16 to 22 pounds; flour, 3 to 4 pounds; cereal, 6 to 8 pounds; whole fresh milk, 30 to 42 quarts (or canned unsweetened milk, 30 to 42 tall cans); potatoes, 20 to 30 pounds; dried beans, peas, peanut butter, 1 to 3 pounds; tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruits, 9 pounds; other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color) and inexpensive fruits, 20 to 25 pounds; fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, &c., 4 pounds; sugar and molasses, 5 pounds; lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs (8 eggs approximate 1 pound), 7 to 10 pounds; eggs (for children), 8 eggs; coffee, 1 pound; tea, ¼ pound.

DINNER
Baker Cheese Tamale
Raw Vegetable Salad
Gingerbread
Tea.

These recipes serve five persons:

Baked Cheese Tamale.

3 tablespoons drippings.
2 cups tomatoes.
3 teaspoons salt.
1½ cups cornmeal.
Pepper.
5 cups boiling water.
1 cup grated cheese.

Cook the onions in the drippings for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, 1 teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, and cook 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle the cornmeal slowly into the boiling water, add the two teaspoons of salt, stir constantly and cook for 15 minutes. Into a greased baking dish place alternate layers of the mixtures and sprinkle each layer with the cheese, reserving some of the cheese for the top layer. Bake about 25 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve from the dish.

Fish Chowder.

1 onion, sliced.
2 cups carrots, cut in pieces.
9 potatoes, peeled and cut in small pieces.
Pepper.
3 tablespoons flour.
3 cups milk.
1½ pounds fish (fresh, salt, or canned).

Cut pork in small pieces and fry with the chopped onion for five minutes. Put pork, onions, carrots, and potatoes and pepper in kettle and cover with boiling water. Cook until vegetables are tender. Mix three tablespoons of flour with one-half cup of the cold milk and stir in the liquid in the pot to thicken. Add the rest of the milk and the fish which has been removed from the bone and cut in small pieces. Cook until the fish is tender, about ten minutes. Serve hot. You can omit salt pork and use a tablespoon of other fat.

Rabbit, fowl, or any meat may be used instead of the fish, or tomatoes instead of milk.

Potted Hominy and Beef.

2 tablespoons flour.
2 cups milk.
4 potatoes.
2 cups carrots.
5 cups cooked hominy.
¼ pound dried beef.
1 teaspoon salt.

Heat 1½ quarts of water to boiling; add 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of hominy which has been soaked overnight. Cook in a double-boiler for four hours or in the fireless cooker overnight. This makes 5 cups.

Melt the fat, stir in the flour, add the cold milk, and mix well. Cook until it thickens. Cut the potatoes and carrots in dice, mix all the materials in a baking dish, and bake for one hour.

This recipe may be increased and enough cooked in different ways for several meals. Hominy is excellent combined with dried, canned, or fresh fish, or meat and vegetable left-overs may be used.

POTATOES CONTAIN DESIRED MINERALS

Proper Method of Baking Vegetables Is Related in Many Ways.

Probably every one would agree that there's no more appetizing vegetable than a well-baked potato, on which one may spread butter "ad lib"—or in unlimited quantities, the necessary salt and colorful paprika. The points about the baking of potatoes, noted by the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture, are given in the recipe following. One reason for scrubbing the skins well is that many people like to eat them, and dietitians will tell you that this is a good thing to do because some of the valuable minerals in the potato are close to the skin.

Don't have the oven too hot, or the skins will be hard and dry. Allowing the steam to escape promptly is one way of assuring that the potato will be flaky and mealy, not soggy, when opened. Among her labor-saving devices it is to be hoped that every housewife has some sort of tongs or other implement suitable for removing baked potatoes from the oven without burning her fingers.

Selection Is Important.

Select good baking potatoes of uniform size and shape, scrub thoroughly and bake in a moderately hot oven for 45 to 60 minutes, or until soft when pressed. Take the potatoes from the oven at once, work gently with the fingers to loosen the skin, make a short gash to allow the steam to escape, season with butter or other fat, salt and a dash of paprika and serve at once.

For baked potatoes on the half shell, cut the potatoes lengthwise as soon as they are taken from the oven, scrape out the inside, being careful not to break the skin, mash, season with salt, pepper, butter or other fat, and cream or rich milk, and beat until light. Place this mixture in the skins, brush the tops with melted fat, and put the potatoes in the oven to reheat and brown. For variety, sprinkle grated cheese over the potatoes before they are browned or add a little chopped green pepper to the potato mixture.

Ham With Sweet Potatoes.

If you have an earthenware or glass baking dish with a close-fitting cover you can use it many times during the winter to prepare hot and appetizing meat dishes of various kinds. In mild weather it is not always so desirable to keep the oven going for an hour or more. Another advantage of the casserole dish is that when the meat is once cooked to the point of tenderness, if there are late comers to the meal, the dish can be held at a fairly hot temperature with less chance of spoiling its flavor than with most cooked meats.

Likewise, while first helpings are being eaten, the remainder of the meat in the baking dish keeps hot. The following recipe for smothered ham with sweet potatoes is an excellent one of this type. It is from the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

1 slice ham, cut into sizes for serving.
3 cups raw sliced sweet potatoes.
1 cup hot water.
1 tablespoon ham drippings.
2 tablespoons sugar.

Brown the ham lightly on both sides and place in a baking dish. Spread the sliced sweet potatoes over the ham, sprinkle with the sugar, add the hot water and drippings, cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until the ham is tender. Baste the potatoes occasionally with the gravy and when tender remove the lid and brown the top well.

PARTY MADE EASY BY SIMPLE REPAST

Underlying Secret Disclosed in Making Entertaining Attractive.

"Every one likes to go to her parties."

"It doesn't seem to be any effort for her to entertain."

These are two comments which every woman would like to have made about her hospitality. The underlying secret of entertaining well and easily is to undertake only what can be done successfully. The simplest refreshments served daintily and smoothly may be more enjoyed than the most elaborate repast.

One of the favorite ways of entertaining in these days of bridge popularity is at luncheon before the game. Here are two attractive and satisfying menus for bridge luncheons which can be prepared ahead of time:

Tomato juice cocktail, noodle ring with creamed spinach and mushrooms, lettuce salad with cheese dressing, hot biscuits, spiced peaches, mixed pickles, banana mousse, nut cake, coffee.

Fruit cocktail with mint, celery, olives, creamed crab meat, lettuce with chili sauce, lemon ice with mint cherries, coffee.

Banana Mousse.

3 tablespoons sugar.
1 whole egg.
1 tablespoon flour.
1 cup milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 well-ripened bananas, crushed.
1 cup cream, whipped, or 1 cup evaporated milk.

Beat egg well. Add sugar, stir in flour, add milk and cook until thick over hot water. Cool. Add vanilla, crushed banana, whipped cream or evaporated milk and blend well. Place in automatic refrigerator tray or pack in salt and ice and freeze about three hours or until set.

Noodle Ring With Creamed Spinach and Mushrooms.

2 tablespoons butter.
1 cup browned bread crumbs.

Boil noodles in salted water, drain in colander, pour cold water over them and let drain. Mix with two tablespoons butter and place in a well-greased ring mold, sprinkled with bread crumbs. Set in a pan of boiling water and let bake slowly about three-quarters of an hour. Turn out on platter and fill center with creamed spinach and mushrooms.

Egg Noodles Are Put Into Peach Cobbler

EGG NOODLE PEACH COBBLER.

1 large can peaches.
¼ cup water.
2 tablespoons sugar.
Few grains nutmeg.
2 tablespoons butter.
¼ teaspoon salt.
Buttered bread crumbs.

Parboil the noodles for 7 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Pour the juice off the peaches and slice them. To the juice add the water, sugar and nutmeg. In a well-greased baking dish put alternate layers of noodles and peaches, allowing the top layer to be of noodles. Dot each layer with bits of butter. Pour the seasoned liquid over the dish, cover with the crumbs. Dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 minutes. Serve with hard sauce.

Now's When You Can Appreciate Self-Rising

Washington FLOUR

With all the delicious shortcakes and pastries to be made, you will find Self-Rising Washington Flour a decidedly efficient help. In the first place, it is ground from a special growth of wheat, which adapts it to kitchen facilities. It comes mixed with the exactly correct proportions of the purest leavening phospates, which overcomes the necessity of mixing with baking powder and saves the expense of buying it.

Self-Rising Washington Flour and Plain Washington Flour constitute the "Pantry Pals"—real family flour—that will fit right into both your recipes and your kitchen equipment, producing absolutely successful results no matter what you bake.

Self-Rising Washington Flour is especially adapted for baking biscuits, waffles, as well as shortcakes and pastries; and Plain Washington Flour is an all-purpose flour ready to bake anything, at any time.

Both are for sale by grocers and delicatessens in all sizes from two-pound sacks up and guaranteed.

STEWS OF OX TAIL DELICIOUS AS FOOD

Meat Has Fine Flavor Cooks Know and Is Popular Served in Soup.

One of the less known but very delicious meats you can buy in most markets is an "ox-tail." It is, of course, the tail of any beef animal. Restaurant chefs and other successful cooks have long known the fine flavor of the meat that clings to the vertebral bones in the tail, and have blended this flavor with that of various vegetables in making soup stocks and stews.

Simmered Several Hours.

An ox-tail must be simmered for quite a long time, usually three or four hours. When the meat is tender the bones will separate. It is then time to add the vegetables, cooking them 10 to 15 minutes in the liquor with the meat. Lemon and parsley, added at serving time, are among the flavors blended with ox-tail. An ox-tail soup or stew is so substantial and nutritious that with crisp toasted rolls or oven-dried bread it is enough for the main course. To round out the menu serve something tart—such as a grapefruit salad—and for dessert a rice or tapioca pudding since there is relatively little potato or other starchy material in the ox-tail blend.

The following recipe is indorsed by the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Ox-Tail Soup.

2½ quarts of water.
4 carrots, diced.
2 turnips, diced.
2 onions, diced.
1 large potato, diced.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce or other seasoning.
Salt and pepper to taste.
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped fine.
Slices of lemon.

Wash the ox-tail, cut it in short lengths, and brown it in its own fat. Cook the onions in the butter, add to the meat with 2½ quarts of water, and simmer for 3 or 4 hours, or until the meat is tender. Then add the diced carrots, turnips and potato, and cook 10 or 15 minutes longer, or until the vegetables are done. Add the seasonings. Serve at once and garnish each plate with a thin slice of lemon and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

If you would rather serve the ox-tail as a stew, drain off the broth and measure as much as you will need for the gravy. For each pint of broth allow two tablespoons of flour mixed with cold water to a smooth paste. Cook until thickened, add the meat and vegetables, and reheat. Serve the stew also with a garnish of lemon and chopped parsley.

Stuffed Tomatoes Put Into Elbow Macaroni

6 tomatoes.
3 tablespoons butter.
1 tablespoon flour.
1½ cups hot milk.
½ cup grated cheese.
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs.
2 teaspoons parsley.
1 hard cooked egg

Boil the elbow macaroni for 9 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Cut off tops of the tomatoes and remove the pulp. In a double boiler, melt the butter, add the flour and when well blended, pour in the hot milk. Cook for 10 minutes, then add cheese, salt and paprika and stir until thoroughly blended. Mix half of the sauce with 1½ cups of the cooked elbow macaroni and fill the tomatoes with the mixture. Cover the tops with bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven until the tomatoes are tender. On a platter place the remaining elbows and pour over them the remaining sauce. Put the stuffed tomatoes in the center and garnish with the egg, cut in slices, and the parsley. Spaghetti may be substituted for the elbow macaroni, or wide noodles may be used.

Lemon Custard Pie Always Makes Appeal

3 tablespoons flour
1 cup water
2 eggs (reserve whites for meringue)
Grated rind of 1 lemon
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix sugar and flour; add the water, beaten egg yolks, grated lemon rind, lemon juice, and butter; cook in a double boiler until thick; put in a baked pie shell and cover with meringue. Bake until a delicate brown in a slow oven (275 degrees F) from 15 to 20 minutes.

Caramel Custard Pie Most Appetizing Dish

2 cups sugar
2 cups scalded milk
1-3 cup flour
3 eggs (reserve 2 whites for meringue)
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Carmelize 1 cup of the sugar; add the hot milk to the carmelized sugar; cook until smooth; add the remaining sugar, flour, and beaten eggs. Cook the mixture until it is of the consistency of thick cream; remove it from fire; add the butter and vanilla; pour into a pastry-lined pie pan, and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F) until the pastry is a pale brown. Remove from oven; spread with meringue, and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F) about 15 minutes; or cook the custard mixture until quite thick; pour into a baked pastry shell; cover with meringue, and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F) 15 or 20 minutes.

BUSINESS LEADERS PAY PLITT TRIBUTE

Retiring Board of Trade President Is Lauded for Achievements.

Prominent Washingtonians from all branches of business and several civic organizations last night attended a dinner honoring George Plitt, retiring president of the Board of Trade, which was given at the Willard Hotel.

Maj. Gen. H. B. Crosby, District Commissioner, was the ranking guest and principal speaker. Many of those who paid tribute to the retiring executive pointed out that his administration was an outstanding year in the history of the organization.

Among the achievements mentioned, and which were inscribed on a beautifully executed plaque presented Mr. Plitt, were the publication of the first general survey of the National Capital and its environs and the preservation and the underwriting by the board of the National Firemen's Day and parade, which brings to Washington over 100,000 persons.

Others were the promotion of the Hybla Valley Air Field as the American port for the proposed transatlantic Zeppelin line and the creation of the Greater National Capital committee of the Board of Trade for the general promotion of Washington throughout the Nation. The plaque on which this was noted was signed by eight of the board officers, headed by George W. Offutt, the new president.

Those present at the dinner were Jerome F. Barnard, Edwin C. Brandenburg, Walter A. Brown, A. C. Case, E. F. Colladay, Robert J. Cottrell, Gen. Crosby, J. Harry Cunningham, John Joy Edson, Robert V. Fleming, Frank P. Leetch, Charles W. Morris, Arthur Moses, Odell S. Smith, Mr. Plitt, Mr. Offutt, Frank R. Strunk, Milton Schwab, Ben T. Webster, Fred J. White and Don Warren.

NOTES OF D. A. R.

Three generations are represented in D. A. R. and C. A. R. congresses by one family group. Mrs. Florence H. Williamson represents New York City Chapter as a delegate and shares honors with her daughters, Mrs. Burns H. Waters, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Philip J. Hickey, jr., of Phoenix, Ariz. In the Children's Congress are Ruth Tracy Waters, of Lighthorse Harry Lee Chapter; June Elizabeth Waters, Burns H. Waters, jr., and Richard Williamson Waters, all of Baltimore, and Donald Mansfield Hickey, of Phoenix, grandchildren of Mrs. Williamson.

Mrs. Jack Marshall, delegate from the President Monroe Chapter, District D. A. R., is to entertain at a luncheon at the Willard in honor of Mrs. R. N. Garrett, of Arkansas. The guests will be Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews, Mrs. Sallie V. H. Pickett, Mrs. Rose Gouvernier Hoes, Mrs. Charles H. Lanier, president of the Robert E. Lee Foundation, of Connecticut; Mrs. Martin Sigman, vice president general, D. A. R., of Arkansas; Mrs. William Arnold, State regent, Arkansas; Mrs. B. S. Atkinson, Arkansas, and Mrs. M. A. Austin, Arkansas.

The list of pages from the District of Columbia includes Mrs. Catherine A. Allen, Mrs. Grace Pence Braden, Mrs. Kennie H. Bletz, Miss Marion Cox, Miss Charlie Griggs, Miss Catherine Hicks, Miss Esther Holden, Mrs. Ruth Foster Littlepage, Miss Mary B. Lynn, Miss Eloise S. Naphen, Miss Marguerite Orme, Mrs. Frances Rainey, Miss Catherine Spengler, Mrs. Margaret M. Titus, Mrs. Elmerdeen Bailey, Miss Ruth Ann Parker, Miss Elizabeth Ann Barr, Mrs. Lillian J. Greathouse, Miss Frances Phillips, Miss Dorothy Ellis, Mrs. Rosalie Shantz, Mrs. Helen Louise White, Mrs. Mary E. Fleetwood, Miss Ella L. Bockoven and Mrs. Margaret McK. Brumbaugh.

Pages representing foreign chapters are Miss Mary M. Kenway, of London, England; Miss Emma S. Lester, of Washington, representing Shanghai, China; Mrs. Evelyn G. Sanders, of Jackson Heights, N. Y., representing Hawaii, and Miss Elizabeth J. Wolfe, of Bridgeport, Conn., representing Paris, France.

Idaho showed advancement along all lines of endeavor, according to Mrs. Joseph E. Bird, of Nampa, State regent. A chapter has been organized at Wallace, flags and flag codes have been given to schools, prizes awarded for essays, Boy Scouts, Girl Reserves and Red Cross work supported and all national activities assisted.

Illinois has 9,700 D. A. R. in 110 chapters, four new chapters having been organized by Mrs. Eli Dixson, of Roseville, State regent. Mrs. Dixson reported that each Illinois chapter is sponsoring at least one child's club or young women's circle. Illinois has students attending sixteen different colleges through assistance from the student loan fund. Illinois supports the R. O. T. C. and the State organization has contributed toward purchase of athletic equipment for Fort Sheridan. The D. A. R. schools received $14,850.

In Arkansas, hard hit by the drought, Mrs. William Arnold, State regent, headed D. A. R. relief work in the stricken districts. Mrs. Arnold was able to report that, despite the stress her State has gone through, all financial obligations have been met and there has been no loss in membership, with D. A. R. going steadily forward with a hopeful outlook.

California's 81 chapters and over 5,000 members, besides contributing to all national work, have distinctive enterprises of their own, according to Mrs. Frank Phelps Toms, of Pasadena, State regent. Because of California's size, the D. A. R. is divided into two regional councils, north and south. All of the State is interested in two distinctive D. A. R. activities, the migratory schools, where the schools follow the pupils as itinerant workers follow the many field crops from south to north, and in the new Russia-Ukranian settlement center in Los Angeles. This latter was set up as an offset to Communist organizations among the many foreigners in Southern California. Student loans total $6,707, an increase for the year of $2,000, with 17 girls on the list.

Colorado has helped 32 students in colleges with student loan funds of $6,149.05 this year, according to Mrs. E. Thomas Boyd, of Denver, State regent. Girl homemakers clubs have 480 members; Sons and Daughters of the Republic clubs have been organized in several towns; in several industrial communities night schools for foreigners are supported, and public interest has been increased in forestry and park projects.

Further Divorce Action Enjoined by Justice

Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday signed a permanent injunction prohibiting Harry H. Frazier from further enlarging a decree of limited divorce which he obtained from his wife in Arlington County, Va., in February, 1930.

The justice at the same time awarded Mrs. Frazier a limited divorce from her husband on the ground of desertion and indicated that she would be allowed alimony. Mrs. Frazier filed suit for limited divorce in 1929 and about a year later the husband countered with a suit in Virginia. The decree awarded him is declared void by Justice Bailey.

Family to Decide In Banker's Death

Claim Hambleton Was Victim of Foul Play Awaits Action.

Baltimore, April 24 (A.P.).—Action on the allegation of an insurance investigator that T. Edward Hambleton, investment banker, was a victim of foul play, awaited a decision by members of his family today.

State's attorney J. C. L. Anderson said he planned no action until the preliminary findings of the investigator, made public yesterday, were brought officially to his attention.

Mr. Hambleton, head of the investment banking house of Hambleton & Co. was found dead in bed the morning of December 23 in his suburban home, a pistol in his hand. A coroner reported then it was "a clear case of suicide" and held no inquest.

The investigator, retained by the attorney for the investment house following a dispute over the payment of $750,000 insurance, said he believed the banker had been murdered, possibly by "some weak-minded investor," who had lost money in the stock market debacle of 1929.

Baltimore Attorney, Virginia Native, Dies

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (A.P.).—Houston S. Smith, 56 years old, former deputy State's attorney and twice a Republican nominee for the supreme bench, died here yesterday at a hospital. He was a native of Richmond, Va.

His family moved here when he was of school age. He was educated at the City College and the University of Maryland Law School and practiced law for 35 years. His widow survives.

Jewish Dramatic Group Plans Play

"The Golem" Will Be Fifth Annual Production by Society.

The Dramatic Society of the Jewish Community Center will present its fifth annual spring production, "The Golem," next Wednesday evening at the center.

"The Golem," the classic of Hebrew drama, depicts mystic phases of Jewish folk life. It possesses one of the most intricately woven themes of tradition and prejudice ever written for any stage.

The original script, translated from the Hebrew by Mr. H. Lievesk, has been adapted for presentation by Mr. Maurice Blagyer, executive director of the center.

The production, under direction of Mr. David Finck, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Yvonne Kushner, is headed by some of the outstanding amateur performers of the city, including Dr. Charles Gordon, Messrs. Nathan Freehof, Harry Wender, Philip Notes, Harry Widom, Maurice Weingarten, Morris Fox, Louis Fraebin, Leon Stock, Milton Sachs, Max Bassin, Marvin and Milton Marx, Morris Shukin, Louis Perlstein, M. B. Jacobs and the Misses Dorothy Abrams and Judith Freehof.

Properties and scenic effects are being made and arranged by the stage department of the Dramatic Society, the costuming is being designed by Miss Jeanne Porton, the scenery and properties will be made by Miss Elaine Behrend, while all lighting effects will be arranged by Mr. Meyer Stolar.

It would cost $2,250 to send postcards to all the readers that can be reached any morning by Post Classified Ads.

THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
SCORES CHESTNUT FARMS MILK

FIRST

FOR 103 OUT OF THE PAST 106 MONTHS

Every month there is government inspection of the dairies that produce Washington's milk. They are graded for the condition of the herds, for the cleanliness of the dairies and utensils, for the efficiency of the pasteurizing plant . . . and for the richness and purity of the milk.

For every month, but three, during the past eight years Chestnut Farms, the World's Model Dairy, has had the highest average rating of all Washington dairies on these counts. These three months we came in second.

Here are the figures:

1931—February, highest rating; Jan. second.
1930—Highest rating for TEN MONTHS; Aug. and Sept., second.
1929—Highest rating every month.
1928— " " " "
1927— " " " "
1925— " " " "

The Department of Health of the District of Columbia will, on request, show you its monthly reports, which verify these facts.

Washington is noted for the excellence of its milk and milk-products. We feel, therefore, it is no small accomplishment to have maintained this high standard of production. The Health Department figures constitute an indisputable record of Chestnut Farms leadership . . . and a proof of the superiority of Chestnut Farms Milk.

We invite you to visit our Model Dairy at 26th St. and Pennsylvania Avenue. There you can inspect our plant . . . see our rigid, sanitary methods of handling, our efficient, modern machinery. And you will understand how Chestnut Farms has been able to play such an important part in raising the standard of Washington's milk-products.

Chestnut Farms Milk now sells at 14c a quart, 8c a pint. It is the highest quality milk you can buy . . . and it costs no more. Just telephone Potomac 4000 . . . and we will be glad to give you prompt and courteous service.

BARBER-SHOP CHORD

CENTURIES AGO, BARBER-SHOPS WERE EQUIPPED WITH CITHERNS, LUTES, AND VIOLS, ALONG WITH READING MATTER. THOSE WHO COULDN'T READ COULD AMUSE THEMSELVES WITH MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WHILE WAITING THEIR TURN. THE RESULTING MUSICAL EFFORT WAS TERMED IN RIDICULE "BARBER MUSIC." NOWADAYS WE CALL IT BARBER-SHOP CHORD.

LAY IT ON THICK

THIS PHRASE COMES TO US FROM THE PAINTER'S PRACTICE OF SPREADING A COAT THICKLY TO COVER UP DEFECTS. WE LAY IT ON THICK WHEN WE EXAGGERATE TO MAKE SOMEONE BELIEVE A STORY WHICH HAS SOME DEFECTS IN IT.

BUCKET SHOPS

IN THE EARLY DAYS OF THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE, NON-MEMBER BROKERS SPRANG UP TO SERVE ODD LOT TRADERS. THE ORDERS WERE FITTED TOGETHER LIKE STAVES OF A BUCKET UNTIL THEY TOTALLED 100 SHARES OR MORE, SO THE SMALL NON-MEMBER OFFICES WERE CALLED BUCKET SHOPS.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

ANOTHER CAUSE OF ECZEMA.

PEOPLE with old-fashioned eczema would be more willing to give up the old disease and to take up the new one, dermatitis, if it were easier to find out the toxic agents. Some of them test out their face powders, the dyes used on their garments, the chemicals their hands are exposed to, the feather pillows they sleep on, the cats they fondle, and the foods they eat. Finding no indication of the cause of their trouble they go back to good old eczema and the salves that mother used to use.

A new suggestion comes to them from Dr. E. S. Lain, of Oklahoma City. He advises them to inquire into their spectacles. He had a run of cases of so-called eczema. The eruption was on the side of the face, around the eyes and nose, and around the ear shell. He noticed that all of them wore white gold spectacles. Close examination of the rims and temple frames of these spectacles showed minute points of corrosion. Those who suspect poisoning from white gold spectacles may need to examine their frames with a magnifying glass in order to see these minute corrosion points.

When the people thus affected stopped wearing their glasses or changed to other frames, their eczema got well without the use of ointments or salves.

White gold is an alloy containing nickel. Nickel is not very poisonous to the average skin, but there are people whose integument is susceptible to it. Nor is nickel very corrosive. But nickel alloy may be slightly corroded by the salts in sweat.

The hazard of eczema due to white gold is not limited to those who wear spectacle frames made of this alloy. Various articles of jewelry are made from white gold and in some instances these are worn in contact with the skin.

Most of the reports of cases of nickel eczema have come from Europe. They were in people who worked in nickel. They did such work as nickel plating and manufacturing of articles made from mixtures of nickel. Two Canadian physicians, Bulmer and MacKenzie, made an excellent study of nickel poisoning in a nickel plant. They told how it could be prevented in such plants and among the workers therein.

The point made by Dr. Lain is that the wearer of nickel goods may be under some hazard.

"WASH NIGHT DISEASE."

M. E. F. writes: My baby of 20 months has broken out with a rash which I think is chicken pox. Will you please tell me what are the symptoms and how long it takes to go away? Does it form blisters containing a white liquid?

REPLY.

I am sure you are right. The chicken pox eruption is a blister and it appears to sit on the skin. Generally these blisters are discovered accidentally. That's why chicken pox is sometimes called the "wash night disease" or the "Saturday night disease."

The diagnosis is generally based on a history of exposure, an incubation period of about three weeks, the slight constitutional disturbance, the appearance of the blisters, the fact that they are around the palms and soles, that they come in crops, and that a crop is generally dried up in one week.

Mark Is Set At Penn By Berlinger

Decathlon Champion Repeats, Winning 5 All-Around Events.

Ohio State Relay Team Wins 1-4 Mile and Sprint Medley.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, April 24 (A.P.).—Big Barney Berlinger, the Pennsylvania strong boy, brought the first day of the Pennsylvania relay carnival to a climax late this afternoon with a record-smashing victory in the intercollegiate decathlon championship.

A one-man track and field team all by himself, Berlinger turned in the most brilliant all-around performance of his career to outdistance a small field of six rivals and capture the decathlon for the third straight year.

Leading his nearest rival, Fred Klauer, of Colgate, by more than 800 points, Berlinger shattered his own carnival record by a wide margin and failed by less than 50 points to beat the American mark held by Ken Doherty, of Detroit.

Breaks Carnival Mark He Set Last Year.

Barney finished the ten events with a total of 7735.8135 points. His former carnival mark, set a year ago, was 7460.308. The listed American record of Doherty, at which he was aiming, is 7784.68, and the world's record is 8053.29, held by the Finnish ace, Paavo Yrjola.

Berlinger had won five of the first events and needed only 400 points in the final 1,500-meter run to beat Doherty's record, but big Barney's leg muscles were too tired for anything like a show of speed. The 200-pound Penn athlete barely jogged around the track and finished a poor last, nearly a minute behind the winner, and accumulated only 347 points.

Berlinger set a decathlon record of 46 feet 9¾ inches in winning the shotput. He also won the broad-jump with a leap of 22 feet 9¼ inches, the high jump at 6 feet, the javelin throw with 181 feet ¼ inch and the 110-meter high hurdles in 16 7-10. He finished second in the discus and pole vault. Third in the 100-meter dash, fourth in the 400-meter run, sixth and last in the 1,500-meter run.

Klauer Surprises As Runner-Up.

Klauer, an added starter who got his training under Jack Ryder, of the Boston A. A. before going to Colgate, furnished a surprise by finishing second in an original field of seven starters.

George Munger, of Pennsylvania, beat out Otto Bruno Schoenfeld, of Cornell, for third place. Their totals being 6942.6375 and 6785.683. Walter Hutchinson, of the Ithaca (N. Y.) College of Physical Education, finished fifth with 6411.1735 and T. H. Swartz, of Gettysburg, sixth with 6383.798. James Deering, of Yale, who withdrew after seven events, had a total of 4116.11 points.

In a day of keen competition that witnessed the fall altogether of four carnival records in major collegiate events, Ohio State's sprinters gained the bulk of relay honors by romping off with the quarter-mile and sprint medley races over strong fields of Eastern and Mid-Western rivals.

With two of the Buckeye stars, Otrother and Fazekas, running in each race, Ohio State took the measure of Pennsylvania, Army and Chicago in the final heat of the 440-yard relay, after which the Ohioans came from behind to beat the Navy in the sprint medley in the carnival record time of 3 minutes 27 6-10 seconds. New York University and Georgetown, which set the former record of 3:28 in 1925, finished third and fourth in the latter race.

G. U. Relay Runs Fourth As Sprint Record Falls

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—Georgetown University's relay team of sprinters, Capt. Burke, Al Kelly, J. J. Kelly and Briggs, could not match the efforts of Ohio State, Navy and New York University today and when the Hilltoppers met defeat in the sprint medley relay college championship of America in the opening day's feature of the Thirty-ninth annual Penn relay carnival at Franklin Field, one of the Washington team's records was wiped off the books.

Back in 1925, Asher, Herlihy, Haas and Marsters established a record of 3 minutes 28 seconds to triumph and today the Ohio State athletes, who furnished the sensations of the day, lowered that mark to 3:27 6-10.

Georgetown led through the first three stages of the relay, but J. J. Kelly could not match the efforts of his rival half-milers and the great race of Capt. Beetham, of Ohio State, enabled the Buckeyes to land their triumph and the new record. Navy was second, New York U., third and Georgetown, fourth.

Georgetown finished second to Ohio State in its heat of the American quarter mile college relay championship but its time did not permit the Hilltoppers to run in the final, which also was won by the Buckeyes, who were clocked in 42.4 seconds. Penn, Army and Chicago were the other contenders in the final.

Washington Central High School carried off first honors in its heat of the interscholastic quarter-mile relay championship of America, being clocked in 45.5 seconds but only the four fastest time winners were admitted to the final and the Capital lads had to watch the race from the side lines. Washington Central's team failed to display ability enough to place in the interscholastic medley relay championship, which went to the Hamilton College Institute Team from Canada.

Hornsby Hits 3 Homers as Cubs Win

Successive Clouts Tie Record and Drive in 8 Runs.

Pirates, Held at Bay by Sweetland, Bow by 10-6 Score.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 24 (A.P.).—Three successive home runs by Manager Rogers Hornsby after the Pittsburgh Pirates had gained a 5-to-0 lead, proved too much for the home team today and Chicago won, 10 to 6. It was the opening game of the season here.

Hornsby's clouts, coming in succession, equalled records held by Delehanty, who made three of his four in a row; Pop Anson, of the Chicago Nationals, back in 1884; George Kelly, of the New York Nationals, in 1923, and Carl Reynolds, of the Chicago Americans, last year. Babe Ruth has hit three home runs in a single contest, but not in consecutive order.

Lowe and Delehanty Hold Record.

The record for the most home runs in a game is four. Robert L. Lowe, Boston Nationals, knocked out a quartet of circuit clouts May 30, 1894, two of them coming in one inning. Ed Delehanty pulled the trick for the Philadelphia Nationals July 13, 1896. A considerable number of players have made three homers in a game, but Hornsby is the first to do it with the new slow ball.

Hornsby's first home run came in the third inning with two on base. His second in the fifth, also with two on the sacks, and the third in the sixth with Kiki Cuyler on second. Traynor hit a four-base swat in the second which accounted for three Pirate runs.

Sweetland Holds Pirates Safe.

The Pirates hit Blake hard, but could do little with Sweetland, who succeeded him in the second inning with one out. The Buccaneers used four pitchers, French, Willoughby, Grant and Bednar.

Hudlin Star as Tribe Wallops Chisox, 8 to 1

Chicago, April 24 (A.P.).—Willis Hudlin pitched shutout baseball for the Cleveland Indians against the White Sox here this afternoon until two were down in the ninth, while the Indians jumped on Tommy Thomas early in the game to win by a score of 8 to 1. The Sox made but four hits off Hudlin in seven innings, but in the ninth hits by Eichrodt and Kamm saved the home team from a shutout.

Thomas allowed a run in the first on three hits and was pounded from the mound in the next frame, when he gave up two more, made an error and walked a man. Burnett's triple with the bases full spelled finish for Thomas, and McKain replaced him. Fonseca singled and Averill hit his second home run of the year to run the Indian total to six runs during the inning, but after that McKain pitched good ball, giving only three hits in the last seven frames. Carl Reynolds kept up his fine hitting with two more hits, one a double.

Jim Thorpe Given Post As School Sports Head

Oklahoma City, April 24 (A.P.).—Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, is to return to his native State as director of athletics for a consolidated rural high school near here.

Announcement of his appointment and acceptance was made today by Moore C. Hess, member of the board of education of the Putnam City School District.

Negotiations with Thorpe began about two months ago following publication of an Associated Press dispatch from Los Angeles telling that Thorpe was employed there as a ditch digger.

"I decided then that the talent and ability of Thorpe was being wasted," Hess said. "I was afraid some other school would beat us to him and immediately got busy."

Hess declined to reveal the salary to be paid Thorpe.

YANKS BEAT RED SOX ON HOMERS

Gehrig, Ruffing Hit Circuit Clouts in 7-4 Victory.

BOSTON, April 24 (A.P.).—Home runs by Lou Gehrig and Charley Ruffing, each coming with a mate on base and two out, gave the New York Yankees a 7-to-4 triumph over the Red Sox today. It was the fourth straight for Joe McCarthy's men.

Wiley Moore held the Yanks scoreless for four innings, but wilted in the fifth and allowed four runs. Ruffing's circuit blow in the sixth with Dickey on base clinched the game. In addition to his great stick work, Ruffing gave up only six hits.

Odds on Berg Fade as Champions Enter Ring.

Chicago, April 24 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri, risking his world lightweight championship, tonight knocked out Jackie ("Kid") Berg in the third round and retained his title, also winning the junior welterweight crown held by Berg.

Berg led until the fatal round until he was floored with a right to the jaw. It was the only knock down of the fight. He attempted to arise at the count of eight and fell back. Referee Collins then raised Coanzoneri's arm in token of victory.

CHICAGO STADIUM, Chicago, April 24 (U.P.).—Two boxing championships—lightweight and junior welterweight—were at stake for the first time in ring history when Tony Canzoneri, 135-pound title holder, met Jack (Kid) Berg, of England, 140-pound champion, before a crowd of about 13,500 here tonight.

The lightweight title, however, really was the prize they were fighting for, but as both were well inside the junior welterweight limit of 140 pounds, that championship also was involved. Berg weighed 134¼, Canzoneri, 132.

The betting odds, which had favored Berg at 8-5 throughout the week, were hammered down to even money at the gong.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, who lost his title to Al Singer last summer, was at the ringside. Canzoneri, who won the title from Singer by a one-round knockout in November, was making his first defense of the title.

Two Records Broken As Drake Relays Begin

Des Moines, Iowa, April 24 (U.P.).—The Drake relays began with record breaking performances under wintry skies today. The distance medley relay race for university teams featured the opening of the twenty-second annual carnival with Iowa State setting a new meet record.

Dismal, Gray skies with occasional drops of rain kept the opening day crowd to approximately 4,000 and a chilly wind that blew across the red brick stadium at Drake handicapped the contestants.

Ray Putnam, miler on the Iowa State relay team that ran the record-breaking race in the distance medley event, had a bare 5-yard lead when he took the baton from Labertew, but when he broke the tape at the end of the race his nearest competitors were 70 yards to the rear. The Iowa State time was 10 minutes 21.6 seconds for the two and one-half mile race.

Butler was second, Oklahoma third and Washington State fourth in the event which was the only University final on the first day's program.

Hugh Rhea, brawny Nebraska University shot man, disposed of another meet record when he threw the 16-pound shot 49 feet 7 inches.

Peyton Glass, of Oklahoma Aggies, led the field of more than 60 in the 100-yard dash, taking his heat in 9.9. Eddie Tolan, Negro runner for Michigan, won his heat in 10 flat, as did Swift, of Washington State.

Webb Quits as Ring Coach At Navy Due to Low Salary

"SPIKE" WEBB.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24.—"Spike" Webb, noted boxing coach of the Naval Academy, tonight resigned his position, an office he has held for the past twelve seasons. Webb announced that he was leaving the Naval Academy because he felt his salary was much lower than that paid other coaches here. "I am putting on the show for naval folk but am not getting paid for it," Webb commented.

"I am going to New York Sunday and will attend the national amateur championships there. My services for next year will be open to the highest bidder. I expect to be relocated before the end of next week. Naturally I hate to relinquish my position at the academy but I feel

Nats to Rely On Brown Today

Southpaw Is Hope of Johnson With Clubs' Series in Tie.

Will Not Free Liska Despite Requests for Waivers.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 24.—When the Nationals and the Athletics meet, every game seems to be one of those "crooocial" things and tomorrow's, which ends the series here, is no exception. By tossing away a golden opportunity today, the Nats find themselves on even terms with their rivals, so tomorrow's fracas means that they either will be one up or one down on the games played in these first two sets.

Manager Walter Johnson will pin his faith in the strong left arm of Lloyd Brown, while indications are that Connie Mack will turn over his mound duty to George (Rube) Walberg, who also flings with the wrong arm.

Regarding reports reaching here to the effect that the Nationals have asked waivers on Pitcher Ad Liska, Manager Johnson frankly admits that he does not know whether or not the report is true. "You know President Clark Griffith handles all of this kind of business and he may have asked waivers on Liska. One thing I do know, though, is that the Washington Club has no idea of letting Ad go at this time, or at any other time at the waiver price.

"If Griffith did ask waivers on Liska, it was simply a routine action. He has a habit of continually getting them on players not being used regularly merely to have them available for a quick and promising trade if one is offered. And this applies in many cases to men he has no idea of letting go.

Await Results of Treatment.

"As to Liska, I know that we would not think of letting him get away until we at least found out how the treatment he got at Lincoln Monday affected him. He's a young fellow with great prospects and, if the surgeon at Lincoln cured him, we'd get lots of use out of him right here and maybe have a future star. We wouldn't sell him at the waiver price even if his trip to Nebraska did not help him, in my opinion."

Following tomorrow's game here the Nats hike back to Washington, where they open a four-game set with the Yankees at Griffith Stadium Sunday.

Jimmy Dykes pulled a "Jesse James" at Cronin's expense opening the Nats' second round today when he raced over toward third to make a brilliant stop of a mile-a-minute grasser almost directly over the sack. He just managed to steady himself in time to make the out with a rifle peg.

A foul off Harry Rice's bat in the second hit Catcher Mickey Cochrane on the left knee and threatened to put him out of commission for a time. The little backstopper finally "shook it off" and continued in the game.

Jones' Error Puts Him in Hole.

Jones' error in the third got him in quite a hole. Just as he was set to throw Simmons out at first on a roller after Cochrane had singled, he slipped and pegged badly. This put two on with one out, but fast playing by Bluege on Miller's grounder started a double play which Myer and Judge completed.

Bishop came in fast and made a great play on Myer's swinging bunt opening the Nats' fourth.

When the ball left his bat, it looked as though Joe Cronin had a homer while leading off for the Nats in the fifth. Simmons, however, made the catch while backed up against the left field stands.

Judge was the first Nat to reach second, doubling to right in the fifth for only the second hit allowed by McDonald. He finally died at third. Incidentally, he also was the first Nat left on base.

Bluege made a brilliant stop and peg to nail Simmons in the fifth, taking a drive on the first bounce after the ball had almost passed him.

Grove Hits Bat For Rice.

Grove hit Harry Rice's bat in the Nats' seventh and a topped bounder to third resulted, which went as a hit when the speedy Rice beat Dykes' throw to first. The tap let Cronin advance to third.

Myer made a nice catch when he went to short right-center for Todt's near Texas leaguer, ending the seventh, with Simmons on third at the time.

Jimmy Foxx, hurt in the second game of the season in Washington, got back in the line-up for the first time today as a pinch hitter for Mahaffey in the eighth, with one out and a man on first. He worked the count to 3 and 2 and finally walked, McNair replacing him as a base runner.

Johnson ordered Marberry to intentionally walk Cochrane with two on, Haas on second, in the eighth, and the score tied. This brought Simmons up, and, much to every one's surprise, Marberry pitched to him, the result being a triple which put the A's two runs to the good.

WHITNEY'S RIDEAWAY WINS UNDER WRAPS AT GRAW

Solace Beaten Easily In Feature

Herbert Takes Long Route With Favorite, Gallops Home.

Polly Play Scores by Nose Over Avenger in Third.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 24. The Long Green, today's mile and one-sixteenth feature, saw Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's second string Kentucky Derby candidate, Rideaway, win handily after racing the distance in 1:45 2-5, to the delight of 15,000 spectators.

Sensational morning trials, the latest being a mile in 1:41, caused the majority of those in attendance to back the son of Wildair—Bubble to almost even money favorite.

Rideaway broke slowly and was fourth rounding the elbows into the back stretch. As the half-mile pole loomed, Hebert took the overland route with the ultimate winner and was within a length of the Seagram Stable's Solace, a 6-year-old, the pacemaker, as they turned for home.

When Hebert let out a wrap on Rideaway the colt soon rushed to Solace and easily went by him. At the sixteenth pole Hebert had a comfortable grip on the reins, still Rideaway was running so easily that he was nearly two lengths in advance of Solace at the wire.

Third money went to A. Beristein's Hillsborough, also a Derby candidate.

Rideaway's race today stamps him as a worthy understudy to his stable mate, Equipoise, in the forthcoming Derby.

Polly Play Wins Game Finish by Nose.

A two-horse finish occurred in the Admiration, the day's secondary feature with the judges hanging out the number of the Lone Star Stable's Polly Play, which raced the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 1-5, to win from C. V. Whitney's Avenger and the Justa Farm Stable's Just Believe. Just Believe showed surprising form to outrun her seven speedy rivals. She cut out such a stiff pace that Amelia, the favorite, had enough swinging for home. At this point Polly Play rushed to the pacemaker, but the two leaders were soon joined by Avenger, and they raced as a team right down to the wire.

Polly Play wedged in between Just Believe and Avenger and proved the gamer to grab the verdict in the final stride, and net her backers $8.

Misty Beats Juveniles In Opener.

The Sunview, 4½-furlong sprint that opened the day's card, found Admiral Cary T. Grayson's Misty, facing the distance in 0:54 1-5, to lead home fourteen other 2-year-olds. Eddie Watters, alert at the gate, had the brown daughter of High Cloud—Armide away on her toes. She kept atop the early pace to the stretch turn, where she took the lead. However, she had to be hard driven to the wire to outlast the Greentree Stable's Jib Boom, the favorite.

The Justa Farm Stable's Justa Shade, a field horse, who was well up throughout, saved the minor award from D. C. Sands' Bright Bird, one that was coupled in the wagering with the winner.

Admiral Grayson came over from Washington to see his filly perform and it is reported that he cleaned up handsomely when she paid $19.90.

Sir Byron Scores for Long-Shot Players.

Longshot players registered another victory in the six furlongs of the second when the Wisteria Stable's Sir Byron raced the distance in 1:13 to net his backers $18.60.

Away last several days ago, Sir Byron ran a powerful race to be third. The fans forgot that effort today, so when the 3-year-old chestnut gelded son of Sir Barton—Ogarite broke alertly and closed fast in the stretch to whip G. D. Widener's Quorum, with the Middleburg Stable's Phantasime third. There were many sad fans when the big price was hung out.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISTY (entry), $19.90, $6.50, $4.80; JIB BOOM, $3.80, $2.90; JUSTA SHADE, $4.60.

MISTY broke rapidly and carried JUSTA SHADE along at a fast pace, stood drive all last furlong and hung on with determination at end. JIB BOOM, slow to begin, gradually improved his position rounding far turn and saved ground entering home stretch and outgamed JUSTA SHADE in final drive. Latter began quickly and met with no mishaps. He was on the outside of winner entire journey. WESTY'S STAR and THE CRANE broke very slowly. DARK VISION was sharply cut off at turn out of back stretch and was pulled up.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:08. Winner, Wisteria Stable's ch. g., by Sir Barton—Ogarite. Trained by J. P. Mayberry. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:13.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR BYRON, $18.60, $8.80, $5.80; QUORUM, $5.80, $4.70; PHANTASIME, $9.10.

SIR BYRON, outrun first quarter, worked his passage next the inside rail rounding far turn. Madeley took him to the outside of leaders entering home stretch. SIR BYRON closed with a rush last furlong and was going away at end. QUORUM was hustled along entire journey and had nothing left when the winner challenged. PHANTASIME was a forward contender all the way. HALF DAY raced in the middle of the track most of the trip and was in hand in early stages. ROAN ANTELOPE showed early speed.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Admiration. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:42½. Winner, Lone Star Stable's b. f., by My Play—Polly Pennant. Trained by W. C. Detwiler. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:06 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLLY PLAY, $3.00, $4.60, $4.10; AVENGER, $5.00, $4.30; JUST BELIEVE, $10.00.

POLLY PLAY trailed JUST BELIEVE to top of home stretch, where she moved up and fought it out with latter all last furlong and hung on with determination in final drive. TREASURE, being slowly, dropped back first sixteenth, but worked her passage up on outside and closed with a good burst of speed, was going much the strongest at end and would have beaten the winner in another stride. JUST BELIEVE, a rapid beginner, went to the front with a rush and set a rapid pace. She hung when put to a drive. AMELIA, outrun all the way, dropped out of it in stretch run.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,400. The Long Green. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:14½. Off at 4:17. Winner, C. V. Whitney's ch. c. (3), by Wildair—Bubble. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $225; third, $125; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:39, 1:45 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIDEAWAY, $4.80, $2.90, $2.50; SOLACE, $3.30, $2.70; HILLSBOROUGH, $3.70.

RIDEAWAY, very slow to find his stride, moved up on the outside in run down the back stretch and wore the pacemakers down rounding the far turn, fought it out with SOLACE in last furlong and outlasted latter to win going away last seventy yards. SOLACE, rank in early stages, went into a commanding lead first quarter and was taken under stout restraint on back stretch. He hung when the winner challenged. HILLSBOROUGH ran an even race. BERBER raced forwardly to stretch turn, but weakened last furlong.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:51½. Winner, Lemar Stock Farm's ch. c. (4), by Pandion—Orange. Trained by M. Lowenstein. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 3-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:46 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAKE HASTE, $9.60, $4.40, $3.90; EAGER PLAY, $3.70, $3.00; SUN CRAIG, $5.70.

MAKE HASTE, off forwardly, was rated in behind SUN CRAIG until making turn into the home stretch, where he moved up full of courage and easily disposed of opposition last quarter. EAGER PLAY began very slowly and raced in the middle division in the half mile. Closed a big gap and finished with a good burst of speed and was catching the winner at every stride at end. SUN CRAIG broke fast and showed good speed for six furlongs. LITTLE GYP dropped out of it after going half a mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:21½. Off at 5:22½. Winner, Mrs. C. Whitehill's ch. g. (5), by Peter Pan—Rhea. Trained by C. Phillips. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:41 3-5, 1:55 3-5.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETER PETER, $19.50, $8.20, $4.50; CURATOR, $6.10, $4.00; ASTROB, $3.70.

PETER PETER, very slow to begin, was a trailer in early stages. Meade took him to the outside when he made his run and circled his field rounding the far turn, closed with good courage last furlong and was going away at end. CURATOR moved up strong entering the home stretch and bore over to inside, causing a jam in which PRINCE MEXICAN, VOWED VENGEANCE and ASTRON suffered. Latter had a very rough trip. He was probably best and would have won with a clear passage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:55. Off at 5:57. Winner, E. J. *Field. †Proulx-Dixon entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STACCATO (field), $103.60, $36.60, $17.00; MOON PHASE, $8.10, $6.40; BUDDHA, $8.10.

STACCATO went to the front with a rush in run to the first turn and, after opening up an easy lead, was rated in front. He hung on well when MOON PHASE challenged in final furlong. Latter trailed the leader from the start and raced under slight restraint until last quarter and hung after making a bold effort at furlong pole. BUDDHA hung when put to a drive in home stretch. One of the assistant starters had hold of BOSKY when barrier was sprung and wheeled him around when he broke out of the stall. MERRY MACK quit after going six furlongs.

Cobb Suit Postponed; Settlement Is Sought

Augusta, Ga., April 24 (A.P.).—Superior Court officials here disclosed today that hearing of a divorce suit filed by Mrs. Ty Cobb against her husband, the former major league baseball star, has been postponed from tomorrow until May 2.

The postponement was granted at the request of attorneys for Mrs. Cobb and her husband. The attorneys said negotiations for a settlment out of court were under way. The nature of the proposed settlement was not disclosed.

EQUIPOISE'S LAST TRIAL SPEEDY

$10,000 Chesapeake Favorite Works Half Mile in 0:48 2-5.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 24. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's Equipoise, 3-year-old son of Pennant—Swinging, proved this morning that he is ready for his engagement in the $10,000 Chesapeake Stakes tomorrow by whirling a half in 0:23, 0:35, 0:48 2-5.

Equipoise is the early 1-to-3 choice to win the Chesapeake. If he succeeds in capturing that event, his price in the "future books" being made on the Kentucky Derby will very likely be cut. He is held at 3 to 1 at present, but after tomorrow's race he will likely be a 2 to 1 shot.

Walter M. Jefford's Ladder, candidate for both the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, who is also a nominee for tomorrow's feature, turned three-eighths this morning in 0:25, 0:38 4-5.

The Greentree Stable's Anchors Aweigh, brown son of Man o' War—Goodbye, who is expected to be Equipoise's chief rival tomorrow, showed he was ready for the question by going a half this morning in 0:24 3-5, 0:49 3-5. He is also an eligible for the Preakness and Derby.

Siskin, the Nevada Stock Farm's Preakness and Kentucky Derby hope, went an easy three-quarters this morning in 1:22.

Walter M. Jefford's Aegis, brown son of American Flag—Florence Weber, and his stablemate David, chestnut son of Man o' War—Christmas Star, both Kentucky Derby eligibles, went five-eighths this morning in 0:24, 0:36, 0:48 4-5, 1:02 2-5.

Track Superintendent James Ross has this course again at tops and if no rain appears between now and post time tomorrow, Equipoise or whoever wins the $10,000 Chesapeake, will be forced to run pretty close to track record time for the mile and one-sixteenth.

CENTRAL POUNDS WESTERN HURLERS TO WIN, 12-4

Buscher Wins 2nd Series Contest

Central's Attack Near End Accounts for Eight Runs.

Thompson Hits Home Run, Triple, Single; Yowell Stars.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

AFTER being held in check for six innings by a fighting Western High School team, Central High unleashed a powerful batting attack to drive ten runs across the counting block in the final three innings and gain a 12-4 victory, its second in as many starts in the current high school titular race. The game was played in the Eastern High stadium.

The game was well played until the seventh inning, and the players of both combinations acquitted themselves markably well afield considering the chill winds that swept the none too smooth playing field.

George Clarke, who started for the Georgetowners, was driven from the mound by Coach Ty Rauber's charges. Tom Poore, who came to his assistance, was no improvement, seven runs being culled from his offerings. Emmett Buscher, elongated Central flinger, although hit hard, managed to kepe the blows well scattered.

Central Scores
At Start.

Central was off to an early lead when White counted in the first inning after working his way around to third following a screeching single to left. Yowell, Western catcher, attempted to prevent Heflin, who had walked, from stealing second. Wilhoite intercepted the throw and made a lightning return to Yowell, but it was just a flash too late to trap White at the plate.

Central scored again in the fourth when Kiernan dumped a Texas Leaguer in right field, and advanced on blows by Bryant and Miller. Western also scored a run in their half of this stanza when Keith slammed a single to right field, was sacrificed to second by Wilhoite, and came home on another sacrifice hit by Hilleary and Fletcher's clean liner to center field.

Western almost equaled its opponent's four-run splurge in the seventh when three Red and White players registered at the counting block. After a momentary lull in the eighth frame when they scored a lone run, the winners fell on Poore with great gusto in the finale to definitely abolish any thoughts Western may have entertained concerning the winning of the game. The Blue finished with a batting spree that produced five runs.

Thompson Stars
At Bat.

The outstanding player for Central was Thompson, who drove one into the left field stands for a triple and then proceeded to finish his circuit of the bases when Fletcher fumbled Hilleary's return for the moment, and who poled his second homer of the series in the eighth inning. For Western, the work of Roy Yowell behind the plate was best. He collected a pair of doubles and contributed the best play of the game in the eighth frame when he neatly picked Heflin off second with a snap throw to Pimper.

Central now ranks as the favorite to win the championship, due to the unshaky start of the Eastern nine against a woefully weak Business teamlast Thursday. Buscher justified the predictions of Central supporters with his heady box work yesterday, while Thompson's slugging has brought him to the fore as one of the most powerful batters to ever grace the roster of a local school nine.

British Beat Monaco In Davis Cup Tennis

Plymouth, England, April 24 (A.P.).—England advanced to the second round of the European zone Davis Cup tennis play today by taking the doubles match from Monaco and gaining a lead of three matches to none, a handicap Monaco can not overcome.

Two singles matches remain to be played but their result will have no bearing.

C. H. Kingsley and G. P. Hughes paired to gain the victory for England, defeating R. Gallepe and V. Landau, the Monaco double team, 6—0, 6—2, 6—0.

H. W. (Bunny) Austin, England's number one player and F. H. Perry, the English youngster, who has been playing tennis but three years, defeated Landau and Gallepe, respectively, in straight sets in the singles matches yesterday.

England will meet Belgium in the second round.

G. W. DOWNS PITT GOLF TEAM, 5-1

Parks Defeats Storey in Feature Match by 2 and 1.

THE golf team of the George Washington University, which has twice defeated the team of the Boston College and which has only experienced defeat at the hands of William and Mary, yesterday added to its laurels when it proved victor over the golf team of the University of Pittsburgh, defeating the latter on the course of the Indian Spring Club by the wide margin of 5 to 1.

The feature of the contest was the fine medal score of Samuel M. Parks, jr., well known as an amateur golfer of national reputation, who played the course in a total of 75 strokes, only four over par, and who defeated John C. Shorey, the leader of the local team, 2 and 1. At the eleventh hole the pair were all even, but Parks drew away from his opponent and won the match.

This morning the University of Pittsburgh team will play against the Georgetown University team on the Manor Club course. The Hilltop team will consist of F. J. Beger, captain of the team, and Richard Wilson, John Slattery and Peter Monohan.

Yesterday's results:

Samuel M. Parks, jr. (Pittsburgh), defeated John C. Shorey (George Washington), 2 and 1; Charles W. Cole, jr. (George Washington), defeated Charles Wolff (Pittsburgh), 5 and 3. Best ball—George Washington, 1 up.

John Thaeker (George Washington), defeated J. Rosenberg (Pittsburgh), 5 and 4; William Elliot (George Washington), defeated Miles Bruno (Pittsburgh), 3 and 2. Best ball—George Washington, 3 and 2.

Silver Spring-Takoma Nine Triumphs, 5 to 4

Playing its second game of the season, the Silver Spring-Takoma Baseball Team defeated Sherwood High School by a score of 5-4. Although the winners were outhit, 6 to 4, they bunched their blows when hits meant runs. Bozievich poled a triple in addition to playing a nice game afield for Silver Spring.

Wood to Renew Effort For Speed Boat Mark

Miami Beach, Fla., April 24 (A.P.).—Friends of Gar Wood said today he had talked with them by telephone from New York and disclosed he would return here tomorrow and renew his attempts to surpass the world's speedboat record of 103.49 miles an hour, now held by Kaye Don, of England.

Mechanics were busy today preparing his boat, Miss America IX, for the trials.

V. P. I. BEATS VIRGINIA U. NINE, 5-4

Nichols' Hit Decides in Errorless Pitchers' Battle.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 24.—Nichols hit to center in the eighth, scoring Mapp, who ran for Bibb, gave Virginia Polytechnic Institute a 5-to-4 victory over Virginia here today and enabled the Gobblers to maintain their lead in the Tri-State League.

Both twirlers turned in creditable performances and were given perfect support. The Cadets registered three runs in the first frame on hits by Hardwick, Sutton and Barnard, while Virginia knotted the count in the third on Steinberg's single. Sippley's triple and Dent's long fly to center.

Sutton's circuit blow in the fourth put the Gobblers in front, but the Cavaliers again evened the count in the next inning when Steinberg walked and scored on Sippley's double.

Hardwick's shoestring catch of Fletcher's liner, Bibb's one-hand stab of Poss' fly, two brilliant stops by Dent and Poss' catch of Sutton's foul were the fielding features.

Poss, star tackle on the football team in his season's debut as back stop, showed up well, both infield and at the bat.

Danville Cadets Beat Washington-Lee Cubs

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., April 24.—Danville Military Institute defeated the Washington and Lee freshman nine, 6 to 2, here this afternoon to even the two-game series.

Roach, Danville pitcher, held the Little Generals in check for six innings, allowing no hits and being nicked for one run on Gobel's wild throw after Miller had been hit.

The Generals got two hits in the seventh, but could not score, and two more in the eighth, to tally a run. Danville scored three runs in the eighth, when W. Wentz was hit by Aiken, W. and L. pitcher; Goebel singled and Wentz scored on Suomos' wild throw. Hardaway cleared the bases with a smashing home run to center.

The Danville left fielder, Lindsey, and center fielder, Hardaway played good ball, accounting for eleven putouts. Hardaway took six chances, three of which were going for hits with the bases populated.

St. John's Net Team Routs American, 6-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 24.—Trouncing American University 6 to 0 in tennis today, St. John's won the first match of the year. The seventh contest was called off with the score tied midway in the third set.

The Johnnies took every singles match with ease, needing only two sets to down the visitors. In the doubles, St. John's won the first, but the second was halted on account of darkness.

Capt. Eddie Kimpel, of St. John's, made quick work of Collison, of American University, and shared in the winning doubles team to be the outstanding performer.

The match today was the first one to be played on the St. John's courts in five years, the college having adopted the sport this spring after dropping it five years ago.

SINGLES—Kimpel (St. John's) defeated Collison, 6—3, 7—5; Czelusniak (St. John's) defeated Fuchs, 6—0, 6—2; Nassauer (St. John's) defeated Tarshis, 6—2, 6—3; Williamson (St. John's) defeated Woods, 6—3, 6—3; Waller (St. John's) defeated Christie, 6—1, 6—4.

DOUBLES—Williamson and Kimpel (St. John's) defeated Fuchs and Woods, 6—4, 6—3; Nassauer and Waller (St. John's) defeated Collison and Washburn, 6—3, 4—6, 3—3.

V. P. I. Freshmen Win From Salem, 12 to 6

Blacksburg, Va., April 24.—Scoring in every innig but the second, V. P. I Freshmen opened their baseball season here today with a 12-to-6 victory over Salem High. The Little Gobblers spanked the ball for eleven hits, led by Bowen and Kelsey, each of whom got three. Mitchell, hurling for the Freshmen, yielded but four hits and fanned eight. He supplanted Sutherland, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning when Salem scored four runs.

Pair of Net Clashes In Local Conference

Two matches are scheduled today in the Washington Collegiate Conference Tennis League, both on the courts of Bliss Electrical School, starting at 2 p. m. Bliss will meet Columbus and Benjamin Franklin will oppose Strayer.

Benjamin Franklin tops the league standing at present, with Bliss, Columbus and Strayer following in that order.

Washington and Lee Again Victim in League Game.

MARYLAND'S base ball team overcame Washington and Lee, 10 to 6, yesterday at College Park in a hard-fought game. It was the Old Liners' fourth win in seven starts in the Tri-State League of the Southern Conference and also their second victory in as many games over the Generals. It was W. and L.'s fourth defeat in the league. The teams entered the game tied in league play at three victories and three losses each.

Harry Millburn, who pitched Maryland to its first win over the Generals, also hurled yesterday. He was hit rather briskly at times and was handicapped through loose fielding, particularly on the part of Hammy Derr, second baseman, who made four errors. Though he passed none, he was nicked for eleven bingles, two of them three-baggers, and fanned five.

The Generals played without three regulars, Everett Cross, second baseman; Tim Cremin, center fielder, and Harry Burke, third baseman, all of whom were injured. Burke was hurt during infield practice before yesterday's game when a ball took a bad hop and struck him in the face. He was removed to the University Infirmary, where several stitches were required to close a cut.

William in Poor Form.

Leigh Williams, ace of the Generals mound corps, was wild and ineffective though he stuck the route. He walked seven and was shelled for twelve hits, including three triples. He struck out seven.

Maryland took the lead in the first two innings when it scored two runs, but the Generals went ahead in the fourth by counting three tallies. After W. and L. had added another in the fifth the Old Liners came back in their half of this inning to tie the score at four-all. In the next session Maryland chased across three more runs to get out in front to stay. The Generals counted their last two runs in the eighth to crawl within a run of Maryland at 6 to 7, but the Old Liners clinched victory with three more markers in the same inning.

Maryland's two runs in the first inning came after two were out when, after Derr and Gorman walked, Chalmers came through with a triple to score them.

A triple by Fitzgerald, singles by Williams, B. Wilson and Routon, a hit batsman and errors by Derr and Sterling, netted the Generals their three runs in the fourth. Their run in the fifth came through another error by Derr, a fielder's choice, a stolen base and Williams' single.

Maryland again in the fifth chalked up two runs after two outs. Cronin walked, Berger beat out an infield hit and both tallied on Derr's two-bagger. The Old Liners' trio of markers in the sixth came on triples by Chalmers and Milburn and singles by Gorman and Cramer.

Generals Add Two In Eighth.

Thibodeau's three-bagger and one-base shots by Routon and B. Wilson accounted for the Generals' final two runs in the eighth.

Maryland scored its final three runs in this inning on singles by Berger and Maxwell, passes to Derr and Gorman, a stolen base and errors by Williams and Thibodeau.

Shorty Chalmers, short stop, and Bozie Berger, third baseman, Old Liners who have been in batting slumps this spring, snapped out of it to head the Maryland attack with three hits apiece, two of Chalmers' being good for three bases. Berger twice beat out well placed bunts.

B. Wilson, with three safe smacks, one a double, was most consistent with the stick for the Generals. The score:

G. W. Netmen Beat Hampden-Sidney, 7-2

Special to The Washington Post.

Farmville, Va., April 24.—George Washington University's Tennis Team, showing an improved brand of game than that displayed against Virginia last Thursday, swept over Hampden-Sidney's net band here today by the score of 7 matches to 2. Only in No. 6 singles and No. 2 doubles were the Virginia conference champions able to score victories. In the No. 6 singles match H. R. Thomas defeated Laurence Shefy in straight sets, 8—6, 8—6, while Doug Thomas and Tom Smith were defeating John Neale and Harry Goldsmith to clinch the other victory. In the feature singles match of the day Alan Staubly, of George Washington, handed a 6—2, 6—4 lacing to Doug Thomas.

SINGLES—Considine (G. W.) defeated Talbot, 6—1, 6—3; Staubly (G. W.) defeated D. Thomas, 6—2, 6—4; Goldsmith (G. W.) defeated Sloan, 6—1, 6—4; Neale (G. W.) defeated J. H. Thomas, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4; R. Sherfy (G. W.) defeated Paulette, 6—1, 7—5; H. R. Thomas (H. S.) defeated L. Sherfy, 8—6, 8—6.

DOUBLES—Considine and Staubly (G. W.) defeated Sloan and Talbot, 8—7, 6—4; D. Thomas and Smith (H. S.) defeated Goldsmith and Neale, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5; Ogus and Gabis (G. W.) defeated J. H. Thomas and H. R. Thomas, 6—4, 7—5.

Two Episcopal High Teams Active Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., April 24.—Episcopal High School's mile relay team will make a bid for honors tomorrow in the Pennsylvania relay carnival at Philadelphia. The following runners departed tonight for the Quaker City: W. M. Cary, H. T. Mitchell, Joe Handan, W. R. Mason and Peter Williams. The team will be selected just before the race.

At Lynchburg tomorrow Episcopal's baseball team will engage the Virginia Episcopal School's nine.

2 D. C. BOXERS TO FOREGO TOURNEY

Miller and Carpenter Injured; To Miss N. Y. Bouts.

TWO of Washington's amateur boxing champions—Jocko Miller, welterweight, and Ralph Carpenter, heavyweight—will be prevented by injuries from competing in the national senior championship tournament which opens Monday in Madison Square Garden in New York.

Both Miller and Carpenter, who were to have been members of an official Washington team of eight boxers, are suffering from ailments incurred during the junior tournament at Boston early this month. Miller has a chipped left elbow, the result of a wild slugging match with Johnny Renda, of Fitchburg, Mass., whom he defeated, while Carpenter's right hand is broken as the result of a terrific punch planted on Henry Surette, to whom the Washington lad bowed.

Despite their injuries, Miller and Carpenter have been working out daily at the Jewish Community Center, engaging in just enough exercise to keep in condition and hoping Mother Nature would heal their wounds in time to allow their appearance in the forthcoming event. However, Coach Jim McNamara had them undergo X-ray examinations this week which showed it would be impossible for them to enter the ring.

States at Odds Over Fishing in Potomac

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 24.—Residents of Virginia and West Virginia must possess a Maryland license if they wish to fish in the waters of the Potomac, according to an opinion handed down recently by William P. Lane, jr., of Hagerstown, Maryland's attorney general. Officials of fishing organizations in West Virginia, not satisfied with the decision of Lane, are considering taking the matter into the courts, possibly as far as the Supreme Court of the United States.

Some time ago the attorney general of West Virginia ruled that a resident of this State, holding a West Virginia license, was not required to have a Maryland one to fish in waters separating the two States.

Lewis Radcliffe, deputy commissioner of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, sides with Maryland in the matter because of the compact of 1785, but voices the opinion that there should be reciprocity between the Virginias and Maryland.

All-Marines Defeat Temple Nine, 7 to 4

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., April 24.—The All-Marines took the first game of a three-game series from Temple University today, score 7 to 4. The university boys got the jump on Uncle Sam's sea soldiers but the fifth and sixth innings proved their undoing when the home team scored three runs in each stanza. The Sea Soldiers garnered 14 hits while the visitors had to be contented with eight. The weather was too cold for good fielding.

Bridgewater Defeats William-Mary, 7 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Williamsburg, Va., April 24.—With Pitcher Mowers dazzling the William and Mary batsmen, Bridgewater College handed the Indians a 7-to-0 whitewash today for their second defeat of the season. The visitors were on their toes to revenge the 2-1 defeat given them by the Redmen early in the season and proceeded to put a damper on Indian championship hopes in grand style today.

The Bridgewater outfield did nine innings of classy work in grabbing up any sort of a blow that came near that region. Several sure hits were speared by Outfielders Huffman and Shull, of the visitors.

Although Capt. Bill Scott whiffed twelve opposing batters and allowed but six scattered singles the fates seemed to be against him. Six telling errors by the Indians came at costly times and presented the Bridgewater boys with their first two runs, which were added without a hit. Once on the paths the visitors displayed clear-headed baseball and made everything count in their favor.

STOCKS IRREGULAR; LEADERS UNCHANGED

Market Weathers Shock of Member Firm's Suspension; Sales 2,600,000 Shares.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Strong support helped the stock market weather the shock of a member firm's suspension today. The result was an irregular close, with the composite for 90 issues unchanged.

The brokerage house failure was not a complete surprise, but, as usual, the official announcement caused an immediate outburst of selling which upset prices considerably. It was apparent, however, that preparations had been well laid against such an event, and leading shares quickly reflected a bulwark of buying orders. Sales totaled 2,600,000 shares, 1,000,000 shares changing hands in the last 50 minutes.

Prior to the suspension, the market had been irregular, an upturn in the morning fared well, but by early afternoon the rally lagged and quotations began to droop, as though some unfavorable news might be pending. The heaviness was aggravated to some extent by weakness in Southern Pacific, which broke to the lowest since 1922, in Westinghouse and in Texas Corporation. Oils were soft all day. Rails, with the prominent exception of Southern Pacific, were more steady than otherwise, and Union Pacific and Atchison shot up rapidly at the close.

Broadly speaking, net changes were fractional. United States Steel, after dipping to 125¾, on the break, closed with a loss of ⅝. American Can, General Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey were off about as much, while General Motors, North American, Consolidated Gas and some other utilities improved moderately. American Telephone halved a 3-point loss. The net loss in Westinghouse was 4½.

Aside from the suspension, the market had little news to work on. Further railroad earnings for March were not quite as encouraging as the earlier returns had been, although Erie showed a substantial gain. The small decline in brokers' loans during a week of falling prices was subject to bearish interpretation in that ib suggested some of the recent selling had been coming from strong boxes.

The weekly commercial reviews reported small changes during the past week, which was at least mildly encouraging. There would be some satisfaction in having trade hold steady, even at abnormally low levels. Both Dun's and Bradstreet's were impressed by the better prospects for crops, which are being helped by the weather.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and steady. Sterling eased slightly after Thursday's run up. The Spanish peseta advanced.

DISTRICT'S BANKERS NOMINATE OFFICERS

Institute's Election Is Set for May 8; Utilities Gain in Income.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The following have been nominated for election to offices of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, for the administrative year 1931-32. Elections will be held at the chapter rooms, in the Becker Building, on the evening of May 8. For president, Aubrey O. Dooley, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; for first vice president, Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank; for second vice president, Robert H. Lacey, Columbia National Bank; for secretary, Miss Rose L. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; for treasurer, Henry P. Kimball, American Security & Trust Co., and Walton L. Sanderson, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; for assistant secretary, Miss Constance Fogle, Riggs National Bank, and Miss Christine Haggerty, Union Trust Co.

For chief counsel, Kenneth Birgfeld, Riggs National Bank, and J. Earle McCleary, W. B. Hibbs & Co.; for board of governors (four to be elected), Miss Anne P. Crawford, McLachlen Banking Corporation; Lloyd H. Johnson, Northeast Savings Bank; Robert E. Lee, Lincoln National Bank; Alfred W. Sherman, American Security & Trust Co.; Robert A. Sisson, Washington Savings Bank, and Norman E. Towson, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Large Firms Fare Better.

Despite the fact that business failures in 1930 broke all records in both numbers and liabilities, the Washington office of Ernst & Ernst, accountants and auditors, announces that the large representative corporations in principal industries showed much stronger operating positions in this depression than in that of 1921, according to this firm's comparative studies covering leading corporations classified by industrial lines.

For the period of 1930, as compared with the previous big depression period of 1921, it is shown that in the aggregate the larger representative corporations had higher profit margins on sales, larger sales in relation to inventories, smaller inventories in relation to net plant investment, larger sales in relation to net plant investment and larger profits in relation to capital investment.

Operating statements for March were filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission by Washington Railway & Electric and Potomac Electric Power Companies.

Net Income Increases.

After all deductions, total net income of the former company for March was $53,048.67, compared with $46,643.88 in March, 1930. For the first quarter, it was $523,076.30 as against $503,672.21 in the comparative period last year.

Net income of Potomac Electric Power Co. for last month amounted to $390,560.73 in comparison with $376,436.28 in the month of 1930. For the three months, it totals $1,217,-649.49, as contrasted with $1,269,129.-75 a year ago.

An increase of 5.2 per cent in net earnings for the first quarter of 1931, compared with the corresponding quarter of 1930, has been reported by International Business Machines Corporation. For the three months ended March 31, 1931, consolidated net earnings including those of foreign subsidiaries were $1,890,663 after all charges and estimated Federal taxes, compared with net earnings of $1,797,831 for the corresponding quarter of 1930. Net earnings for the quarter just ended were equivalent to $2.82 a share on 669,852 shares of no par capital stock outstanding at the end of the period.

EXPERTS DIAGNOSE ILLS OF BUSINESS

Conference at Lexington Discusses Methods of Speeding Recovery.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., April 24.—Business depression went through a clinic of economic experts at Washington and Lee University today when final sessions of the conference on business affairs was turned over to the analysis of "What's to be done about the situation?"

Speakers discussed causes and fallacies of depression, empioyment stabilization, banking policy and methods of minimizing business fluctuation.

Several hundred business and professional men of Virginia and neighboring States and students of the school of commerce and administration at Washington and Lee attended the sessions, which ended the first conference.

The conference opened yesterday with two sessions. One devoted to banking and the other to retail distribution and the chain store.

H. Parker Willis professor of finance at Columbia University and editor of the New York Journal of Commerce, said mismanagement of a banking and credit system caused the financial panic of October, 1929. This policy in the last five years shifted from independent, self-sustaining small bank mechanism to the practice of transferring the providing of capital from the banker to the stock market, he said.

Alexander D. Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times, said four theories had been advanced in explanation of the financial distress. The process of reorganization, he said, is painful, but the Nation must carry on a thorough house cleaning with reference to banking conditions as well as in other respects. Advancing President Hoover's thought that these periods are unnatural and not inevitable, he placed the blame on faulty administration, pointing out that control is within the power of modern business.

Edgar J. Rich, counsel for the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, said the general desire of the American people to get rich by investment was the direct cause of the unemployment panic which came from overproduction in the prosperous years of 1928-29.

"The problem now is to bring back a demand for commodities and thereby furnish employment for some 5,000,000 persons who want to work. This will increase incomes of the millions struck by depression," he said.

"Restoring confidence of the public is the chief solution," he said, adding that the shorter day with employment for all is logical solution if a proper wage scale can be arranged.

LADY ROSS ALLOWED $600 MORE ALIMONY

Court Orders Rifle Inventor to Increase Maintenance Settled on Wife.

A payment of $600 a month temporary alimony must be made to Lady Patricia E. Ross, wife of Sir Charles L. Ross, wealthy inventor of the world famous Ross rifle that was used extensively in the World War, Justice Jesse Adkins ruled yesterday. That sum is in addition to a $4,800 annual income fixed upon his wife by Sir Charles.

The Ross maintenance action, begun here three months ago, attracted much attention because of the prominence of Sir Charles. He was taken into custody late at night on a "ne exeat" clause in Lady Patricia's suit and was asked to post $100,000 bond guaranteeing that he would not remove himself from the jurisdiction of the local courts. This bond was later reduced to $60,000, which he now has posted

Attorneys for Sir Charles objected to the assumption of jurisdiction by the court here, the contention being offered that he was a British citizen. Justice Adkins ruled, however, that the baronet's residence of more than a year at 1619 Massachusetts avenue northwest placed him under the court's jurisdiction.

The court denied Sir Charles' motion to dismiss his wife's bill and the grant of $600 a month temporary alimony was given. The justice said he would be glad to hear further oral arguments from Sir Charles or his attorneys at any convenient time.

Woman's Hands Burned, Canaries Die in Blaze

Mrs. John M. Weedon was burned on the hands and her three canaries were suffocated yesterday by a kitchen blaze which started when a full box of matches which she was holding ignited at once. She had lighted one match and, as she was about to turn on the gas in the stove, the flame carried to the box.

The burning box set fire to the curtains and set up sufficient smoke to kill the three birds, in two cages in an adjoining room. After receiving first aid from the engine company which responded to an alarm, Mrs. Weedon declined hospital treatment. Damage was estimated at $50.

$3,000,000 Is Offered For Kolster Radio Firm

Newark, N. J., April 24 (A.P.).—A bid of $3,000,000 for the Kolster Radio Corporation was made by the Orange Security Co., of Orange, N. J., today at a receiver's sale ordered by Vice Chancellor Church after proceedings had been started in Chancery Court by creditors.

The bid was the only one submitted for the purchase in bulk. There were several bids for individual lots.

New York Standard Oil Earns $40,246,198

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Standard Oil Co. of New York today reported that net earnings from operations for 1930 amounted to $40,496,726.

However, nonrecurring profit from the sale of gas properties brought total net profit for the year to $40,246,198, a gain over net income of $38,750,849 reported for 1929.

Factions Seek Proxies In Copper Mines Row

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—Disagreement over the operation of Consolidated Copper Mines Co. has led to the solicitation of proxies by two factions, it was learned here today.

A management committee, comprising Howard D. Smith, president, and other directors is asking stockholders' support on the record of its accomplishments, while a stockholders' committee with headquarters in Duluth, which says it represents a large majority of Northwestern share owners, is seeking proxies for the election of three directors at the annual meeting on May 5 and for a change in management.

Cotton Shippers Told Not to Fear Soviet Plan

New Orleans, April 24 (A.P.).—E. Y. Kadik, vice president of the All-Russian Textile Syndicate, Inc., told the American Cotton Shippers Association, meeting here today, the Soviet five-year plan of industrialization presents no menace to American industry.

"One hears a great deal about the 'menace' which the success of the five-year plan is supposed to present to the economy of the United States and of European countries," he said. "Most of the statements are misleading."

EXCHANGE MEMBER FORCED TO SSUSPEND

Pynchon & Co.'s Creditors Given Hope as Concern Plans Fresh Start.

New York, April 24 (A.P.).—The old Wall street firm of Pynchon & Co., an international banking house doing an extensive business in securities and commodities, was forced to suspend today.

The suspension, announced from the floor of the stock exchange in the last hour of trading, found Wall street well prepared for the news, and the coincident selling flurry was a trifling affair as compared to the torrents of liquidation loosed in the more trying phase of the bear market last autumn. As the market closed, several stocks showed advance, and the price index of 90 leading issues was unchanged.

Suspensions by the New York Curb Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange followed immediately, and in involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the firm in Federal District Court.

A joint statement issued on behalf of the firm's 22 partners—the largest number for any stock exchange house save one—attributed the difficulties to sharp declines in securities in which the firm and its customers actively dealt, and expressed the hope and the belief that creditors would not suffer. It added that every effort would be bent toward reorganization with new capital

In the highest of Wall street banking circles, there was a decided inclination to minimize the significance of the firm's plight.

While estimates of the firm's assets and liabilities were unavailable, it was reported that its borrowings in the brokers loan market amounted to $38,000,000.

The banking house has been represented on the directorates of numerous corporations. George M. Pynchon, senior partner, has served on the board of United Dry Docks, Inc., and George M. Pynchon, jr., has been interested in aviation enterprises, serving on the boards of Aviation Corporation of Delaware, Consolidated Aircraft Corporation and others.

William F. Ingold, another partner, has served on the boards of American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation, American States Public Service Co., Central States Utilities Corporation, General Gas & Electric Corporation, General Theaters Equipment, Inc., Utilities Power & Light Corporation and New York Ship Building Co.

Pilots Will Compete In Air Circus May 10

A flying circus at the Congressional Airport on the Rockville road, on May 10, will be sponsored by the Exchange Club of Washington.

The program will embrace aerial maneuvers and acrobatics, parachute jumping by men and women pilots and more than five hours of flying events. The circus will be under supervision of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service of Baltimore.

Man Held on Possession Charge.

William Powell, 32, colored, was charged with illegal possession yesterday after police raided a house on Fairmont street near Eleventh northwest and seized a 65-gallon still and 6 gallons of alleged whisky and destroyed 11 barrels of mash.

Treasury Bill Issue Is Oversubscribed

A $50,000,000 issue of Treasury bills offered last Tuesday was heavily oversubscribed.

Secretary Mellon announced yesterday applications were received for $343,730,000 and bids accepted for $53,510,000. The average price of the 91-day bills, maturing July 27, was 99.864. The average rate, on a bank discount basis, was about 1.33 per cent.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINI

Mayor Tells Council Water Arrangement Is Not Yet Completed.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 945, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

At a special meeting of the Falls Church town council R. J. Mount, resident State engineer, discussed proposed widening of the Lee highway through the town. He informed members of the council that so far as possible sidewalks on the south side of the street would be left intact, but it would be necessary to narrow the walk in some places, especially in front of the Madison School. It is believed it will be necessary to close the street for laying of pavement, and a tentative detour is planned over Little Falls and Crossman streets.

A resolution by Councilman Dr. Julius Parmelee, chairman of the committee on laws governing the closing of streets and highways to traffic in cases of emergency, was unanimously adopted, effective from date of passage. It provides that the mayor can close any street or highway by placing a marked barrier across it, or, in the case of construction, the mayor can designate the street as open for one-way traffic. The ordinance provides that any person or vehicle disregarding these signs and barriers may be fined not exceeding $100 or three months in jail, or both.

Mayor Daniel reported conferences have been held with the Arlington County engineer and water officials regarding purchase of water from Arlington County mains for distribution through the municipal water system authorized at a recent election, but no definite arrangement has been made, since there is some doubt whether the Arlington County system will be adequate to supply needs of its own citizens. In case an agreement can not be reached with Arlington County, the Falls Church water supply will be obtained from deep wells, it is planned.

Annual open meeting of the Falls Church Music Study Club will be this evening in the auditorium of Madison School, on Washington street in the town of Falls Church. The club has prepared a special entertainment. A cantata entitled "The Rose Maiden" will be given by 30 members of the club, who have been drilled by W. S. Frick. The presentation will be directed by Mrs. James W. Brown, who will act as accompanist.

Solos will be given by Mrs. Kenneth Pearson, Mrs. R. C. L. Moncure, Mrs. Catharine Davis, W. S. Frick and Robert Garner. Duets will be sung by Miss Catherine Schofield and Wilford Gilbert, and by Mrs Kenneth Pearson and W. S Frick. Mrs. Mary Ryer, Mrs. Mary McGuffey and Wilson Gilbert will constitute a trio. Other numbers on the program include recitals by Mrs. Mary Ryer, Robert Ballinger and W. S. Frick. Violin and clarinet selections will be given in intermissions by Mrs. Robert Garner and J. Carver.

The club has voted to give 60 per cent of the proceeds to the Falls Church Parent-Teacher Association, which has undertaken to handle distribution of tickets, decoration of the stage and other details. The committee from the association in charge of the arrangements includes Mrs. Harmon Green chairman; Mrs. M. T. Boone, Mrs J. G Robertshaw and Mrs. J. W. Brown. The balance of proceeds will be used by the music club for rent of a concert grand piano for the club's use.

The Herndon Citizens Association and School and Community League held a joint meeting last night in the auditorium of the high school at Herndon. Mrs. O. F. Northington, chairman of a committee on beautification of the school grounds, gave a report on work that has been completed and requested help of the league in purchasing shrubs and plants.

Herndon Chapter No. 55, Order of Eastern Star, will give a benefit dance and card party this evening in the auditorium of the high school at Herndon. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Mrs. Lavina Harrison, Mrs. Arthur H. Kirk, Mrs. Lottie Myer, Mrs. Lois Hutchison and Miss Marjorie Reed. Prizes will be given to winners of dances and at esch card table.

The Rector's Aid Society of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at Herndon has elected the following officers: Miss Edith Rogers, president; Mrs. Theodra Pilly, vice president; Mrs. Alexander Galt, secretary; and Mrs. C. M. Lawrence, treasurer.

The Northern Virginia Association of Past Matrons and Past Patrons of the Order of Eastern Star has elected Mrs. John Oliver, of Andrew Chapel, president. Other officers elected are: Mrs. Jane Jones, of Cherrydale, vice president; Arthur Dorsey, of Vienna, secretary; Mrs. Lorie Hagarity, of McLean, treasurer; Gerald Meyers, of Alexandria, adviser, and Mrs. Nettie Crouch, of Herndon, chairman of publicity. New officers will be installed at a meeting in Herndon June 6.

The Missionary Society of the Arnon Southern Methodist Church of Forestville will give a chicken and ham dinner this evening in the Great Falls Grange Hall at Forestville from 6 until 9 o'clock. The committee in charge of the dinner will include Mrs. Florence Hicks, chairman; Mrs. H. E. Tavenner, Mrs. A. C. Speight and Mrs. Leslie Lanham. The Willing Workers Society will have charge of selling ice cream.

Seniors of the high school at Oakton will present their class play this evening in the auditorium of the Oakton High School. The play is entitled "Mammy's Li'l Wild Rose," with the following as members of the cast: Estelle Rollins, Mildred Beard, Blanche Miller, Marion Earle, Francis Miles, Paul Hallman, Karl Horn, Edward Copperthwaite, Warner Moore, Mildred Reily, Elsie Buser and Pauline Sherwood.

Women of the Baptist Church at McLean have planned to serve a chicken dinner in the basement of the church house at McLean this evening. Mrs. Walter Mallory is general chairman.

Robert E. Kendrick, president of the Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department has been elected general chairman of the fireman's annual carnival in Falls Church, July 11 to 18. In view of possibility of Lee highway being closed at that time, the firemen have not definitely selected the site on which the carnival will be held. If the highway is closed, it is expected the festival will be held on a site on Broad street.

STATE ACTS TO TAKE ROAD RIGHT OF WAY

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The State highway department, through its attorney, F. S. McCandlish, of Fairfax, filed in the office of the clerk of the Court of Arlington County yesterday, a notice stating that Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the Circuit Court, will be asked next Tuesday to appoint commissioners in condemnation proceedings to determine compensation for right of way for the Lee boulevard through the land of the F. B. Van Every estate.

Attorney Emery N. Hosmer, for Arlington County, and Thomas H. Patterson for Mrs. Virginia VanEvery, announced yesterday that they had accepted service.

Final decree awarding the permanent injunction to Mrs. Virginia VanEvery has been entered by Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

Council for Mrs. VanEvery has entered into a stipulation whereby the State highway departmen is allowed to proceed with construction of Lee boulevard through the property in question. The stipulation as stated by Attorney Hosmer provides that in event of an appeal of the injunction suit the award in the commendation suit will be withheld subject to determination of the appeal.

Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of American University at Washington, principal speaker at dedication exercises at Washington-Lee High School last night, spoke on the training and protection of American youth and discounted reports of a lack of morality in comparison with former generations.

County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp, next speaker, gave a history of the establishment of the school eight years ago. He said it is equal to any secondary school, with an enrollment of 1,500 students and a faculty of 45. Other speakers were Maj. E. W Cushing, member of the County School Board; S. P. Vanderslice, principal of the school, and Frederick P. Dewey, jr., president of the Parent-Teacher Association.

The program included a drill by the cadet corps, followed by singing by the combined school glee clubs, selections by the school band and orchestra and stunts by girl tumblers. Harold M. Brown, vice president, acted as master of ceremonies.

Concluding the program the audience, numbering more than 1,200, was taken through the school, which with new additions, now has 57 classrooms, 2 gymnasiums, study halls, an enlarged cafeteria and manual training shops.

Word reached Clarendon yesterday afternoon of the death of Harold E. Stelle, 46 years old, who has been confined in a hospital at Jamestown, N. Y.

Mr. Stelle, during his residence in Arlington County of more than six years, was active in church and civic work. He is survived by his wife and one son, H. Nelson Stelle.

Honor roll for the month of the Woodrow Wilson School as announced by County Superintendent Fletcher Kemp yesterday includes the following list of pupils: First grade: Henry Ficks, Donald Reid and Robert Bensinger; second grade: Betty Thompson, Maxwell Keeler and Wiley Smith; third grade: Marie Pendleton, Isabel Imboden, and Leroy Gillette; fourth grade: Charles Renalds, Eleanor Corley and Ruth Metcalf; fifth grade: Madeline Moon.

The Lyon Village Citizens' Association will told its April meeting Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Groome Eareckson, 211 Oak street, Lyon Village.

Suits for divorce have been filed in the county clerk's office by the following persons: Isabelle F. Penford against Percy Penford; Melville M. Merrell against Lily May Merrell; Marie Louise McLaren Adringer against Richard Clarence; Dora A. Parsons against Donald Stuart Parsons.

Arlington Rotary Club has nominated the following members for office, the election to be held at a meeting at the Washington Golf and Country Club next Thursday: For president, Thomas W. Phillips; for vice president, the Rev. Isaac Steenson; for treasurer, Ernest Shreve; for secretary, J. Hammond Brewer; members of board of directors, W. B. Mitchell and W. T. Westcott.

J. Hammond Brewer and Thomas W. Phillips have been appointed delegates to represent the local club at the annual district conference at Norfolk, Va., May 6, 7 and 8.

Members of the club will go in a group to Fairfax Monday night, where they will attend a special meeting of the Fairfax Rotary Club, at which time the charter will be given to the new club.

There appearing a difference of opinion as to meaning of a letter addressed to Robert E. Plymale, president of the Northern Arlington County Memorial Bridge Approach Association from Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, of Arlington District, that the county will accept the generous offer of property owners to give the rights of way for the Washington street approach to the bridge, the association at a special meeting last night planned to attend the meeting of the board of supervisors Thursday to ascertain the full meaning of the letter.

President Plymale declared that the offer of Supervisor Hedrick to grade that portion of the proposed road from the Military road to the Alexandria-Georgetown road meant no approach to the bridge and was not what this association wants.

"I feel," said President Plymale, "that more than the assurance that that section of the road will be graded will be necessary before owners will agree to give the needed rights of way.

F. E. Mann, of Cherrydale, brought out a point not heretofore touched on, that the board, which goes into office January 1, 132, will be bound by the present board as far as expenditures are concerned up to June 30, 1932.

"The money, which Supervisor Hedrick says is now available, I take it," said Mr. Mann, "means up to June 30, of this year, which is the end of the fiscal year. If, as Supervisor Hedrick states, the remainder of the road will be built next year, I feel we need not be alarmed, but we should find out if that is what is meant.

L. C. McNemar, chairman of the organization committee of the association declared "We have reasons to be pleased at the progress we have made. Never have I seen a project advanced as fast as this one has. It was only started two years ago. At the first meeting we found we could not get the rights of way; the next meeting we had them. We find the supervisor willing to take over a portion of the road and build it. All we need to do, as I see it, is to keep behind the project, make a big impression at the next meeting of the board, and we'll bet the road.

"I am ready here and now to say that this is the only approach to the bridge that we will have for the next four or five years," he said.

Plans were completed for a large delegation to attend the meeting of the board of supervisors Thursday and see to it that the entire project is accepted and the road built. The meeting was well attended by representatives from all sections, from Falls Church, Livingston Heights, Cherrydale, Clarendon, Ballston, Lyon Park, Ashton Heights and Fort Myer Heights.

Lantern-slide lecture on landscaping home property and community beautification by Knowles A. Ryerson, of the United States Department of Agriculture, featured a meeting of the beautification committee of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council in the Lyon Park Community House last night.

Following the lecture, which brought out many points which will be most valuable to the committee in planning for the beautification contest which is a part of the program for the year, Chairman Walter F. Sunderman announced that the following subcommittees will be formed, the personnel of which will be announced at an early date:

Committee on competition and rules of awards, prizes and trophies, community contacts, information and publicity, judges, and public ceremonies in connection with the making of the awards.

Baltimore Suspect Held in Gem Theft

Second Man Is Arrested for Alleged Part in Opera Party Holdup.

Baltimore, Md., April 24 (A.P.).—The $50,000 jewel robbery a week ago of a party of homeward bound operagoers was cleared today, police announced, with the arrest of John "Sonny" Carson, 25, as the second of two bandits.

Leo Navarro, 21, arrested yesterday with jewels valued at $25,000 in his possession, was identified by Miss Peggy Stewart, a debutante, and Lawrence Flaherty, chauffeur, as one of the two robbers. Navarro asserted he found the jewels in a park.

Two men robbed a party consisting of C. Wilbur Miller, a manufacturer, Mrs. Miller, their three daughters, and Miss Stewart at the entrance to the Stewart suburban home, after firing a shot into the side of the Miller automobile.

REVOLUTION SOCIETY VISITS ALEXANDRIA

250 Children Hold Service in Old Church; Present Book Containing Names.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Approximately 250 members of the National Society of the Children of the American Revolution, now in convention in Washington, came to Alexandria yesterday and held a patriotic service in the old Presbyterian Meeting House, the main feature of the service being the presentation to the church of a de luxe edition of a book containing the names of the donors to the fund for the restoration of the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary Soldier, in the churchyard. The book, which is in a mahogany case, will be on exhibition in the church.

An address on patriotism and the work now being done by the organization was made by Benjamin N. Johnson, of Boston, director general of the national organization.

The remainder of the program consisted of the invocation, "George Washington's Prayer," by Mrs. Percy M. Bailey, national chaplain; music, "Faith of Our Fathers," Mrs. Ralph P. Barnard, with Miss Margaret Alexander as accompanist; placing of the book containing names of donors to the tomb, by Mrs. Josiah A. Van Orsdel, honorary national president; address by Mr. Johnson; music, "America," by the audience, led by Mrs. Ralph P. Barnard; laying of a wreath on the tomb, the gift of the Connecticut State Society, by Ella H. Williams; taps, by Horace Ashton Powell, of the Ann McCarty Ramsay Society, of Alexandria. Colorbearers were Richard Blackburn Washington, jr., of the Ann McCarty Ramsay Chapter, and John Sherman Hemple, of Trading Post Society, Pueblo, Colo.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer yesterday issued a proclamation urging all citizens to cooperate in the clean-up week campaign in Alexandria, May 3 to 11.

In the proclamation Mayor Ticer states: "I take this occasion to call to the attention of all of our people the approach of the National George Washington Bicentennial celebration in 1932. Thousands of people from all over the world will visit Alexandria during the year. It behooves us, therefore, individually and collectively, to devote ourselves to the task of preparing to properly greet and entertain our fellow countrymen and other guests who will visit our city on this occasion. Let us eliminate and clean up all unsightly places, and renovate, improve and beautify whenever and wherever possible to the best of our ability.

"The city wherein George Washington lived, worked and worshiped is the Great Cathedral of the Nation to which our people come for inspiration, and midst the scenes of our forefathers reflect with gratitude upon the fortitude, patriotism, wisdom and courage of those whose devotion and efforts and sacrifice, by the grace of God, brought about this great Nation. Alexandria should be a beautiful city, and, with the cooperation of all, we can make it so.

"Now, therefore, I, in conformity with the foregoing, do hereby designate and set aside the week of May 3 to May 11 as 'Cleaner and Better Homes Week' in Alexandria."

The Alexandria citizens' committee on the investigation of public schools, at a meeting Thursday night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, adopted a report which the representatives of the various organizations represented on the committee will present to their organization for ratification. It was announced that this is the first report, and that others will be made by the committee. Lawrence E. Roland, chairman of the committee, presided.

Among other things, attention was invited to the reply of the city School Board in answer to the report of the Chamber of Commerce, in which the School Board stated that certain conditions had been exaggerated, and that the fire hazards in the schools, referred to, did not exist. Attention in this connection was called to the report of the State fire marshal, made recently, which stated that these hazards did exist and recommended that certain improvements should be immediately carried out.

The committee stated that the full report of Dr. Critchley, who made a survey of the high schools, had not been made public although it had been promised to the press within two weeks after March 14. The committee called attention to the fact that Dr. Critchley's report pertained only to the high schools, with an attendance of approximately 850, while the graded schools, with an attendance of approximately 3,850, had not been reported upon, and quoted letters from the State superintendent of education stating as his opinion that a survey should be made of all the public schools. The report ended with the statement: "This committee can not properly function or recommend until it knows the complete report of Dr. Critchley, and inasmuch as over a month has elapsed and the report is not forthcoming, the reason for the delay can not be appreciated."

It is understood that City Attorney Carl Budwesky is now preparing an ordinance to be adopted by the City Council shortly, providing for the widening of a portion of Washington street by setting back the curb line; for the removal of trees within this area; for the removal and relocation of certain works, poles, wires, cable mains, pipes, meter boxes, cut-off boxes and other fixtures and property now located and maintained by the various public utilities, and for the revocation of permits to operate and maintain curb gasoline pumps and for removal of same from Washington street.

The ordinance is in connection with the construction of the Mount Vernon Boulevard, which will traverse Washington street for its entire length. This street is to be widened 7 feet from an alley between Cameron and King streets by setting back the curb on either side and extending south from King to Prince and thence south to an alley between the First Baptist Church and the new post-office building.

Camilio Osias, resident commissioner of the Philippine Islands, was the guest of Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons Thursday night, and was presented with a gavel on behalf of Charles H. Callahan, past grand master of Masons in Virginia, the presentation speech being made by C. Philip Heishley, past master of the lotige. The gavel is made of two pieces of wood, one from a tree planted at Mount Cernon by George Washington, and the other from the home of Lord Fairfax at Belvoir, Fairfax County.

Senor Osias gave a talk describing the work among the Masons in the Philippines.

Judge William S. Snow announced yesterday in Police Court that after May 1 fines will be imposed for failure to procure dog licenses. These license fees were due and payable January 1, and the game warden is now negaged in summoning owners of unlicensed dogs into Police Court.

The City Council, at an inofrmal meeting Thursday, is understood to have agreed to construct a sewer at Washington and Jefferson streets to take care of the future needs of that section. Official action on the matter will probably be taken at the next regular meeting of the council.

Philip Dwyer, a resident of Alexandria, died yesterday in Washington after having been in failing health for a long time. For many years he was employed as an engineer for the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., in Arlington County. He was unmarried and was the son of the late Edward Dwyer. Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Henry G Bernhardt, 432 North Columbus street, to whose home the bdoy has been removed.

The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

DR. WILLIAM WHITE VISITS VIRGINIA U.

City Hospital Chief Speaks at Initiation Service of Fraternity.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—Dr. William A. White, head of St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D. C., widely known psychiatrist and author, was speaker tonight at annual initiation of the Virginia Chapter of Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical fraternity, in Madison Hall, at the University of Virginia.

Membership in the fraternity is on a basis of scholarship, character and professional promise. Present members of the Virginia Chapter are: George Daniel Capaccio, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Adam Tyree Finch, Chase City, Va.; Robert Earle Glendy, Dublin, Va.; Margaret Elizabeth Moriarty, Newton, Mass., and Eldridge Cook Simmons, Petersburg, Va.

Initiated tonight were: From the fourth-year class—William Morgan Chew, Waynesboro, Va.; Alexander Gordon Gilliam, Peteraburg, Va.; Meyer Goldstein, Portsmouth, Va.; Angus Hinson, Abbeville, Ala., and Joseph William Houck, Harrisonburg, Va. From the third-year class—Thomas Sterling Claiborne, Greenwood, Miss.; Walter Ansell Derrick, Pulaski, Va.; John Hartwell Harrison, Danville, Va.; Jean Barksdale Jones, Petersburg, Va., and Elizabeth Lewis Saunders, Lynchburg, Va.

Dr. White, whose subject was "Psychological Medicine a Necessity," is recognized as an international authority on nervous and mental disorders, having written fifteen books on the general subject.

HOME RULE ON RUM IS URGED BY RITCHIE

Governor Informs Southern Barristers Dry Law Must Give Way.

Charleston, S. C., April 24 (A.P.). Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland told the South Carolina Bar Association in an address here tonight that he believes "the perplexing question of prohibition must ultimately be settled by the application of the principle of home rule."

Referring to national prohibition, he said that "the whole thing is governmentally unsound, and it must [illegible] something which will square with American traditions and [illegible] with the American principle of local self-government."

Gov. Ritchie, for years an outspoken foe of national prohibition, said that he believes the low estate to which law and government have fallen is • • • due to the rise of a conscious and extraordinary social interest in the actual moral life and conduct of the individual, and the exploitation of this by the uplifters as the caretakers and guardians of us all."

Referring to the proposal for "local home rule" on prohibition, Gov. Ritchie said that "if a remedy along these fundamental lines is adopted, then you of the South need have no fear of the future. I believe the rest of the country recognizes and understands your problems. I know I do. I for one would countenance no remedy which did not leave the people of this great and loyal and chivalric section of our land free, completely free, to solve this question and in the way you know to be best.

"But do not forget that the peoples of other sections of the country have their problems spring from national prohibition. The story of organized underworlds of crime, dedicated and commercialized vice and producing the gangster and racketeer has come to be an all too familiar one in some of the great cities of our country, and corruption has even spotted the judicial ermine itself.

"If one's own knowledge and observation do not suffice to show that the question must be settled in some adequate way, then a reading of the individual reports of the members of the Wickersham Commission will prove irrefutably convincing," Gov. Ritchie said.

$49,000 Suit Is Filed In Stadium Dispute

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 24.—Suit has been instituted in Circuit Court by the Pace Construction Co., of Roanoke, Va., against the J. R. Jones and Conquest Company, of Richmond, Va., and Fred W. Scott, to the amount of $49,000, in connection with the building of the athletic stadium, now under erection at the University of Virginia at a cost of $300,000.

The case will occupy the attention of the court for several days.

Trade in South Seen As Nearing Normalcy

Roanoke, Va., April 24 (A.P.).—C. M. Anderson, president of the Southern Commercial Secretaries Association, speaking at the opening session today of the association's annual meeting, said signs of "approaching sunrise" in business are seen in most of the South.

He said the year 1931 and years to follow will demand, however, greater initiative, aggressiveness and harder work than ever before.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AN INTERVIEW WITH KING PRAJADHIPOK OF SIAM.

FIRST REPORTER—King, we don't know just what to interview you on. Some of the boys have very limited knowledge of Siam. They think we might begin by asking you about the Siamese twins.

King—Siamese what?

First Reporter—The Siamese twins.

King (puzzled)—What Siamese twins?

First Reporter—Why, er, the regular orthodox Siamese twins.

• • • •

Second Reporter—Ask him about white elephants.

First Reporter—What about white elephants, king?

King—I'll bite. What about them?

First Reporter—They are regarded as lucky in Siam, are they not?

King—we consider them a certain omen of good fortune.

Second Reporter—Are they hard to get

Third Reporter—What do you want to ask a king a fool question like that for?

Second Reporter—I thought maybe if they're as lucky as he says I'd like to get a couple for the office.

King—They are very rare. Only one has been found in my regime.

King—I beg pardon.

Fourth Reporter—I say it must be quite a job to keep a white elephant from getting full of spots. Even the gray ones get dirty fast enough.

King—The matter is attended to by servants.

• • • •

SECOND REPORTER (sensing that the interview is pretty flat)—Ask him something about Bangkok hats. They come from Siam, don't they?

Third Reporter—Aw, ask him something important. Ask him about the business situation in Siam.

Second Reporter—I don't think Siam has any business situation. All the people do in Siam is ride around on elephants.

First Reporter (taking the initiative—King, do you really consider yourself Supreme Arbiter of Tides, Brother of the Moon, Half Brother of the Sun and Custodian of the Twenty-four Umbrellas?

King—Those are my titles.

Second Reporter—Could you give us a demonstration?

King—Demonstration in what?

Second Reporter—If you're arbiter of the tides would you mind letting us see you make the outgoing tide to go into reverse or something? It would make a wonderful feature.

Third Reporter—If you do it at all, King, do it for the afternoon papers. They'd give it a bigger spread and use pictures.

• • • •

ATTENDANT—The king regards your question as very trivial. He is quite annoyed. Have you nothing important to ask him?

Fourth Reporter—Oh, he wants something important?

Attendant—Quite so.

Fourth Reporter—All right. Ask him what he thinks of the skyline of our big cities and American girls.

King (brightly)—Ah, now you are talking like real American newspaper interviewers. I was beginning to fear there was some mistake. Your skyline is most impressive. The American girl is very charming.

(He gets into his automobile and speeds away.)

Fourth Reporter (dejectedly)—We forgot the most important question.

Third Reporter—What was that?

Fourth Reporter—How does he spell his name?

BUSY WIRE.

MR. WALTER S. GIFFORD, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. says better times are calling the United States. They just can't get the call through on the new dial phone.

Lawrence of Arabia is now a mechanic in the aircraft corps, getting 80 cents a day. He says this buys him gasoline for his motorboat. Just another way of saying the engine isn't running.

"Dam Contract Signed"—headline. That's the way it sometimes seems.

Alfonso, broke, wired Madrid to send him an automobile and the Republican government replied that it would send him four of his machines. The new government is evidently determined to keep him broke.

The charges for the horses are as follows:

For a forenoon or afternoon, each horse, $3.50 (not over three hours).

Where guests wish to be accompanied by a groom the same is furnished without extra charge except for the horse used.

For all-day rides, including the wonderful mountain dinner, the expense of taking grooms and horses for them to ride, necessary tips, etc., $8.00.

When the trip is combined trip, with the additional expense of the auto buses, the charge is $8.75.

LIVERY CHARGES

Transportation

The livery arrangements for passengers en route to Skyland are in charge of Mr. M. E. Emerson's livery stable, just back of Mansion Inn at Luray. Step to any telephone and ask for Emerson's Livery Stable when desiring transportation, or inquire at Luray Hotels, where arrangements can be made. Luray to Skyland and return: One passenger alone, $3.50 each way, including hand bag and suit case; two passengers, $3.00 each way, including hand bag and suit case; three passengers, $2.50 each way, including hand bag and suit case; large trunks $1.50 each way; steamer trunks, $1.00 each way; small children not occupying seats no charge. Children occupying seats, full price. Above are single passenger rates.

Skyland by Automobile

Automobile trip from Washington over the Lee Highway takes 4 hours and covers a distance of approximately 95 miles and is a delightful one. The route followed is via Falls Church, Fairfax Courthouse, Bull Run, Warrenton, Little Washington, Sperryville to Luray and then to foot of Stony Man Mountain. Leave automobile at garage and proceed up the mountain by carriage. NOTE instructions as to new Federal Government Road at bottom of page.

ANTI-HAY FEVER RESORT

IMPORTANT: The Federal Government is now constructing a new road from Panorama where the Lee Highway crosses the Shenandoah National Park directly across the mountain tops to Stony Man Peak and to "Skyland." This will eventually become a part of the Skyline Highway to extend through the Shenandoah National Park. This road will probably be opened to "Skyland" in October, 1931 . . . watch for big Opening Celebration.

Until then approach must be via Luray of New York City, Pres, of the National Boulevard Association, who has been a main factor in the National Good Roads Movement and Lee Highway undertaking.

S.M. JOHNSON

Who created the Lee Highway and Lee Memorial Boulevard idea, and to whose efforts the culmination of these highways is largely indebted.

President Hoover to Turn the First Spade In the Construction of the New Lee Memorial Boulevard

GOV. JOHN GARLAND POLLARD, of Virginia, Will Preside.

President Hoover will turn the first spade of earth in the construction of the Lee Memorial boulevard at Fort Buffalo next Friday at 3 p. m. The ceremony will mark the beginning of construction of the boulevard which is to stand as a memorial to the great Southern general, Robert E. Lee, and extend from Arlington Memorial Bridge to Shenandoah National Park, on the crest of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Gov. John Garland Pollard, of Virginia, will preside at the ground-breaking ceremony, and Mr. Carson, chairman of the State conservation and development commission, will also speak. Music will be by the United States Army Band.

The entire program will be broadcast by Station WRC and a National Broadcasting Co. network.

Recommended Route to Site.

The recommended route to the site of the ceremony at Fort Buffalo, going from Washington, is across Key Bridge, out Lee highway to Falls Church, turning left at the traffic light in the center of town and thence out to Fort Buffalo.

In order to avoid congestion in traffic, the committee on traffic and parking has arranged that the return to Washington will be south along the Alexandria-Leesburg turnpike to Columbia pike, thence east along Columbia pike to Glebe road, thence west on Glebe road past Arlington Hall School and the Country Club and into Washington by way of Chain Bridge.

When completed, the memorial highway will be not only a memorial to a great Southern leader but it is designed to be a demonstration of model arterial highway construction.

The first leg of the boulevard on which construction will begin formally next Friday, will run from the western side of Fort Meyer to Fort Buffalo, a distance of 6 miles. For this section, a 200 foot right-of-way has been secured by the Lee Highway Association and the National Boulevard Association and presented to the Commonwealth of Virginia. Both the National Boulevard Association and the Associated Lee Highway Association are civic groups supported by voluntary contributions.

State Appropriates Paving Funds.

The State of Virginia has appropriated funds to pave a 40 foot roadway over the first section of the boulevard and the work of razing buildings along the right-of-way is already in progress.

In addition to the 200 foot right-of-way, the building line along the boulevard has been set back by the agreement of adjoining landholders to a distance of 60 feet from the right-of-way.

This will insure generous space for planting and parkways in addition to channels for local traffic in both directions and a separate express highway in the center of the Memorial boulevard. It will provide the most magnificent approach to the Nation's Capital.

The ground-breaking ceremony next Friday will be the culmination of years of effort headed by the central committee of the National Boulevard Association under the chairmanship of George Wood and of the right-of-way committee, under the chairmanship of W. S. Hoge, jr.

Committees Arrange for Ceremony.

The following committees have made arrangements for next Friday's ceremony:

Publicity — Mrs. Daniel C. Chase, chairman; Gen. Anton Stephan, Mrs. Philip D. Swing, Elwood Street, Victoria Fabre Stevenson and Mrs. Charles W. Allen.

Traffic and parking — Leon Arnold, chairman; John Rust, F. W. Huddleson, Mrs. Vosbury and W. S. Hoge, jr.

Seating on stands — Louis C. Carl, chairman; Ashton C. Jones, James E. Colliflower, Charles N. Frame and L. P. Daniel.

Program and arrangements — G. V. Graham, chairman; T. S. Settle, Grant Leet, Miss Christian, Mrs. Earl Chaffee and A. K. Shipe.

While funds have been made available for the first section of the entire boulevard, fully 80 per cent of the 200-foot right-of-way has been secured all the way to Shenandoah National Park and further acquisitions are progressing under aegis of the National Boulevard Association.

President Hoover has long been an ardent exponent of the development of public highways both as an economic asset especially from a farm-to-market angle and as a means of promoting health and wholesome recreation.

Hoover Favors Federal Assistance.

In his St. Louis speech during the 1928 presidential campaign, he stated that "this administration had recognized the public necessity of Federal Government contribution to the creation of a definite system of modern interstate highways. This program is far from completion and I stand for its continuance."

At that time, Roy D. Chapin, director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, recalling his association with the President during the war-time, said, that the President had always evidenced a sound understanding and approval of the great value to America of roads that can be used for all varieties of traffic every day in the year.

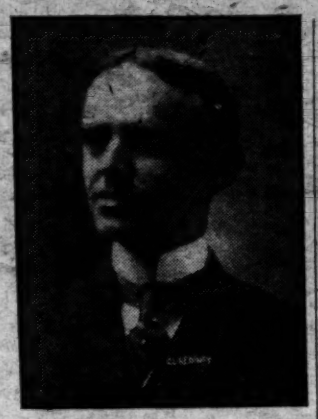
In the President's first message to Congress after the farm relief special session, he revealed that there are over 3,000,000 miles of legally established highways in the United States, of which about 10 per cent are included in the State highway system. About 625,000 miles, he said, had been improved with some type of surfacing comprising 63 per cent of the State highway systems and 16 per cent of the local roads. Of the improved roads, about 102,000 miles were hard-surfaced.

The keen interest of Gov. Pollard and Commissioner Carson in better highways for the Commonwealth of Virginia, is well known. In recent years worn-out turnpikes have been replaced by modern highways and old bridges by modern steel and concrete structures. Virginia is one of the few States that pursue a pay-as-you-go plan. Both new construction and maintenance costs are taken from the gasoline tax.

The entire State of Virginia, as well as the rest of the Nation, is interested in the Shenandoah National Park, a magnificent park of 327,000 acres of mountain playgrounds, reaching from Front Royal to Waynesboro in one of the most beautiful sections of the Blue Ridge Mountains. Within 350 miles of this park live over 40,000,000 people. The region is one of great beauty and one full of historical memories.

Meets Problem of Congestion.

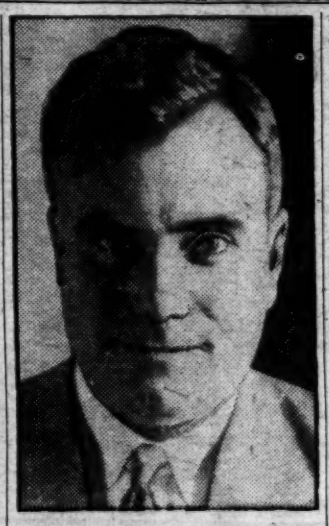
It is interesting to note that the Lee Memorial boulevard as planned meets the requirements of the most foresighted thinkers who have turned their attention to arterial highways for the United States. With 24,000,000 automobiles in this country, the question of traffic congestion has become acute. All those who have dealt with the problem for any length of time recommend that through traffic lanes pass near cities and towns but not through them.



D. D. HULL, Jr., of Roaknoke, Va., first president of the Lee Highway Association.

C. H. HUSTON, second president of the Lee Highway Association.

HENRY ROBERTS, Bristol, Va., third president of the Lee Highway Association.



GEO. A. G. WOOD, Washington, chairman of the Central Committee of the National Boulevard Association.

LEE MEMORIAL BOULEVARD

A Beautifully Conceived Corridor - Highway Connecting Lee Highway With Washington

A magnificent approach to a magnificent city. The Lee Memorial boulevard will present vista upon vista of beauty and impressiveness with an inspiring panorama of the Nation's Capital as a fitting terminus to this corridor-highway connecting Lee highway with the City of Washington.

Citizens of Washington and of the entire Nation, which is proud of its National Capital, are as deeply interested in construction of the magnificent Lee boulevard as is the State of Virginia, which is undertaking its building. For the boulevard will furnish an approach of great beauty to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, now nearing completion, and will be the crowning achievement of the Lee highway project, that great cross-country artery of travel stretching from San Diego, Calif., to Washington.

It is to be regretted that the House, at the last session of Congress, through pressure of business, failed to concur with the Senate in passing legislation authorizing the Federal Government to build a necessary connecting link of the boulevard across a corner of Fort Myer Reservation, tying up Virginia's section of the road, which ends at the western boundary of Fort Myer, with the entrance to the bridge, thus completing the boulevard approach to Washington. But so great and compelling is the interest that has been aroused in the Lee boulevard that it is expected the bill assuring the Federal Government's cooperation in adding the last link in the chain will speedily be passed at the next session of Congress.

Proceeding With Plans.

Undeterred by this delay, the State of Virginia is proceeding with its plans for the construction of the part of the boulevard extending from Fort Myer westward to Fort Buffalo, near Falls Church. Great credit is due to the National Boulevard Association for the accomplishments achieved to date in acquiring the rights of way over a route 200 feet in width with a paved road 40 feet wide in initial construction and with the provision for the addition of 10 feet on either side at some later date when traffic requires it. Plans for the boulevard call for its extension 80 miles from the National Capital to Shenandoah Park, without grade crossings for its entire length, with provision for both high speed and slow traffic, with ornamental planting and parkways, and with the building line 60 feet back from the right-of-way. When completed it will without doubt be the most magnificent approach to any city in the world.

Its utility is conceded on every hand, as it will be the only adequate approach to Washington from the South, the West and the Southwest. It is considered of great importance that the 8 miles' stretch between the Arlington Memorial Bridge and Fort Buffalo be completed prior to 1932, when visitors from all over the country will come by automobile—to the National Capital, attracted by the George Washington bicentennial celebration.

In constructing this boulevard, Virginia is paying tribute to Robert E. Lee, her most idolized native son. Of impressive significance is the fact that the boulevard in conjunction with the Arlington Memorial Bridge links the North, typified by the Lincoln Memorial at the eastern entrance of the bridge, with the South, thus emphasizing the Union cemented by the blood shed in the Civil War.

The road will run through country not only scenically attractive but rich in historical interest, facts that will lure thousands of tourists to use this approach to the National Capital, which is said to be every American's "second home city."

Will Be Beautified.

The State of Virginia is to be congratulated on its vision and patriotism in building this complement to the Lee highway. Its construction will have the effect of making the land it traverses closely linked in fact and in spirit with the Greater Washington, the development of which has already begun.

The Lee boulevard not only will be the widest highway in Virginia but will be beautified throughout its entire length. Many excellent roads have neglected roadsides, ugly, and unkempt. Such conditions will not be permitted along the boulevard.

With two famous objectives, Washington at its eastern end and Shenandoah Park at its western, this boulevard will become one of the most traveled roads in the country. The Lee highway, the famous southern route across the United States, open for travel the year round, will be a constant feeder into the boulevard from the West. And tourists going from the East will find the boulevard, connecting with Lee highway the most attractive gateway to their Western trip.

The American Automobile Association and other organizations have pointed out the need of such an approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge as will be furnished by the Lee boulevard and are urging its completion before the bicentennial celebration of 1932 brings to this city millions of visitors, many of whom will come by automobile.

LEE HIGHWAY

A Mental Concept Twelve Years Ago— A Cross-Continent Motor Way Today

Lee highway, between Falls Church and Fairfax Courthouse, Va., surveyed by George Washington in his youth, but remaining a primitive wagon trail until it became Lee highway. Now an 18-foot concrete road.

The beginning of the Lee highway movement, the latest development of which will be the Lee Memorial boulevard dates back to January 15, 1919, when D. C. Humphreys, professor of Engineering in Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., a strong advocate of good roads, received a letter from Dr. S. M. Johnson, of New Mexico, at that time in Washington, describing a southern transcontinental highway he had in mind.

Dr. Johnson informed Prof. Humphreys that there was under construction a road running from Hot Springs, Ark., through New Mexico to San Diego, Calif. This road Dr. Johnson hoped might be projected eastward to Washington, D. C., and he suggested that Virginia take the lead in forming an organization to work for completion of this road as a memorial to Gen. Robert E. Lee.

The first result, after a conference between Dr. Johnson and Prof. Humphreys, was a call for a meeting at Roanoke which was held February 22, 1919. The date, Washington's birthday, was well chosen, for the movement then begun was destined to powerfully affect national development. A provisional organization was formed, which was made permanent on December 3 of that year and which began to function actively the succeeding spring, April 21, 1920. Its name was Lee Highway Association, with Dr. S. M. Johnson as general director.

Thirteen men were the organizers. These men, who first shared the vision of the Lee highway were D. C. Humphreys, Lexington, Va.; the Hon. E. Lee Trinkle, Wytheville, Va.; B. C. Moomaw, Cloverdale, Va.; John Wood, Roanoke, Va.; J. A. Mundy, Natural Bridge, Va.; J. S. Callison, Staunton, Va.; J. A. Turner, Hollins, Va.; M. C. Thomas, Crockett Springs, Va.; D. P. Sites, of Roanoke (chosen president of this temporary organization); George E. Cassell, Radford, Va.; F. H. La Baume, San Diego, Calif.; Dr. J. P. McConnell, East Radford, Va., and Dr. S. M. Johnson, of Roswell, N. Mex.

Five States Represented.

How intensely this group worked to arouse interest and how successful their efforts were is shown in the fact that the following December 3, 1919, 500 men, representing five States, met at Roanoke when the permanent organization was formed. The control was placed in a board of directors which met at Bristol, Va., ten days later and elected D. D. Hull, jr., of Roanoke, as president. The following April he named Dr. S. M. Johnson general director, because of his long experience in good roads development.

Mr. Claudius H. Huston, of Chattanooga, was the second president of the association, and when he was called to be Herbert Hoover's First Assistant in the Department of Commerce, the headquarters of Lee Highway Association was moved to Washington, where it has remained.

On July 8, 1923, on the resignation of Mr. Huston because Government business in Asia was taking him away from Washington for several months, Henry Roberts, of Bristol, Va., was elected to the presidency. He was alreadys widely known as "Good Roads Roberts," because of the fact that he had long been a leader in road improvement, and after his election gave unstintingly of his time to the promotion of the building of Lee Highway, cooperating with Dr. S. M. Johnson, who has continued in his directorship up to the present time.

Way Is All Rapid Transit.

travelers, garages and filling stations, restaurants, tourist camps and hotels—everything, in fact, that motor tourists require—so that the United States Bureau of Education in selecting main trunk highways of the United States to be studied in the public schools has listed Lee highway as one of the "main streets of the Nation" and published a bulletin to assist in placing it in the curriculum of studies.

Lee Highway Builds South.

Thus Lee highway is rendering a service to the South comparable to the service rendered to the North by the building of the first railway to the Pacific Coast. In the decade from 1850 to 1860, when Jefferson Davis was Secretary of War, the Engineer Corps of the War Department made five surveys at Government expense for a railway from the Missouri-Mississippi River Valley to the Pacific Coast. Reports submitted to Congress favored a route from Memphis to southern California, and had it not been for the War between the States the "Great Pacific road" would have been built from Memphis to southern California instead of from Omaha to San Francisco. It was the railway age, and where the railway went, population went and development took place.

Dr. Johnson, though a son of a Union soldier, born in Indiana and reared in the North, anticipating that the United States of today would be run in the mold of its highways as the United States of yesterday was run in the mold of its railways, with the assistance of the American Automobile Association and the Federal and State authorities, selected the route for Lee highway crossing the Mississippi at Memphis and reaching the Western Coast at San Deigo, following for the most part the route which was favored for the Pacific Railway.

The spirit of Lee has permeated Lee Highway Association, and since Lee highway is now and will be increasingly a main factor in national development, it appears that the great Virginian through posthumous influence is continuing the work to which, from Appomattox to his passing in 1870, he devoted himself, the task of rebuilding the South as a vital part of the Nation. A section whose development has been delayed by lack of facilities of motor transit has now been linked with the rest of the country by the flowing ribbon—Lee highway.

Free Bridge Is Won.

The ability of the association to get results has been shown by its success in getting the road built where it could not have been constructed through local effort. A typical instance was the building of the road connecting Frederick, Okla., with Vernon, Tex. The Red River ran between—the boundary between Oklahoma and Texas—more than a mile in width. In all its course of 1,100 miles there was not a single bridge free from toll.

Before the association would locate Lee highway through Frederick and Vernon, it exacted a pledge from the two towns and counties that they would provide a free bridge within a reasonable time. Because of the energetic action of the two towns and counties, supported by the two States and the Federal Government, the bridge was built and dedicated forever free. Through the inspiration of this action, free bridges are now displacing toll bridges along Red River.

Lee Highway Association has succeeded because among other things its objective, principles and methods were such as to command the support of other organizations and agencies. The National Highways Association, whose president is Charles Davis, of New York, a man whose propulsive power has been a prime factor in the national highway improvement program, has given the association his strong support. So has the American Automobile Association and chambers of commerce generally. Likewise the road planning and building agencies of the Federal Government and the Lee highway States and counties.

Strict Accounting Is Kept.

The complete confidence of an interested public has been gained by the association because of its principles, strict accounting for receipts and expenditures, and the limitation of activities by funds available to finance them, and also because of its proven ability to get results usually regarded as impossible.

Some indication of the interest aroused in the building of Lee Highway may be seen in comments from citizens in various localities. Mr. Cowan Rodgers, an outstanding leader in the good roads movement in Tennessee, in a letter to the president of Lee Highway Association said: "I believe that the agitation over the Lee Highway has done more to arouse interest in the good roads movement throughout this section than any other event in the history of this State."

Mr. M. E. Church, of Falls Church, Va., wrote: "As to the material benefits of this splendid road; every foot of real estate bordering thereon between Washington and Fairfax has increased from 500 to 1,000 per cent in value. Hundreds of residences and business buildings have been erected along and adjacent to the highway that never would have been built if the road had not been constructed."

Praises Road in New Mexico.

E. A. Cahoon, president of the First National Bank, of Roswell, N. Mex., wrote of the Lee Highway: "Dr. Johnson is responsible for the Lee Highway, an overland motor road from Washington, D. C., to San Diego, Calif., on which the City of Roswell is located. This road in New Mexico is one of the best surfaced motor roads anywhere in the country."

Such expressions might be quoted indefinitely from the letter files of the association but these few are indicative of the many words that have been written concerning the Lee Highway undertaking and its importance in the creation of wealth and to the security as well as the development of the Nation.

Cooperation is possible only through organization and groups are strong only through capable leaderships and loyal and sustained support all along the line. The strength of Lee Highway Association has been due in no small degree to the loyal support given by the vice president, directors and members of the association in each State and county.

California has paved its section and placed Lee Highway markers entirely across the State from San Diego to the Colorado River at Yuma, Ariz. The vice president is Col. Edward Fletcher, chairman of the national highways committee of the Chamber of Commerce of San Diego, who has done more than any other man in California to promote southern cross-continent routes.

give him—Arizona's outstanding highway man, president of the Southern National Highway Association, one of the men whose pleas and efforts resulted in passage of the Federal highway act and measure after measure resulting in road construction, such for example as the splendid concrete road for Lee Highway extending in either direction from the Coolidge Dam across the Gila River east to Globe, Ariz. Much of what was originally the Southern National is now Lee Highway.

Southwest New Mexico has followed the example of Arizona in furnishing a splendid roadbed for Lee Highway—all paved from the Arizona line to the Texas line near El Paso.

El Paso, Tex., has been a strong supporter of Lee Highway, having built 20 miles of pavement for Lee Highway entering the State from the west. Fine wide paved streets and avenues carry one through the city, not without a stop for a trip across the Rio Grande into Old Mexico for the novel sensation of its sights and, for some—its tastes. El Paso County has also built pavement 20 miles in length for Lee Highway travel northward to Newman, where New Mexico is reentered.

Many in New Mexico Helped.

Southeastern New Mexico has contributed a number of men besides Dr. Johnson, who have devoted many years to the work, Dr. E. D. McKinley, of Alamogordo; the Hon. J. V. Tully, of Glencoe; J. H. Mullis, E. A. Cahoon, Charles Shepherd, C. C. Cagle, Quinn Cummings, Claude Simpson, Dr. J. B. S. Woolford, Mr. Smyrl and dozens of others. In fact, it was the Roswell Chamber of Commerce that financed Dr. Johnson's first work for a southern transcontinental highway, 21 years ago, and during all these years it has given him its support in every way.

Through the united efforts of the men of southeastern New Mexico, the Lee highway from El Paso to Texico, where it reenters Texas is, like all the mileage from San Diego, a splendid road, safe and fast as you please, the distance more than a thousand miles. Motor bus service twice a day is continuous from Los Angeles to New York, less expensive and almost as fast as by railway.

Lee highway traverses nine counties in the Panhandle of Texas—crossing the "staked plains." Five of the nine counties voted bonds to provide a third of the cost of a paved Lee highway, and the State provided the other two-thirds. Lee highway is graded and the drainage structures are all in, the pavement is being laid rapidly—and it will not be long until the Texas section of this memorial will compare with that of the other States. The vice president of the west Texas section is R. H. Coffee, of Vernon.

Oklahoma Section Is Good.

Pat. H. Peck, of Duncan, Okla., has been an indefatigable Lee Highwayman who has made so many trips to Oklahoma City to see the State highway commission to persuade them to finish Lee Highway across the State that they do not argue, they just give him what he wants. Portions of Lee Highway in the three western counties traversed before crossing Red River into Texas are yet to be surfaced, but all is graded and drained and the road across the other counties to the Arkansas line is all graded and graveled and much of it paved. Roy Johnson, of Ardmore, has been one of the strongest supporters of Lee Highway Association, and J. L. Newland, chairman of the good roads committee of Frederick, with strong backing, has given the association splendid support.

Arkansas has finished the grading and practically All is surfaced, although the Mississippi floods created problems in the St. Francis Basin. One of the leaders has been the Hon. C. F. Greenlee, of Forrest City.

Tennessee has paved her entire portion, from Memphis across southwest Tennessee to the point where the highway enters Mississippi, passing through two counties of that State. M. M. Elledge and M. T. Sharp have led in the work, so that now there is a fine graded and graveled road. Lee Highway traverses the five northern counties of Alabama to a point near South Pittsburg, where it reenters Tennessee and follows pavement to Chattanooga, whence the pavement is continuous to Washington. Thomas B. King, manager of the highway division of the Chamber of Commerce; John E. Lovell and Sam Reade, of Chattanooga; G. F. Lockmiller, of Athens; Cowan Rodgers, of Knoxville, and J. Fred Johnson, jr., of Kingsport, have been the men leading the association in its successful program in Tennessee.

In Virginia the support has been so enthusiastic that to mention any one man seems invidious. Henry Roberts, of Bristol, as president of the association has rendered a notable service during the years of his splendid leadership. He is building a splendid Lee boulevard entrance to Bristol. E. Lee Trinkle, of Wytheville, was one of the original thirteen who started the movement and later, as Governor of the State, he

An APOSTLE of GOOD ROADS

The Man Who Conceived the LEE MEMORIAL BOULEVARD

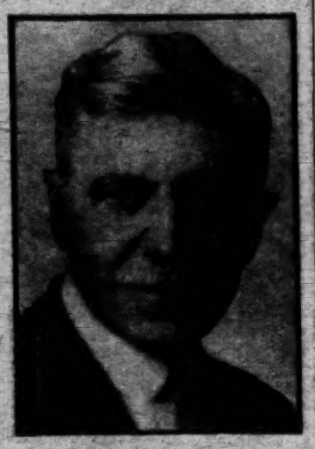
As told to Wm. Galvin

The most potent, persistent and colorful personality in the whole good roads movement in America, in the minds of many best fitted to know, is Dr. S. M. Johnson, of New Mexico. Dr. Johnson's activities in the good roads movement began in his home State in 1910, where he had established his ranch in a mountain valley watered by the Rio Ruidoso.

The land was fertile, but it was 37 miles over a mountain road to the railway, 72 miles to the nearest market-town, Roswell, N. Mex., and 134 miles to the nearest city, El Paso, Tex. The roads were primitive wagon trails.

The region was one of great beauty, in the Southern Rockies, far enough south for mild winters and 6,200 feet above sea level, hence cool in summer. Destiny had marked it as a recreational area, and topography had marked the Ruidoso Valley as the route for a main arterial highway. This was clear to Johnson, and he began at once to give substance to his vision.

A leading practitioner, Dr. J. W. Laws, associated himself with Dr. Johnson and formed the Lincoln County Good Roads Association, of El Paso, Tex.



Dr. S. M. Johnson, the man who changes mired roads to Nation-wide highways and monumental boulevards.

Began Roads Work.

Although a newcomer to the region he took an active part in every good roads movement and helped materially in putting over the county bond issue which resulted in vast improvement of the county roads. He was also active in helping to secure the State bond issue for roads and revision of the law so as to remove roads from politics.

Even at that early date, Dr. Laws has testified, Mr. Johnson prophesied that one day a transcontinental highway would traverse the county and today the Lee Highway from Washington to San Diego is a reality, crossing Lincoln County just as he predicted.

As with all those who conceive great ideas, he was considered by many people as a visionary idealist and today some of them acknowledge that he lived ahead of his time, but they have lived to see the actual realization of the projects that he supported.

From March, 1910, to December, 1912, Dr. Johnson's activities were directed toward getting the communities from Roswell to El Paso working together to get a road built between those cities, and then to incorporating this road as a part of a cross-continent line. He went to Chicago, and with others succeeded in having the road from Dodge City, Kans., by way of Roswell and El Paso to San Diego, logged in the spring of 1912—as a southerly route of the National Old Trails. The name selected was the "Borderland Route."

Represented New Mexico.

In January, 1913, Dr. Johnson was a commissioner representing New Mexico at a convention at Asheville, N. C., which selected a route for a Southern touring route, the Southern National highway, the route from West to East being from San Diego through El Paso, Dallas, Hot Springs, Memphis, Raleigh, Richmond to Washington. Col. Dell M. Potter, of Clifton, Ariz., was president. He is Dr. Johnson's leading supporter in Arizona.

In March, 1913, as a delegate to the second Federal Aid Conference held in Washington, D. C., called by the American Automobile Association, Dr. Johnson made a plea for the Government to build roads at its own cost across national forests. This was the beginning of his acquaintance with the A. A. A., the late Senator John H. Bankhead and the heads of the State highway departments.

Addressing the American Road Builders Association in Atlanta in 1914 he had on the desk three beautiful apples grown on his ranch in the Lincoln National Forest, each measuring almost 5 inches in diameter. Unwrapping them from their tissue covers, with an intuitive showmanship, he held them up one at a time before an audience of 5,000 from all parts of the country and said he was feeding such apples to hogs, because neither the county nor the State could tax the land for funds to build roads, because it was a national forest. He had a resolution ready which he offered, and which carried, and in a few months Congress appropriated a million dollars a year for ten years for roads in national forests.

Dr. Johnson spent the winter of 1915 at Raleigh, N. C., where he assisted in the passage of the bill creating the State highway commission, of which Col. Benehan Cameron was first chairman. Col. Cameron was one of the most active men in organizing the Southern National Highway Association. Another was Joseph Hyde Pratt, State geologist of North Carolina, who gives Dr. Johnson a large part of the credit for the passage of the Bankhead-Shackleford bill, providing Federal aid for highways.

Aided Bankhead Road.

Dr. Johnson was a friend of the late Senator Bankhead and has been a factor in successfully promoting the Bankhead highway.

During that winter, 1915, Dr. Johnson visited Nashville, Tenn., and Richmond, Va., as the personal representative of Gov. Craig, of North Carolina, and secured action by the legislatures of these two States joining North Carolina in the building of the Southern National highway.

In the spring of 1915, he addressed the United Daughters of the Confederacy at Raleigh, N. C., and expressed surprise that while there was a Lincoln highway, a Jefferson highway and many other bearing the names of outstanding Americans, none had been established as a memorial to Gen. Robert E. Lee. Thus, sixteen years ago, he entertained the idea of a Lee highway.

Activities of Bankhead.

Immediately following the signing of the Armistice in November, 1918, the late Senator John H. Bankhead, who for a third of a century served the State of Alabama in Congress, and who as chairman of the Senate committee on postoffices and postroads was the leader of the good roads forces of the country, sent requests to the officials of the Bankhead Highway Association to come to Washington and assist in the passage of a bill for a great increase in the appropriation for Federal aid for highways, as a means of providing employment for returning soldiers, and to aid industry in returning to a peacetime basis. At the same time, the annual convention of the Southern Commercial Congress was to be held in Baltimore with one session to be devoted to the highway program.

Addressing the officers of the Bankhead Highway Association at that time, Dr. Johnson related how, at the close of the Civil War in Federal camps in Virginia, the army mules were turned loose instead of being shipped north; how the Negroes caught them, hitched them to their plows and broke the ground for the first crop of the new South—a positive help to recovery. He called attention to the fact that the sudden ending of the World War had left us with vast stores of material, equipment and supplies, billions of dollars' worth that were no longer needed for war purposes, but much of it suitable for highway improvement. He urged that instead of demoralizing business by selling it for a song at army auction sales everything suitable for the purpose be passed on from the Federal to the State governments gratis—to be used in highway work.

Quick Response Given.

The response to his suggestion was prompt and enthusiastic.

ARLINGTON COUNTY IDEAL SECTION OF FIVE POSSIBILITIES

Southern Entrance to Capitol Only Few Minutes Away by Automobile.

By MR. FRANK LYON.

Arlington, the smallest county in the United States, with an area of less than 30 square miles, is historically a part of the northern neck of Virginia. It was patented in 1688 by King James II of England, to Thomas, Lord Culpeper, and in 1796 ceded by Virginia to the United States to form part of the District of Columbia. In 1846 the land was retro-ceded to Virginia for good reasons then existing and now is known as Arlington County.

FRANK C. LYON
An Active Worker in the Interest of the Lee Memorial Boulevard

Probably nowhere in the world has there been a like area fraught with such possibilities for real greatness as lies within the grasp of Arlington County. The fact that until with the last decade it was retarded in its growth by lack of appropriate communicating bridges, has led to the inevitable greatness of its future.

Had it been open to development in the past as has been the District of Columbia, instead of a population of less than a thousand to the square mile, it would have quadrupled its present population, quadrupled its streets, buildings would have been erected without examining the future, and values would have reached such a height that the laying out of the county in a manner consonant with its future would have been a financial impossibility.

100 Per Cent Population Gain.

The census of 1930 shows an increase in population of Arlington County of more than 100 per cent over that of 1920. It is now about 30,000 which, added to Alexandria City, in the southern end of the county and Falls Church at its northern end, makes an urban population of over 50,000. If this community were incorporated as a city it would be fourth in population of the State, being exceeded only by Richmond, Norfolk and Roanoke.

A large portion of the county has been subdivided into building sites, numbers of homes are being and have been erected during the depression of the last two years which has somewhat retarded the growth of other outlying suburbs of Washington. The cause for this apparent anomalous condition as to growth is due to the extraordinary situation arising from the making of a world capital—the City of Washington.

Owing to the topography of the ground and the location of the Capitol, the Washington Monument and the White House, all of these buildings are to be located immediately across from Arlington County. In order to complete the magnificent picture contemplated in the erection of these buildings, it is essential that there be not only a complete readjustment of the banks of the Potomac River but a recasting of the Virginia shore at least as far back as the heights overlooking the Capital of the Nation.

To accomplish this, the swamps bordering both sides of the river have been eliminated and great areas thereby added which are being rapidly converted into magnificent parks and driveways

Lying opposite the Lincoln Memorial is Arlington, the great national burial ground of the Nation, the former home of Gen. Robert E. Lee, the leader of the Confederacy. Between this cemetery and the river are a thousand acres or more owned by the United States upon which is the Virginia approach to the Memorial

BIGGER WASHINGTON IS SEEN IN VIRGINIA

Lee Boulevard and Arlington Bridge Bespeak Huge Developments.

By W. S. HOGE, Jr.

First, let us review past progress: In 1920 Highway Bridge was the only means of crossing the Potomac into northern Virginia. The population of Arlington County was then 16,040, the assessed valuation $8,171,100; the Francis Scott Key Bridge was completed in 1925 and by 1929 the population of Arlington County had increased to 30,000 and the assessed valuation to $28,713,119. The roads leading out from the aforesaid bridges were ordinary highways, not exceeding 16-foot pavements on 30-foot right-of-ways, radiating into the various small developed sections of Arlington and Fairfax Counties and connecting with such State and Federal aid roads as Lee highway, Jefferson Davis and James Madison, arterial highways to California, Florida and interstate points.

Lee boulevard, on the other hand, has its origin at the $15,000,000 Arlington Memorial Bridge and extends from the center line of this great bridge across the Arlington plateau and central to the regional area of Washington in Virginia.

My firm belief, and other men concur in it, is that the territory opened up by Lee boulevard will become the Greater Washington of the future and within a reasonable time will show a development of beautiful residences, lovely homes and estates as have heretofore been but dreams. The population and assessment value will soar to almost unbelievable heights as Washington grows Virginia-way. The natural beauty of Virginia furnishes a fitting setting for Greater Washington. In 1935 check the progress made and recall this statement.

To Dr. S. M. Johnson, director of Lee Highway Association and president of the National Boulevard Association, should go the honor and credit for this project. Though he has been ably assisted by other men of vision the dream, the plan, the achievement are his. Both Washington and Greater Washington will revere the name of Johnson as they reap the harvest of his efforts an accomplishments.

I could say much more, but why waste words, think for yourselves. When the Arch of Triumph and Bois de Boulogne were built in and out of Paris, what happened? Did Chicago develop further on completion of Sheridan drive? Is Philadelphia the same as before Roosevelt boulevard was constructed? Will Washington, with greater advantages and the unsurpassed possibilities of Mount Vernon and Lee Memorial boulevards be different in reaction? No. Wealth, culture, education, patriotism and happiness will all reach a higher plane via Lee boulevard.

William S. Hoge, jr., an Arlington County enthusiast.

W. T. GALLIHER, president of Strathmeade Corporation, shows his confidence in northern Virginia by sponsoring a community of homes on a 1,311-acre tract between the Lee Highway and Lee Boulevard. For many years he was president of a well-known retail lumber business, and is a director of the Washington Better Business Bureau

Bridge connecting the Lincoln Memorial with the home of Lee.

From this Virginia terminus has been laid the Mount Vernon Memorial Drive to Washington's home, 15 miles to the south. About $7,000,000 has been appropriated and is now being expended for the acquisition of lands and the building of the highway, about $500,000 per mile. It is said to be the largest appropriation ever made by any people for a public highway through a country district. Fifteen millions has been appropriated and expended on the Memorial Bridge.

Another $5,000,000 has been expended in the erection of the Key Bridge, lying about one mile north, connecting old Georgetown (west Washington) with Arlington County. To complete the picture, Congress has provided for what is designated as the Washington Memorial Park and has appropriated several millions of dollars to start the improvement, which requires the acquisition of land on both sides of the Potomac for 15 miles up the river to include the Great Falls, one of the show-places of the eastern United States.

The vast sums both appropriated and contemplated for the completion of Washington and its environs staggers the imagination. Nothing like it has occurred in the history of the United States and it is doubtful if it has its counterpart in the history of the world. It may be that during the period when Athens reached its zenith and Rome the meridian of its greatness and power and when France was approaching its revolution at the end of the eighteenth century greater sums were applied to the building of a great capital, but nothing approaching the vastness of the undertaking now in course of accomplishment at Washington has occurred during the past hundred years in any other country.

When it is realized that Arlington County, the smallest in the United States, with a present population of over 50,000, lies immediately adjacent to the territory in which this vast expenditure is taking place and through which all traffic must pass destined to the south and west, the possibilities of the section beggar accurate conception.

100 Homes Already In Alcova Heights

New Development Within Easy Driving Distance of Washington.

Among the properties which are bound to show a substantial increase in values with the completion of Arlington Memorial Bridge and Lee Memorial highway, is Alcova Heights, a comparatively new development at Columbia Pike and Glebe road within three miles of the center of Washington. The distance can easily be covered by auto in ten minutes or less when the new Lee boulevard is completed, and even now it may be reached by several routes in from twelve to fifteen minutes' drive.

About 100 homes have been built in Alcova Heights, which enjoys a fine location on a high elevation and many other advantages such as fine paved roads, gas, city water, electricity, &c., with a fine school, churches and stores in the immediate neighborhood.

Investors with an appreciation of rising land values occasioned by the new bridge and boulevard developments are turning their eyes toward this section. Others are beginning to realize the opportunities available, which means this section will attract many newcomers and will soon be showing greatly increased activity.

LURAY, VA., A CHARMING TOWN, CLOSE TO PARK AND OTHER ATTRACTIONS

The town that gave its name to the Luray Caverns, the largest, oldest and most superb of the Shenandoah Valley caves, is also nearest those supreme attractions of the proposed Shenandoah National Park that cluster so closely around the skyland summer resort.

Luray is on the Lee highway—92 miles from Washington. The Lee boulevard will run through Luray reaching the Valley pike 14 miles to the west. A two-hours' drive from Washington will put the tourist at Luray where buses are taken for Syland. The town is the point of approach for a visit to Stony Man, Hawksbill Head, White Oak Canyon and the other beauties of the loftiest and grandest areas of the park.

Not only is Luray the gateway to the supreme beauties of the proposed playground, but by being on the Lee highway it is in the travel loop over solid pavement that enables the visitor to see the Luray Caverns and return nothward without the retracing of a mile.

With a population of 3,000 Luray is the queen city of the famed Page Valley, the loviest valley in the world, according to many travelers. Nine miles east of the beautiful town of Luray is the crest of the Massanutten. The place in the center of a glorious, verdant valley, entirely surrounded by the Blue Ridge and Massanutten Mountains and almost in the shadow of two peaks 4,000 feet high, the loftiest in Virginia, the Peaks of Otter excepted.

A few miles from Luray the Lee highway begins the ascent of the Massanutten range—in many ways Virginia's strangest mountain. This historic range, by its peculiarities, made possible the brilliant strategy of Jackson's Valley Campaign. Inclosed in the Massanutten, a few miles from the Lee highway, is Powell's Fort where Washington said he would make his last stand if he failed at Yorktown. The Lee highway is the only practicable road that crosses the Massanutten anywhere along its extent.

As you approach Luray, stop on top of the Blue Ridge, at Thornton's Gap, under the shadow of the great Mary's Rock Peak, 9 miles from the town, note the magnificent view of east Virginia extending to Washington and the exquisite charm of the Page Valley.

From the summit of Thornton's Gap will be built the mountain top trail along the crest of the ridge which will unite peak to peak from one of the parks to the other. This unique and stupendous project of the Department of the Interior will eventually embrace the construction of a concrete highway 28 feet wide for 70 miles from one end of the park to the other. Although for the present the laying of the macadam base finished with limestone is what is contemplated.

To all of these natural attractions and large governmental plans, Luray is the nearest neighbor. For more than 50 years the town has provided for the great crowds that have visited the Luray Caverns and the lesson of acceptable catering to the public has been well learned. More than ten thousand people have been cared for in a day.

On May 15 the "Mimslym," a modern $200,000 fireproof hotel, with 70 rooms and every modern luxury, will be opened to the public by Mims Bros., local hotel men who, for years as proprietors of the Mansion Inn, have catered to the traveling public at this place. The new hotel is the supreme effort of enterprising home capital backed by experience and safe judgment to meet the challenge of the future.

Nor has Luray been backward in facing other responsibilities. A $200,000 high school building just completed is inferior to no plant of its kind in Virginia. The town has large industries that have been successful for generations.

Situated at the intersection of the Lee highway and the East Side highway, the trading center of a county of 15,000 people, one of the richest communities of its size in the State. The people support their churches and other institutions as liberally as their schools.

Luray is an old town, founded in 1814. While it has the charm and conservatism of the typical Virginia county seat, it has met the problems of the present and is planning for the future. It can offer to the visitor and the new citizen the advantages of a modern growing community and the aid and cooperation of a forward looking and virile people.

STRATHMEADE PLAN GIVES TO FAMILIES MANY ADVANTAGES

Results of Experiments in Community Building Are Being Used.

The Strathmeade development, a home community of 1,311 acres in Fairfax County, 9 miles from the Treasury, is a project of great social significance that will be watched by community planners and sociologists everywhere.

In the Strathmeade plan have been incorporated the latest results of many recent experiments in community planning, and safeguards for permanence, basic financing that give the project many great advantages.

President Hoover, in opening the White House conference on child health and protection, said:

"In the last half century we have herded 50,000,000 more human beings into towns and cities where the whole setting is new to the race . . . Perhaps the widest range of difficulties with which we are dealing in the betterment of children grows out of this crowding into cities . . . Delinquency increases with congestion. Over-crowding produces disease and contagion. The child's natural play place is taken from him. His mind is stunted by the lack of imaginative surroundings and lack of contact with fields, streams, trees and birds. Home life becomes more difficult. Cheerless homes produce morbid minds."

The call, then, is for uncongested residential areas, ample play space, fields, streams, birds and trees, cheerful surroundings which eliminate the problem of child delinquency—in a word, the call is for homes that have a chance to fulfill the mission of homes.

Facilities for Recreation.

To all those characteristics pointed out by President Hoover as presently desirable, there should be added permanence—the assurance that desirable characteristics shall continue.

It was with all these considerations in mind that Strathmeade was conceived. Those who visioned this community had in mind the standard of an acre of parks for every 100 inhabitants urged by specialists, but that standard in the case of Strathmeade has been doubled, and then redoubled. The play space now provides an acre of park to every three and a half acres of home sites, an acre of playground for every 25 members of the community when it will be fully built up.

Those who planned Strathmeade had in mind the recommendation of recreation experts who say that there should be a neighborhood playground of not less than ten acres within three-quarters of a mile of every home, but ten acres seemed an inadequate standard. The requirements of the experts could have been met with three play areas of ten acres each—30 acres. Strathmeade has three hundred acres of parks and play space.

Within those 300 acres will be a 27-hole golf layout with the requisite club house. There will be miles of bridle paths and a riding club, tennis courts, hand-ball courts, a swimming pool, baseball and football fields, provision for ice skating and tobogganing, play lots for little children and through it all the provision for permanence, the assurance that play and recreation facilities for children and grown ups are free from encroachments for a long period of years. And after that the decision is entirely with the home owners of the community.

Community Is Protected.

As with the play fields and parks, so it is with the building sites, whether for dwellings or schools or commercial use. Covenants which run with the land, which are already in effect, insure that commercial areas will not encroach on dwelling areas for generations to come.

Intelligent planning has assured to every home a pleasant prospect, many hundreds of them fronting on parks or the golf course. The same foresight has been to it that there shall be no through streets, enticing traffic in the community. Footpaths lead directly to schools and playgrounds. Children may go thither without crossing arterial highways.

HENRY CLARKE,
vice president and general manager of the Strathmeade Corporation, industrial engineer and community builder, one of the original organizers of the famous Palos Verdes Estates near Los Angeles. After seeing Palos Verdes firmly established as one of the leading several residential communities in America, Mr. Clarke was engaged by wealthy Chicago business men to develop historic Chambers Island (a 2,800-acre island in Green Bay, Wis.), as an exclusive and highly protected community of summer homes.

Adequate restrictions, applying to the unsold as well as to the sold areas, insure harmonious architecture in dwellings, public buildings and commercial structures.

Strathmeade is protected against haphazard growth and is intelligently planned from the beginning.

This intelligent planning is based on experience. Throughout the length and breadth of America, there is a striving for proper and protected homes. Many notable experiments are under way. There is nothing hit or miss about Strathmeade. It is the collection of tried experience in intelligent planning of residential communities. The best has been taken from each development. The ideas of a lifetime of study have been added.

For Families of Modest Income.

With 1,311 acres to work with more than 2 square miles, which means that the area is great enough to control its own environment and stamp its progressive ideas on the surrounding territory the Strathmeade Corporation has undertaken a project of adult education—an experiment in citizenship quite in line with the recommendations of the President and of all the experts in city planning recreation and progressive home development.

It is impossible to escape the conclusion that the men behind Strathmeade are less interested in real estate than they are in carrying forward the most advanced ideals of American citizenship. They have selected an area which permits them to give the average Washingtonian all of the standards recommended by the specialists, and then multiplies the requirements and adds to all of that the quality of permanence, and the entire sum is within the reach of the Washingtonian who would have the best, and all the while, in point of time, these things may be had within easy reach of government buildings or downtown Washington.

The news in Strathmeade is that here in the Nation's Capital there is undertaken a project looking to carrying out all of the recommendations of the President and of sociologists to provide the maximum requirements for an ideal home community within reach of many thousands of Washingtonians.

Other Planned Communities.

Strathmeade is based on the experience of a dozen successful communities built along similar lines in various parts of the country. Outstanding examples of such cooperative ventures are found in Shaker Village, Cleveland; Forrest Hills Garden, Long Island; Roland Park, Baltimore, and others.

The homeowner in Strathmeade, as in the communities mentioned above, is protected against the encroachments of industry and business, against grotesque architecture in covenants which run with the land. These restrictive or, more properly, protective measures apply to the entire development from the beginning. That is, they apply to unsold as well as to sold areas, whereas usually such restrictions apply against the purchaser but not against the unsold lots in the hands of the developer.

The assurance of legal sanction to building restrictions is recent, dating back only to the decision of the United States Supreme Court of 1926 in the Euclid case. In that case it was decided that zoning is in the interest of public policy. Prior to that time many parcels of real estate were sold subject to restrictions against use for business, and against many other uses, but the assurance that these limitations would hold at law was not fully established until the 1926 decision.

The layout of the streets, for instance, is designed to discourage through traffic, thus providing quiet and safety for the residents. This result is obtained by winding streets and long blocks, which enable the planners to make the most of the terrain and outlook, and minimize the cost of grading, drainage and planting.

The sponsors of Strathmeade are building well but always with a view to ultimate economy. Street foundations are laid and used in the incomplete state until settling has taken place, after which the top surface of asphalt is laid. The highways are built to endure. A further protection of streets, and an immense ultimate economy, is insured by running all public utilities connections—water, sewer, gas, electric and telephone mains—along the back line of building lots. Streets will not be torn up to make repairs or new connections. Streets will have to wear out.

RALPH F. CRANE, identified with land activities in and around Washington for the past decade. For the past five years he has been associated with the Gulliher interests. He is secretary of the Strathmeade Corporation

The plan of financing Strathmeade is also a scientific one which permits pioneers to share in all the benefits of a cooperative development.

In a development so large as Strathmeade, with its 1,311 acres, the initiative had to be taken by the corporation, which has purchased the land and with the aid of men of wide and successful experience has developed the basic project. This plan incorporates all of the desirable building restrictions or protections, such as the establishment of commercial zones, the exclusion of multi-family dwellings, the permanent dedication of generous park and recreational areas, the preservation of trees, the location of streets to preserve all that is best of a naturally beautiful rolling and wooded terrain, the establishment of a board of architectural control and other features of proven worth.

Makes More Home Owners.

From that point onward the home owner has been admitted to full pro-rata participation before there has been any great appreciation in land values and in such a way as to permit the participant to select his fully improved home or business site while he is paying for it and before any of the property in this community has been offered to the public. The purpose of the plan is to extend to a large number of small owners the benefits usually enjoyed only by a small number of large subscribers.

As prospective home owners and other investors have subscribed to units of the Strathmeade syndicate they have obtained certificates which carry the right to convert at face value into real estate at the cost of the land plus the cost of improvements and Commemorating one of Virginia's most illustrious sons, Lee Memorial Boulevard will carry along its concrete right-of-way thousands of people who will view the many points of scenic splendor and historic association and who will be thrilled with appreciation of the pride Virginia has in Robert E. Lee. They will realize what his life and works have meant to the life and destiny of the Old Dominion.

Near this and other important highways in Virginia run the Copper Highways of the VIRGINIA PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY. Hundreds of miles of these Copper Highways carry daily the great benefits of electricity to farm, home, factory and business. In the factory they bring the hum of production to wheels of industry; on the farm they bring relief from back-breaking toil for the farmer and his wife; in the home they bring ease, comfort, freedom from drudgery. From these Copper Highways can be drawn the master servant, Electricity, which, at the lowest possible cost, will make your life more livable and your days more full of joy.

The Shenandoah Valley

An Arcadia Famed in Song and Embattled Epic

By COL. HOWARD J. BENCHOFF

In making plans for a summer tour the traveler is faced with a variety of suggestions, many of which strike the fancy most compellingly. With all of New England and the Great Lakes section to consider, one might feel "enough said." But, then, there are the Canadian Rockies, that challenge the lovers of outdoors and great adventure with an appeal that is hard to deny.

However, many of the folks who are going to make a summer trip can not venture so far from the homeland, and will cast about for delights that are within easier reach. And Virginia offers them everything that all the others might give, in one form or another.

In the first place, Virginia is so easily accessible, especially the Shenandoah Valley, that lovely Arcadia, famed in song and story and embattled epic.

Perhaps no other section, rich in scenic and historic lore, offers the casual tourist as much for his time and money as the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, with its Blue Ridge Mountains on the east and the Alleghenies on the west, can show.

Accessibility and good roads are matters to be considered for the busy man, who wishes to run off from the cares of office for a few days. Here lies the "beckoning land" that will satisfy every whim and fancy and curiosity, and do it with a grace and ease that will make for a perfect trip.

Federal Route No. 1 traverses this Shenandoah Valley. In entering this route one finds that it is tapped in the Empire State by way of the Mohawk Trail or the Finger Lakes country direct, thus giving outlet to the millions from New England and New York, who may wish to run down to bask in a sunnier clime. The Susquehanna trail will carry them along down through Harrisburg and on through the Cumberland Valley, via charming roads and scenery and such history as made the Nation tingle in bygone days. And as the Old Dominion draws nearer the tourist finds himself meeting up with cousins and friends galore all swinging into the current of visitors from the William Penn, the Lincoln and national highways down into "Ole Virginny." The very air seems to breathe an easier accent, once the Potomac is crossed and the fair Virginia Valley opens up to the expectant eye.

Rich in Historical Lore.

Much of historic interest will be seen in almost every mile, for this valley played a dramatic part in the building of the United States, whether it was frontier days, colonial times, or George Washington and his compass and surveying instruments. In fact, the traveler will find himself riding over the very trail that the first President himself blazed, with Winchester as headquarters, for his lordship, Mr. Fairfax. Between Martinsburg and Winchester he will note the Morgan monument, in memory of a family that gave character to those days. Swinging on down the line will loom the battlefields, some of them almost as dazzling in history as that at Gettysburg. But there will be so much of this that the experience will be like renewing one's knowledge of American history—Kernstown, Cedar Creek, Fishers Hill, Port Republic, on through to Lexington, where the heroes of the Confederacy, Lee and Jackson, lie in state.

Of course everybody has heard about the famous caverns of the Shenandoah Valley. There are six of them, each in its own way distinctive and most interesting. It is not infrequent to find visitors doing three or more of these caverns on one trip, so thrilling are the underground experiences, much like a trip through fairyland. The caverns are visited by hundreds of thousands every year, and even the hurried traveler takes time to see at least one.

Shenandoah National Park.

Then the Shenandoah National Park is gradually taking shape, and opening up to the public. At present several leading highways cross it at intervals, giving some opportunity to grasp its significance, vast stretch, elevations and possibilities. It is worth taking time to mount the magnificent vantage point at Skyland and from there by horse and trail or foot or wing explore the grandeur of this park, destined, doubtless, to become the most popular of all the Nation's parks, for it is within easy reach and in a circle that would include all that Virginia's shrines have to offer, with a finish at the Nation's Capital. In doing all of this section of the valley one meets many attractive cities and towns, institutions of learning, industrial and agricultural developments, stock and dairy farms, to say nothing of the immense apple orchards that are making Virginia known even better at home as well as abroad. The queen of the Apple Blossom Festival, an annual celebration that is making history for Winchester and the valley, will come this year from Winchester, England; a happy thought that will tie the two Saxon nations closer in friendly feeling.

If not one of the seven wonders of the world, at least it may be considered as one of the wonders of America, and that is the Natural Bridge, 15 miles south of Lexington. It must be seen to be understood, and a visit to this point is in the program of every visitor. It can be seen by day or night, for experts have illuminated it, and a novelty for this year is the entrancing effects of a radio placement, that seems to stir up mother earth in weird musical echoes that carry one back to the Sirens of the ancients.

Yes, one may go west to the Coast, or north to the wilderness of forests and lakes, but these native scenes do not carry the genial satisfactions that come from a trip to Virginia. And the prospective tourist will do well to supply himself with the many fine pieces of literature that can be had for the asking, all of them telling the story of the Mother State, in such form as to stir the heart's desire to go back home, and see all this maze of historic, scenic, natural wonder—and find out for oneself the comfort and pleasure of a few days in the Shenandoah Valley. It leads to Hot Springs and White Sulphur, objectives in themselves of such character as to guarantee fine hostelries and elite service all along the line.

Recognizing the strategic importance of the Shenandoah Valley route (Federal, No. 11), the State Highway Commission determined to make of it a master highway—and so it will be. The old Valley pike is giving way to a new roadbed—80 feet from fence to fence—much of it finished now and making it possible to swing along at 50 or 60, and barely realize the speed. The new road is being constructed as not to interfere with traffic—with such width this is easily done—and so the valley is expecting a great throng of visitors this summer. The procession has begun—and figures to date indicate a busy season at the valley resorts.

Information will be gladly given at Shenandoah Valley, Inc., headquarters, Staunton, Va.

GALLERY OF BEAUTY IS SEEN IN CAVERNS IN SHENANDOAH LAND

Wonders Are World Famous and Are on the Lee-Jackson Highway to Capital.

Not only has nature been bounteous in giving the Shenandoah Valley, above ground, such beauty as prompted the Knights of the Golden Horseshoe, when first they saw it in 1757, to liken it unto Eden, and the Indians to call it the "Daughter of the Stars," but deep in the limestone strata she created wonders which have amazed the world.

Standing out among these wonders are the world famous Shenandoah Caverns, on the Lee-Jackson highway, and but a few hours' motor ride from Washington. In these caverns are the Diamond Cascade, a giant spillway of jewels set in translucent stone; Rainbow Lake, a crystal pool from fairyland too beautiful for words, and the Grove of the Druids, where giant stalactites and stalagmites join in making a scene which suggests the wooded temples of Celtic priests. There are scores of features which interest and inspire, and visitors to the Shenandoah Valley have missed one of the greatest marvels in all nature if they fail to visit Shenandoah Caverns.

Just recently the Caverns Corporation has installed a modern elevator, which transports the visitor to the depths of the grotto in less than half a minute, adding comfort to the journey and giving an opportunity to see its unmarred beauties without fatigue.

There are no steps to tire one, and Shenandoah is the first of the great caverns to give this service. The illumination is perfect, the walks dry and the temperature comfortable, and for the convenience and pleasure of visitors a modern hotel is operated by the corporation.

TOURIST CAMP HERE IS ONE OF LARGEST IN UNITED STATES

Has Camping Space for 250 Automobiles and Latest of Conveniences.

The Washington Tourist Camp, operated by the Welfare and Recreational Association, Public Buildings and Public Parks, Inc., is one of the largest if not the largest camp in the United States. This camp is peculiarly endowed by reason of its location within the beautiful park system of the National Capital, on the bank of the historic Potomac River, and in the midst of the rare and magnificent Japanese cherry trees, a gift to the late President William Howard Taft from the Japanese government. It is also within walking distance of numerous Government buildings, the White House, Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, Department of Agriculture, Smithsonian, Treasury Department and new department buildings under construction, with street car, bus and taxi service to all sections of the city.

The camp was established May 16, 1921, by Congressional appropriation, for the purpose of providing suitable accommodations for tourists traveling by automobile, with camping equipment, to visit Washington.

Like Laid-Out Village.

Since its establishment it has developed from what may be properly termed a camping site to a small, well-laid-out village, consisting of 112 cabins, equipped with gas for cooking and heating purposes, a large building containing 20 individual rooms, 60 tents with floors, and camping space for 250 automobiles, with such essential facilities as city water, sanitary sewage, electricity, large bath house with baths, hot and cold showers, lavatories, while for the convenience of its patrons a large lounge and writing room, radio, public telephones, telegraph service, cafeteria, grocery store, gasoline station, auto repair service, barber shop, souvenir store, soda fountain, laundry with large inclosed drying yard, clothes cleaning and pressing, commercial laundry, playgrounds for the children.

Tourists from every State in the Union, the Insular Possessions, Canada and Mexico visit the camp annually. To meet demands of tourists the camp is open the entire year.

During the regular touring season the period of stay in the camp is limited to fourteen days. This time limitation being necessary and essential otherwise, the object of the camp "for tourists only" would be defeated, due to the fact that many people desire to remain indefinitely during the summer season. During the year 1930 records indicate a total registration of 56,755 persons, with a registration of 16,771 automobiles. The largest population during a single day was 2,253 persons. On an average the populations of the camp has a complete turnover every 48 hours, which, indeed, is very fortunate, otherwise it would be impossible to meet the demands for accommodations.

In Constant Change.

As stated in a recent newspaper article concerning the camp: "The Washington Tourist Camp is a chameleon-like city in constant state of change, tourists from all over the United States make use of its facilities. Thousands who visit the camp annually volunteer the information that it is the best they have visited."

While tourist camps throughout the country are not limited to individual and family parties, the Washington Tourist Camp is unique by reason of its ideal location and its extensive facilities which permit of accommodating large parties, such as lodges, fraternal organizations, professional as well as educational tours, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and private schools. During the past year such large organizations as the Modern Woodmen of America, Omnibus College, with a membership of approximately 650; United Cadet Corps of Delaware County, Pa., religious conventions and numerous other organizations were patrons of the camp.

The camp is given the same careful inspection and supervision, by the officials in charge as obtains in other governmental agencies, both as to sanitation and fire and is under the protection of the United States Park Police. By reason of such supervision and management it is justly rated "A very fine and modern camp" by the Recreational Directory of the American Automobile Association and a rating of 95 per cent by the Hobbs Travel Guides.

For the information of tourists contemplating visiting this camp it is suggested that during the early spring and summer season, reservations be secured in advance. This can be accomplished by writing or telegraphing the manager, Washington Tourist Camp.

BOYS ARE TRAINED AT MASSANUTTEN

Military Academy Especially Stresses Health; Now in 32d Year.

The Massanutten Military Academy is one of the strong secondary schools of Virginia. It prepares young men for college, and aims to give them a thorough training in the fundamentals. It has enjoyed a splendid patronage in its 32 years of educational work, having sent out over 1,200 young men into the colleges and universities of the land. It is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and by the State board of education.

Military training is used for the sake of physical and executive values. The school has had a splendid health record, due in a large measure to the attention it gives to the health and physical training of its boys. The work has been recognized by the War Department and a junior R. O. T. C. unit is in operation.

The school is beautifully located in the Shenandoah Valley, which in itself gives prestige to any institution of learning. The equipment is generally recognized as being equal to that of any school in the State, and in certain respects superior. It includes aside from dormitories and an auditorium, a beautiful dining room, gymnasium and swimming pool. Additional recreations in the form of bowling and billiards are installed for the pleasure and benefit of the cadets. The school has also made a fine record in athletics, and meets up with the leading preparatory schools of Virginia and adjoining States in football, basket ball, baseball, swimming and track.

A new feature of the recreational activities is now being developed on a large farm, beautifully located on the Shenandoah River at the foot of the Shenandoah National Forest in the Massanutten Mountains. A country club has been erected, and a golf course is now being constructed. Horse back riding, water sports, hikes and the usual features of camp life are here offered for the week-ends and special events of the school life.

A handsome illustrated catalogue is issued, and will be mailed to any one wishing a copy.

signed the bill establishing Lee highway under that name as Virginia's part of a national memorial to Gen. Lee. Roanoke furnished the provisional president, now vice president, D. B. Sites, and D. D. Hull, jr., whose executive ability started the organization on the safe course of avoidance of debt and strict accounting for receipts and expenditures.

To the small town of Luray and to Page County belong the distinction of having given stronger financial support to the association in proportion to population and means than any other county on the line.

Washington and nearby Virginia have done their part and this splendid continent-spanning thoroughfare, the work of many hands, was made possible by the voluntary gifts of many thousands of people, a quarter of a million dollars, the donors of which have expressed their complete satisfaction with the results.

The activities of the organization are now being concentrated on the substitution of pavement for below standard types, such as graded earth, gravel and crushed rock. Since every mile of Lee highway is now in the Federal aid system its completion to Federal standards is assured, it being only a question of time.

With such a record of achievement one understands what was in President Coolidge's mind when in a message to Congress asking authority to construct the Arlington Memorial Bridge he said that the bridge project would give Congress "an opportunity to recognize the great Lee highway undertaking and to provide for this highway the most magnificent of all possible entrances to Washington.

Apostle of Good Highways

bution of surplus war property and took it to H. G. Shirley, then secretary of the Federal Highway Council. That afternoon he attended the Southern Commercial Congress where his resolution was introduced by J. A. Rountree, general director of the Bankhead Highway Association, who gives entire credit to Dr. Johnson for the idea. He wrote:

"Dr. Johnson wrote the resolutions which I offered at the Southern Commercial Congress at Baltimore and the idea of appointing a committee to get Congress to act was his. He is very close to Senator Bankhead. It was through his efforts principally that the original $10,000,000 were secured for national forests roads, and he succeeded in getting Senator Bankhead to provide in his bill for increase of Federal aid to increase the amount for forest roads in the sum of $9,000,000."

Dr. Owens was made chairman of the committee to get congressional action, and with Dr. Johnson's enthusiastic and tireless aid, the bill was passed, February 28, 1919, an amazing record considering the chaos which prevailed in the immediate post-war days in the Congress.

Under this act a quarter of a billion dollars' worth of machinery and equipment was passed on without charge to the 48 States. Virginia received seven and one-half million dollars' worth; Maryland almost two and a half million dollars' worth, and the District of Columbia almost $600,000 worth. Mr. Thomas H. McDonald, director U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, stated that this distribution of equipment did more for highway improvement than all the money Congress had appropriated for road building.

Plans Lee Highway.

In January, 1919, while the joint resolution was pending, Dr. Johnson unfolded his idea of a Lee highway to A. G. Batchelder, head of the American Automobile Association. Mr. Batchelder told him a kindred spirit, D. C. Humphreys, a professor in Washington and Lee University, who had the idea of a Lee highway from Gettysburg, Pa., to Chattanooga, Tenn., connecting a series of battlefields and also connecting the Lincoln and the Dixie highways. Johnson and Humphreys corresponded, conferred, and with the usual directness formed a Provisional Lee Highway Association. February 22, 1919, with D. P. Sites, of Roanoke, as president. On December 3 of that year in Roanoke the permanent Lee Highway Association was formed with D. D. Hull, jr., of Roanoke, as president.

Thereafter for a year Dr. Johnson was active in locating and shipping the equipment to the States, first in the employ of the State road department of New Mexico, then as assistant to Col. H. L. Bowlby, chief of war materials, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Here also his devotion to good roads and his compelling energy overcame all obstacles until the Army trucks and other possible road building equipment was at work on highways.

Proposes Linking Continents.

In the spring of 1919 the second Pan-American Commercial Congress was held in Washington, D. C., at which Dr. Johnson gave an address on "Linking Together the Two Continents by a Highway." This was published in the proceedings and thus reached the Latin republics. It was the beginning of the movement for a Pan-American highway.

First Transcontinental Convoy.

On July 7, 1919, an Army expedition set forth from Washington bound for San Francisco and traveling by motor vehicles, the route being for the most part that of the Lincoln highway. It was intended to aid the good roads movement, principally main arterial highways crossing the national domain. It was a try-out to see whether the Army could be moved over United States roads as it had been moved over the roads of France.

The suggestion of such a try-out came from two independent sources. "During the war, when the railways were unable to move war materials from the factories to the seaboard, the Lincoln highway had rendered service to the Nation, and A. T. Bement, vice president of the Lincoln Highway Association, and Maj. Bernard S. McMahan, who had had charge of motor convoys from Detroit to Baltimore, both suggested the transcontinental convoy, and both accompanied it, McMahan as train commander.

A similar suggestion was made by Dr. Johnson, who, upon invitation of Gen. Charles B. Drake, chief of the Motor Transport Corps, accompanied the convoy as its official spokesman. He also represented the American Automobile Association and was the guest of the Lincoln Highway Association.

First Motor Train.

This was the first motor train to cross the American continent, comparable in its sphere to the first ox-team prairie schooner convoy, the first steam railroad train, and the first airplane flight across the vast expanses of fertile valleys, rolling prairie, rugged mountains, and desolate wilderness that lie between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

The convoy train departed from Washington, D. C., on July 7, 1919, and arrived in San Francisco, Calif., on September 6.

A total of 79 vehicles were convoyed, including 11 passenger cars, 9 motorcycles, 22 special purpose vehicles, and 37 cargo trucks, with gross weights ranging up to a maximum of 22,450 pounds. This constituted a train 3 miles in length.

Lieut. Col. Charles W. McClure, who had recently returned from service with the American Expeditionary Force in France, was the expeditionary commander.

Great throngs visited the camp every night. Everything went well as the train moved over pavement, but when South Bend, Ind., was reached, and with it dusty roads, the effect was seen in ambulances, hitherto empty, filled with sick men and this continued until the pavements of California were reached, at Placerville. This strikingly revealed the relation of good roads to public health.

The crossing of the Mississippi at Clinton, Iowa, was slow indeed, as, due to the weakness of the bridge, only two trucks were allowed on a span at a time.

Near Gothenberg, Nebr., it rained, and the United States Army surrendered to mud. It was shown there that the Army could not be moved over dirt roads after heavy rain and in the sands of the desert of western Utah its progress was again arrested. Eighty-eight bridges and culverts proved too weak and had to be strengthened or rebuilt proving that such structures, built for buggies and wagons, are too flimsy for Army motor transport.

Upon its arrival in San Francisco the convoy was escorted by a parade to the civic center, where it was officially welcomed and reviewed by Mayor Rolph and a large assemblage of Army and naval officers, State officials and prominent citizens.

Convoy Goes to Milestone.

After the review, the convoy proceeded to the milestone in Lincoln Park which marks the end of the Lincoln Highway. Here a large flagstaff had been erected, and a platform built and beautifully decorated with flags and flowers. An address of welcome was made by Mayor Rolph in which was emphasized the historic and military significance of the expedition. This address was responded to by Dr. S. M. Johnson, the train commander, and the expeditionary commander.

Decided impetus was given to the good roads movement by this expedition and by the second convoy, which Dr. Johnson was instrumental in securing, over the Bankhead highway during the summer of 1920.

The rest of the Johnson story is the Lee highway and Lee Memorial boulevard story.

Summarizing 21 years of active effort for highway improvement, the story is a story of the motor age, beginning in the improvement of country or farm to market roads, enlarging to include the highway system of New Mexico, then the highway system of North Carolina, then a Southern transcontinental, eventuating in Lee highway, then helping to get the Federal aid highway plan into operation, then turning swords into plowshares by salvaging a quarter of a billion dollars worth of machinery purchased with the proceeds of liberty bonds to be used to kill and destroy, but wrested away and set to improving facilities of intercourse throughout the national domain.

"Broadway of America."

By persistent work, Lee Highway Association has succeeded in transforming what eleven years ago were short stretches of pavement, extending a few miles into the country from each city toward the next of the series, with primitive wagon trails the most of the mileage between these disconnected bits of pavement, into a modern high-speed motorway, a speedy, safe, economic and pleasurable means of cross-continent motor travel, most of it now known as "the Broadway of America," and all of it destined to be one of the most popular of touring routes.

The story of Dr. Johnson is not complete with merely a narration of his accomplishments for better highways, although these alone argue the persuasive character of the man. Mildmannered, modest, unselfish, he is, nevertheless, a great inspiration leader.

To him has come no material gain from his monumental visions and concrete accomplishments, but his efforts have made marketing cheaper, touring more comfortable, and the cultural unity of the Nation nearer.

There is little wonder that mired roads change into 200-foot boulevards at the touch of this apostle of progress.

a reasonable allowance for overhead, during a conversion period to be fixed by the corporation, that is, after a considerable part of the development shall have been provided with streets and public utility connections. Since the land was obtained by the corporation at undeveloped acreage prices as of 1926, land cost to certificate holders will be small.

Each certificate is numbered serially, which gives the purchaser his due priority in selecting a building site or sites whether for homes or stores and an equitable arrangement insures that holders of sufficient units to cover the entire cost of a site will have priority over holders of units sufficient to pay for only part of a site, but the latter will have priority over the public.

The subscriber who does not wish to convert his interest in the corporation to real estate will participate in the profits coming from the later sale to the public of unselected land.

Strathmeade is purposely planned to meet the needs among others, of the great "white collar" class in Washington. It is designed to give the family of moderate fixed income the home with flowers, trees, birds and recreation facilities now too often beyond their means.
